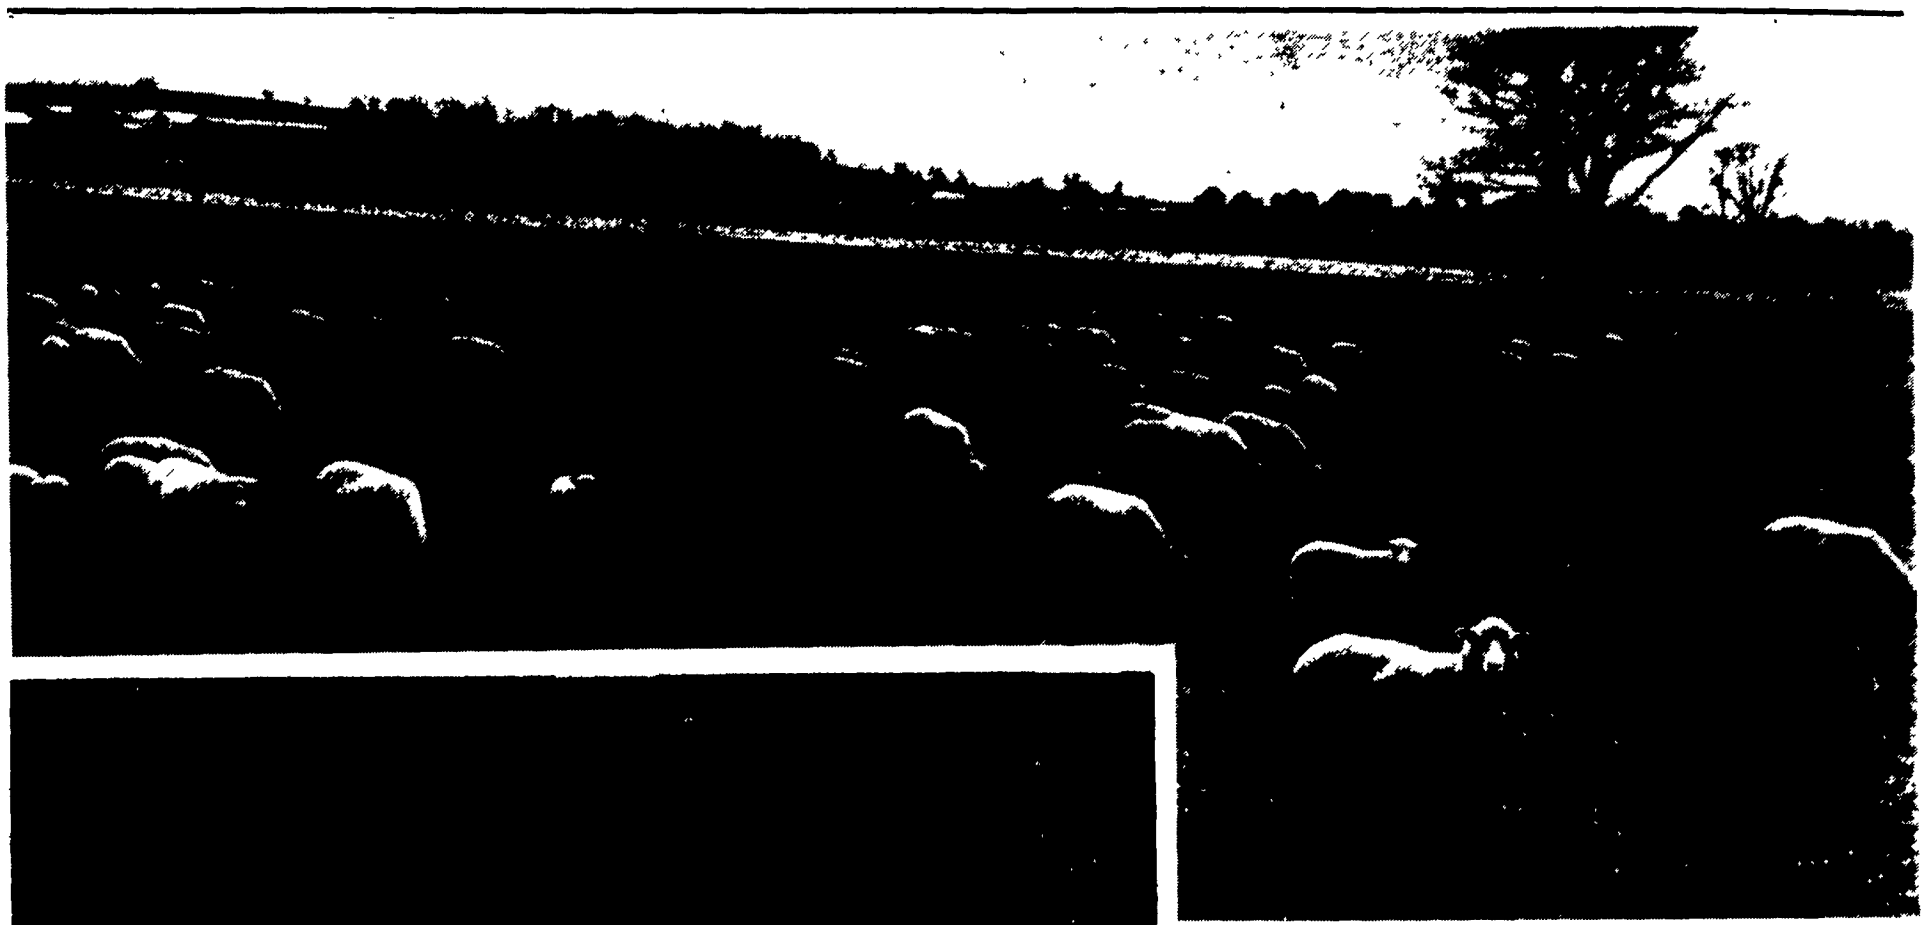
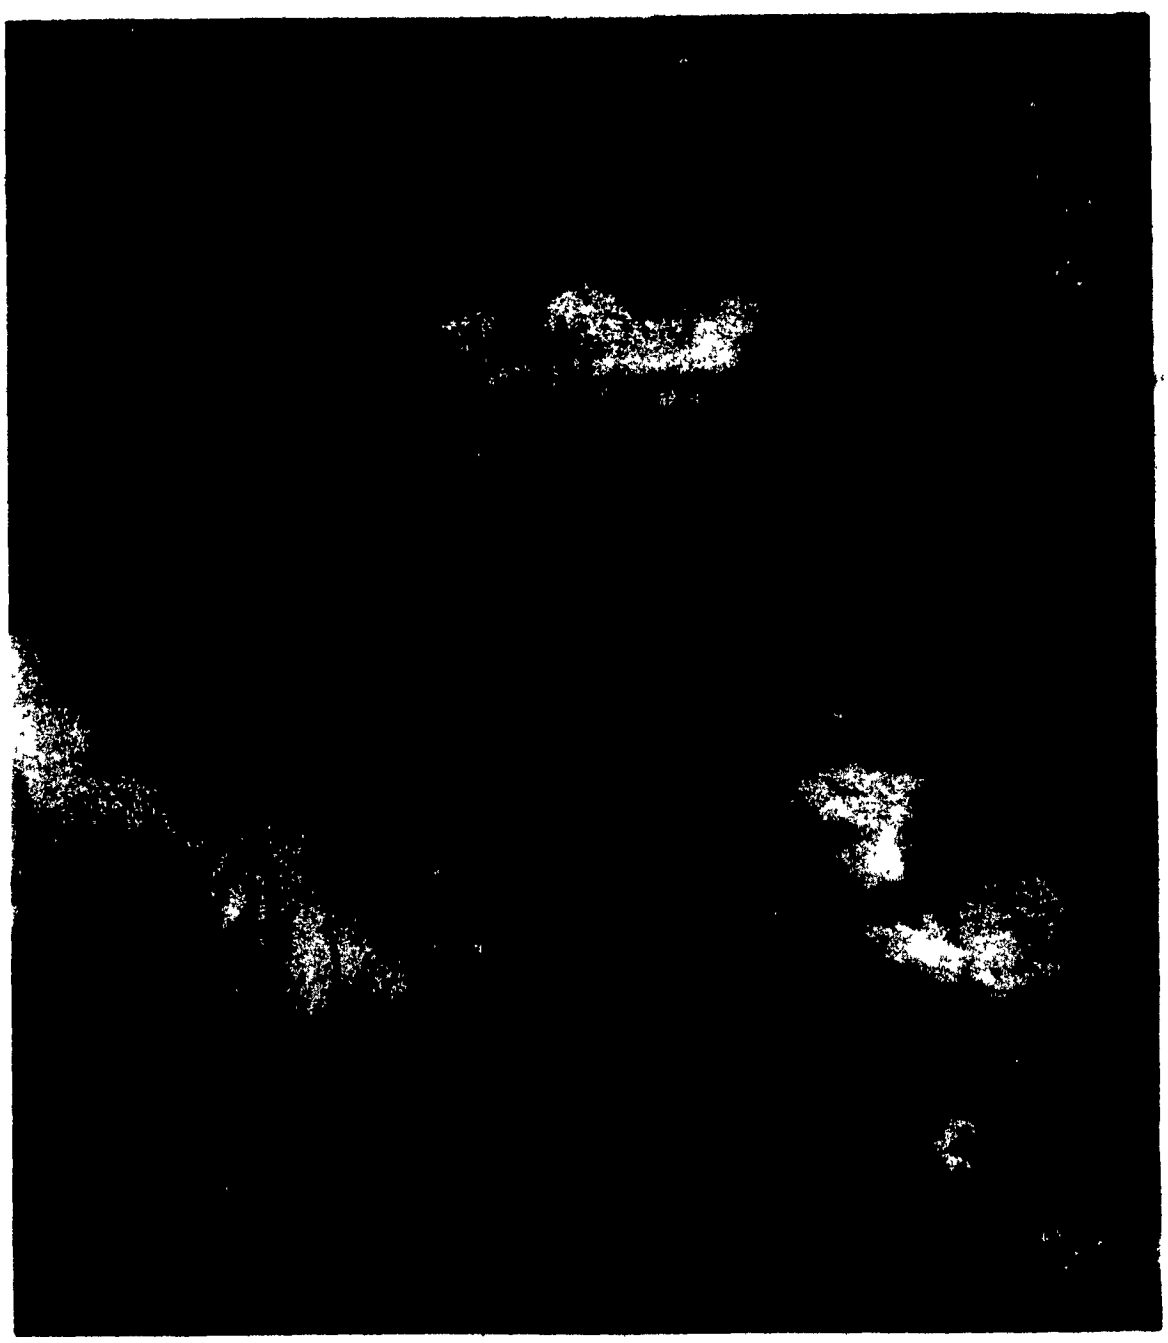
VOL. 37 No. 25 | Four Sections | Lancaster Farming, Saturday, May 2, 1992 | 60¢ Per Copy | 19.00 Per Year





Rev. William Longenecker has been well known as a good shepherd in Lancaster County for many years. Until recently, Longnecker had a flock of more than 400 ewes on the farm north of Mount Joy. But now he is the pastor of the Stevens Hill Community Church of the Brethren so his flock of people has caused interest in sheep to diminish to about 150 ewes. In the photos, above, the Polypay flock grazes over the 62 acres. At right, neighbors Kendra Gehman and children Jacob, 8; Hannah, 4, and Dari, 2, cuddle a 3-day-old lamb. Father and husband Dale Gehman works at Eastern Mennonite Board of Missions. Delter's greenhouses supplied the azaleas. Photos by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

COLUMBUS, OHIO—The chief executive officer of the National Dairy Herd Improvement Association has resigned. Dr. Frank Dickenson asked that his resignation be effective June 1, 1992.

In making the announcement, Michael Quesnell, national DHIA president, said that the actions to accept Dickinson's resignation took place during a meeting of the National DHIA Executive Committee here last week. At the same time, Philip Dukas, director of operations and quality assurance, was appointed acting CEO as of June 1. Dukas also holds the position of CEO of DHIA Services, Inc., the product and service arm of National DHIA.

"Dr. Dickinson expressed a desire to the executive committee to reduce his workload in order to have more time to pursue personal interests," Quesnell said. "He submitted a transition plan that will permit an orderly change in management. This will also give National DHIA the opportunity to search for replacement staff since this is the optimal time of year for recruiting."

Quesnell said the National DHIA Board will address the Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was about moderate; sellers were awaiting significant increases in orders on both whole birds and parts for first of the month business. Offerings of whole birds were fully adequate; however, 2.5 and 3 pound sizes were in limited supply. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to 1 cent higher at 46 to 59 cents. Slaughter schedules were heavy with all plants running. Live supplies were moderate. The undertone was steady to firm. Buyers interest was good for boneless skinless breasts and paricularly leg quarters for late week needs. Other items were at least adequate; demand spotty.

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

MAY 4-10, 1992

ASTRONOMY WEEK.

FRESH BREEZE

May 7 is the birthday of Sir Francis Beaufort. For those who haven't heard of him, Sir Francis was the British Admiral who devised Beaufort's Scale of Wind Speeds in 1806, later adopted by the International Meteorological committee for use in weather telegraphy. Still later the U.S. Weather Service also adopted the scale with modifications.

Beaufort's scale can indicate the wind strength when no instruments are available using descriptive criteria and a scale of 0 (calm) to 12 (hurricane). For instance, a hurricane is "that which no canvas could withstand." Recent changes include the addition of miles per hour, so we now know a fresh breeze (5) is 19-24 mph but a light breeze (2) is only 4-7 mph. Good to know when you're flying a kite on a balmy spring day!

A little wind kindles, too much puts out the fire.

TIP OF THE WEEK

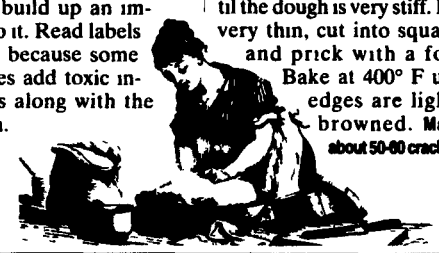
EARWISE

If fleas are a problem in your house, please consider using natural alternatives to "mainstream" products. Remember, you could be slowly poisoning your pet while you kill off the fleas. Pyrethrin is an active ingredient that is made from chrysanthemums. It's safe to you, your pet, and the environment, and fleas don't seem to build up an immunity to it. Read labels carefully because some companies add toxic ingredients along with the pyrethrin.



OLD FASHIONED SODA CRACKERS

4 cups flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup sour milk
1 cup butter

Sift dry ingredients together. Cut in milk and butter, mixing well to form a stiff dough. (To sour fresh milk, add 1 scant tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice.) Roll and turn over repeatedly until the dough is very stiff. Roll very thin, cut into squares, and prick with a fork. Bake at 400° F until edges are lightly browned. Makes about 50-60 crackers.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

NORTHEAST: Clear and warm, cloudy and cool south coast; rain then warmer, clearing west.

SOUTHEAST: Rainy, cold then clearing, warming; finally sunny and very warm.

MIDWEST: Cool and rainy; hot and sunny; then cooling and more rain.

NORTHWEST: Rainy and cold, heavy rain, snow mountains; clearing and warming, heavy rain far east, sunny and warm elsewhere.

SOUTHWEST: Sunny and warm; cold, rainy mountains then clearing; cloudy and rainy, clear and warm California.

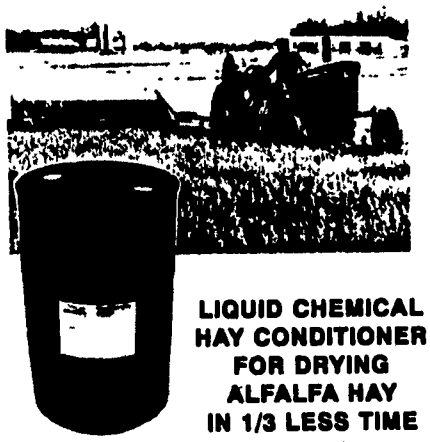
SWATHER'S CHOICE
ALFALFA HAY CONDITIONER
NEW!


LIQUID CHEMICAL HAY CONDITIONER FOR DRYING ALFALFA HAY IN 1/3 LESS TIME

Alfalfa and other legume crops have a coating of wax. While this coating is a natural protection for the growing plant, it is an inhibitor to moisture loss in field curing and to feed utilization in the digestive system of ruminant animals. The presence of this coating of wax also makes the hay stem brittle and less palatable to livestock.

Swather's Choice "washes off" the outside waxy coating of alfalfa, allowing for the water inside the plant to evaporate more rapidly than in untreated hay. Swather's Choice is actually a soap that is safe for livestock consumption and won't affect palatability.

In studies at Michigan State University, hay treated with the ingredients in Swather's Choice had higher protein and lower fiber. In a further study at Utah State University, cows consumed 2.2 pounds more treated hay per day.

Unlike conventional granular drying agents, Swather's Choice is a liquid chemical hay conditioner. It is easily tank mixed with water and requires only fifteen gallons per acre in most applications, compared with the conventional products that are normally applied at 30 gallons per acre.

OPINION

During the last seven years, six workers on New York state farms were killed when they became entangled in self-unloading forage wagons. Most were youthful workers. Somehow, they missed the message that forage wagons are dangerous.

Prevention techniques are not complicated but are often ignored. The purpose of new safety devices on forage wagons is misunderstood and the devices are misused. Consider the following safety precautions recommended by John G. Pollock, Farm Safety Specialist at Cornell University.

Keep wagons well maintained. Workers climb into running units because of a breakdown. The urgency of keeping the haying operation going overrides the need to work safely. Preventive maintenance before the haying season can greatly reduce downtime. Conveyors, augers, and beaters should work smoothly, without excessive clatter. Moving parts and PTO drives should be shielded if possible. The safety trip bar should be operational.

The safety trip bar should not be used as a drive-control device. The trip bar is an emergency mechanism; it will not prevent accidents. It may reduce the severity of an injury but the trip bar is designed to work when an entanglement occurs. Using the trip bar as a drive-controller may give false security to workers believing it is acceptable to work close to the beaters when they are running. Always shut down the power to the wagon before working on or near any power shafts, pulleys, gears, augers, conveyors and especially the beaters.

Observe other wagon safety rules. Move wagons at reasonable speeds. Don't coast downhill. Avoid ditches, steep banks, and obstacles. Keep tires in good repair. Don't overload the wagon. Keep riders off wagons. Be cautious when hitching and unhitching wagons: block the wheels to prevent unwanted movement. Use a tractor large enough to provide proper braking for the loading of the wagon.

Equip heavy highway haulers with brakes. Saving some money when purchasing wagons and trailers through not buying brakes may be a fatal mistake. Listen carefully to the advice of the manufacturer and dealer. Brakes may not be required but they are smart business.

Be particularly safety conscious on public roads. Young workers often have the task of hauling wagons back and forth from field to storage facility. You must be confident that the worker is skilled and mature enough to handle the job. Know the laws and obey them. Use good road manners by staying in your lane. If traffic backs up behind you, pull over and stop to let it pass. Be courteous even if other drivers are not.

'10 Increase Biosecurity

The recent laryngotracheitis (LT) outbreaks, and now the new bronchitis outbreak in chickens on the Eastern Shore, reminds us of the importance of good biosecurity programs.

Every poultry and livestock farmer should have a biosecurity program for their farm. This includes limiting visitors, requiring all visitors to put on clean clothes and hats and wear clean and disinfected footwear, and isolating all new animals before introducing them to the rest of your animals.

Also, you need to examine your own biosecurity program. Keep visits to other livestock and poultry farms to a minimum. Always wash, shower, and put on clean clothes before working with your animals.

Have a pair of shoes or boots that never leave your farm. This should be the footwear you put on to care for your animals.

By practicing good biosecurity, you will reduce the risk of introducing unwanted disease organisms on your farm.

To Buy Effective Fence Charger

How many miles an electric fence charger claims it can power has little to do with its ability to control livestock.

Most fence manufacturers apply a mile rating based on the fencer's theoretical ability to maintain 500 to 700 volts on a wire under laboratory conditions. Since it takes 2,000 to 3,000 volts to control livestock or 4,000 volts for sheep and predators, the number of miles on the fencer label has little to do with the real-life fence on your farm.

You may use the mile rating to compare one fence charger with another. A 20-mile fencer should be twice as powerful as a 10-mile fencer.

Low impedance fencers, which put out less voltage and more amperage than conventional fencers, are rated by joules. A joule (equal to a watt for one second) is a more meaningful rating for fencer effectiveness.

A one or two joule fencer is adequate for most livestock fences. A 5 to 12 joule fencer is recommended for sheep and predator fences.

To Prevent Environmental Mastitis

Glenn shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us the incidence of environmental mastitis usually increases in rainy seasons and in periods of warm, moist conditions. These infections are caused by coliform and strep non-ag bacteria.

To help reduce these problems, many dairy farmers do not wash cows' udders prior to milking. Instead, they dry wipe the udder and dip the teats in a sanitizer solution. Thirty seconds latter, they wipe the sanitizer off the teat with a clean towel and attach the milker unit.

It is also important to keep stall beds, alleys, and pens clean and to fence cows away from wet sloppy areas.

I just sent in my vote to Dump the National Dairy Board. Our advertising campaign is an insult to our intelligence as dairy farmers. Nowhere on any dairy product is the fat free content shown. Four percent milk is 96% fat free. Four percent cottage cheese is 96% fat free. Ten percent ice cream is 90% fat free. My point is that consumers understand large numbers showing the fat or fat free content of the products they purchase. It doesn't take too much intelligence to see which numbers our diet oriented society will react

THE LIVING STONES

May 3, 1992

Background Scripture: I Peter 2:1-25.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 62:1-23.

It seems to me that I've read something on the Saturday religious page of our newspaper about a few Christian rock bands that try to interpret the Gospel of Jesus Christ to young people through rock music. If I were contemplating such a ministry — and I'm not! I might be tempted to call my musical group "The Living Stones" (with perhaps some apologies to "The Rolling Stones ").

There is a good Biblical precedent, I Peter 2:4,5 — "Come to him, to that living stone, rejected by men but in God's sight chosen and precious; and like living stones be yourselves built into a spiritual house..." Peter uses an interesting analogy here in a passage that is sometimes summed up as "the stoneship of Christ." Actually, his analogy of a "living stone" seems an absolute contradiction. Stones are not living things. They are the very epitome of that which is without life. Peter is apparently aware of this contradiction and is using it knowingly to contrast Christ with the lifeless stones of the temple. For it is a "spiritual house" which we have in Christ, not a material one.

CHRIST'S "STONESHIP"

We still have some trouble with that today, don't we? When we speak of the church we are likely to think primarily of the building that houses a local congregation. Or, if not the church building, then at least the church as an organization or institution. But, no matter how beautiful the church building, or how admirable the church organization, we know that the true Church APRIL of Jesus Christ is a living "spiritual house" composed of "a holy priesthood". The building gives us a good place to worship and teach and the organization helps us to equip and direct our ministries, but it is the living people of God who are the true Church.

Peter expands on this analogy, reminding his readers that Jesus is the "cornerstone chosen and precious" in God's sight. The Church is built upon him and no one else, but this living cornerstone was "rejected by men" and he recalls Psalm 118:22, "The very stone which the builders rejected has become the head of the corner" (2:7). Christ is also likened to "A stone that will make men stumble, a rock that will make them fall" (2:8) and it is certainly true that for many people Jesus, the "living stone," has been a stumbling block" instead of a "cornerstone."

OUR "STONESHIP"

But Peter is also concerned that we be "like living stones... built into a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ" (2:5). To be in Christ's Church, then, is not a matter of qualifying by virtue of who we are, but what he wants of us. Too often, Christians act as if by being members of the church they thereby belong to a sanctified "in-group." We are in the church, not to show the world how worthy we are, but so that God can use us for his purposes. We cannot afford to chortle:

We are God's chosen few,
All others will be damned:
There is no place in Heaven for you,
We can't have Heaven crammed!

So it is with humility and commitment, not pride, that we read: "...you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God's own people..." These are not ranks to boast of, but jobs to be about. For we are all those things, not because of our great worthiness, but because God has a job for us to do: "that you may declare the wonderful deeds of him who called you out of darkness, into his marvelous light" (2:9)

BOY, UNCLE OTIS, YOU RUN A VERY EFFICIENT FARM HERE. WHAT GAVE YOU THE INCENTIVE TO COME-UP WITH ALL THESE WORK SAVING PROCEDURES?
LAZINESS!

Penn State Program Keeps Milk Fresher

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A Penn State program has helped keep Pennsylvania milk fresher and may save producers, merchants and consumers millions of dollars.

"Fluid milk samples from Pennsylvania milk processing plants in 1991 remained fresh longer than ever before," said Sidney E. Barnard, professor of food science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

The results of a 2-year study in the college's Department of Food Science prompted the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) last August to extend "sell by" dating of fluid milk in the state from a maximum of 10 to 12 days after processing.

"Sell by" dates of perishable foods usually are set by processors to achieve proper rotation during distribution and imply that products are best if used by that date. However, PDA strictly regulates "sell by" dates for fluid milk to assure consumers that store-purchased milk in Pennsylvania will remain good until the indicated date, if properly handled.

"Over the course of two studies, we obtained more than 500 samples from processing plants without prior notice and held them for up to 14 days at 45 degrees F, the maximum regulatory storage temperature," Barnard said.

"Ninety-six percent of 185 samples collected from March to July 1991, retained acceptable flavor and quality for 12 or more days. "In a follow-up study conducted from September to December 1991, more than 87 percent of 243 samples from 46 processing plants remained acceptable for at least 12 days at 45 degrees F."

Pennsylvania is one of the few states with a "sell by" dating regulation for fluid milk and is only the second state in which processors have demonstrated that their milk would keep longer before seeking an extension.

Barnard credits Pennsylvania milk's longer shelf life to a series of programs aimed at educating dairy processing plant workers. Starting in 1990, Barnard, in cooperation with PDA and industry technical representatives, conducted training sessions for management, processing employees, pasteurizer operators and quality assurance personnel at 54 plants.

"We presented the latest procedures and practices to extend milk's keeping quality at employee meetings, and in some cases demonstrated these techniques to employees at processing plants," Barnard said.

"Some brands of milk stayed fresh up to five days longer as a result of adopting ideal sanitation practices and processing procedures.

"The benefits of a longer shelf life for fluid milk to consumers, distributors, processors and dairy producers could exceed a million dollars each month," Barnard said.

"Processors will need to make fewer deliveries, while stores won't have to retum as much milk. Consumers won't have to run to the store for fresh milk as often. Some processors want to demonstrate that milk will keep for 14 days, which would provide additional savings."

These studies were supported by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, Allied Milk Producer's Cooperative, the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers and individual contributions from Pennsylvania and out-of-state milk dealers.

more favorably to but, apparently the N.D.B. is either lacking this element or they are blinded by their high salaries, which could be said of a high percent of politicians in this country.

Let's wake up and get the government out of agriculture. We need to take control of advertising and pricing our own product. We have too much overhead with very little result, typical government. Farmers are the backbone of the country and the economy. If the small farms across the country go out of business and just a few large ones are left in one area, think of the consequences in times of natural disasters such as drought and flood which we have experienced in the last few years.

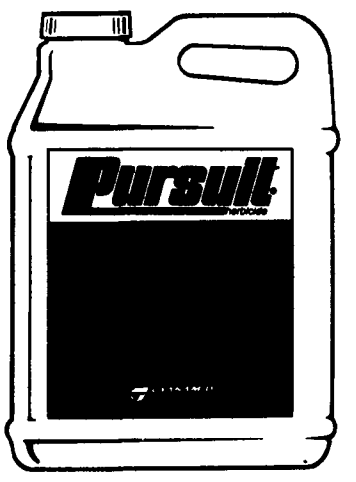
THE ONLY POST THAT CONTROLS GRASSES AND BROADLEAVES.

A single application of PURSUIT® herbicide not only delivers the highest degree of overall weed control, it's also the only post-emergence product that combines contact and residual activity to give you superior control of more than 40 tough-to-control grasses and broadleaf weeds. Including velvetleaf, foxtails, cocklebur, pigweeds, nightshades, common ragweed, giant ragweed, sunflower, shattercane and seedling Johnsongrass. Without causing soybean injury. And because of its advanced chemistry and low rates of application, PURSUIT offers a responsible choice for the environment. That's the kind of strength everyone can respect. And reason enough to try PURSUIT. See us soon.



Always read and follow label directions carefully.

Animal Health Commission Seeks New Diagnostic Lab

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania livestock producers can expect to see a new, $6.7 million diagnostic laboratory replace the deteriorating Summerdale facility within the next several years, if recommendations of the state Animal Health Commission are heeded.

On Thursday, the nine-member Animal Health Commission met in the state Department of Agriculture Building to discuss the condition of the state's animal health laboratories and what could be done to improve the situation.

The result was a unanimous approval to seek the construction of a $6.7 million laboratory wing to the existing state agriculture building, located across from the state Farm Show complex along Cameron Street in Harrisburg.

The laboratory is to replace the deteriorated Summerdale Diagnostic Laboratory building, which has been in need of work for some time.

The Summerdale facility is also the headquarters for the Department of Agriculture's Region VI offices. The members of the commission approved eventually moving the Region VI staff, who are currently officed at Summerdale, to vacant office space within the agriculture department building.

Cutbacks in manpower and full-time services at the department of agriculture over the years have allowed space within the building to be available for the Region VI staff.

The decision to build a new facility has to be approved by the state Legislature and governor as part of the capital budget plan, part of the long-range budget-making process.

The existing Summerdale Diagnostic Lab sits on 60 acres of state land located in Cumberland County near the intersection of I81 and Rt.11-15, considered prime commercial land.

The hope is that the possible sale of the property would offset almost $1 million of the cost of building a new laboratory. However, the proceeds from a sale, if it does occur, will not be used by the Department of Agriculture, but would be part of the state's General Fund. The General Fund receives the bulk of its monies from taxes.

The intended plan would be to get approval for the $6.7 million construction, build the facility and then move equipment and personnel into the new facility before ceasing operations at Summerdale.

Official estimates are that the soonest the new diagnostic laboratory would be online would be 1994-95. That estimate is based on full cooperation between state agencies, including the governor's office and the Office of the Budget, which currently controls the state's purse strings at the direction of the governor.

Having a project included in the capital budget does not mean that the project will be completed within a specific time. Rennovation and expansion of the state Farm Show Building Complex was authorized under the capital budget many years ago, but is only being completed now.

Members of the commission expressed a hope and commitment to ensure that the same fate does not befall the sorely needed diagnostic facility.

The commission settled on constructing a semi-detatched wing to the agriculture building after hearing three proposals.

One proposal was to rennovate the existing Summerdale lab building for $4 million; rebuild the building at Summerdale for $6.6 million; or seek the $6.7 million facility at Cameron Street.

On an amount-only basis, rennovation appears to be the most inexpensive, but members said that with additional problems inherint in the existing facility, the rennovation would not improve overall performance.

Rep. Kenneth Cole, chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee said it has been his experience, especially with a specific state rennovation of a veteran's hospital, that overhead costs and maintenance costs are not significantly reduced and that rennovations can frequently go into cost overruns because of unforseen problems. "Even if you remodel an old house, you still have an old house," he said.

Furthermore, the savings in security, support staff, equipment, energy use and communications would be significantly reduced with a lab wing at the Cameron Street location.

Currently the 60-acre Summerdale facility has to have its own security personnel, mailroom and support staff. Those services are already existing at the agriculture department building.

"It would be a better facility," Cole said, "all of it is at one location."

Furthermore, the secretary of agriculture would be close to the laboratory and have a better ability to be on top of developments in the efforts to diagnose and control animal diseases.

The existing Summerdale facility is not a showcase for the agriculture department, according to Cole. "I've been appalled at the conditions of the 63-year-old facility. It's antiquated and outdated, and the physical plant has not been kept up. I think the agricultural industry in Pennsylvania deserves better."

According to Rep. Cole, fellow House member and chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Rep. Dwight Evans, will support the decision. Evans and Cole had inspected the Summerdale Laboratory recently.

"I'm sure Dwight Evans shares may senitments exactly," Cole said.

Sheila Miller, executive director of the Senate Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee, who also served on the subcommittee which recommended the possibility of constructing a diagnostic wing at Cameron Street, said that Sen. Edward Helfrick, for whom she speaks, also supports the move.

She said that should the decision be supported and be authorized in the Capital Budget, which appears to be likely, "It will be up to the ag community to press the governor to release those funds."

Cole said that for certain, years and years of delay, such as was the case with the Farm Show Building, will not be the case.

"It took over 20 years, after money was put in, to rennovate the Farm Show building," Cole said. "I assure you, it will not take that long."

Cole also gave credit to Boyd Wolff, secretary of agriculture, for initiating efforts to review the Summerdale situation. "I applaud him for initiating study last October."

Although a specific site has not been decided upon, the most likely site will be acreage on the north end of the agriculture building where dilapidated poultry research buildings are currently barely standing.

Fruit Grower Ready As Festival Kicks Off Apple Season

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

IDAVILLE (Adams Co.) — Years ago, when fruit growers experienced a drought, there weren't inexpensive lightweight irrigation pipes with portable gas pumps available to draw water out of a nearby creek.

Nearly 60 years ago, Fremont Kuntz, of Kuntz Orchards, used a one-horse plow, digging up ground around trees. To irrigate, he lugged a barrel filled with water up a ridge, dumping it on tree after tree.

Adams County orchardists have come a long way since. Technologies have improved. But fruit growers face the same adversities — particularly the weather, which, in the past few years, has been uncooperative to say the least.

From working on a fruit farm in Bendersville managed by his father to purchasing his own orchard in 1941, Kuntz has been able to keep his 600-acre apple growing operation thriving and fruitful.

Launched Festival

Kuntz served as president of the Adams County Fruit Growers Association and helped launch the annual Apple Blossom Festival in 1955. This year, the festival, featuring a wide array of activities for the family, begins today and lasts through Sunday at the South Mountain Fairgrounds in Arendtsville.

Kuntz and sons Jairus "Gerry," 52; Louy, 48; Dean, 42; and daughter Carol Lobaugh (who does the bookkeeping) manage a total of six orchards in a three-mile area near Idaville and Bendersville. Kuntz purchased the original 66-acre farm in 1941 and expanded the acreage in 1956, 1963, and 1983. The orchard was incorporated in 1982.

In the beginning, Kuntz planted 40 acres of peaches, 35 acres of pears, and several acres of cherries. But he quickly switched to an all-apple orchard after suffering through a blight of stem pitting and other problems from his peach trees and pears.

Kuntz Orchards' 600 acres of processing apples includes the varieties of York (about 55 percent of the total acreage), Golden Delicious (30 percent), and the balance in Red Delicious and Rome Beauty.

Provides good fruit

Kuntz said the land provides good fruit and the varieties he uses are hardy for the area, despite some of the dry weather in recent years, including a statewide drought in 1988, a spring freeze in 1989, and a central Pennsylvania drought in 1991.

The 1991 drought was the most severe he's ever seen.

"We had some damage last year, on the ridges where the rock lays high, from dry weather," said Kuntz. "That's the driest I can ever remember, and I was born and raised on a fruit farm."

Kuntz said he is particularly concerned about this year — if there is another drought, the impact on his fruit crop could be devastating.

Lost trees

"I'm concerned if we have another dry year. The subsoil is very deficient in moisture," he said, especially the high ridge areas. Many orchardists who did not irrigate the ridges lost a great deal of fruit trees.

Kuntz Orchards irrigates the trees with an overhead sprinkler system purchased in 1966. Kuntz said that, using farm ponds, they place about six inches of water on about 150 acres last summer. (However, according to Kuntz, one large farm doesn't have a pond and cannot be irrigated.)

But the conditions are right for a good fruit crop, provided there is enough rain this year. The only "benefit" the drought may have brought is the fact that, because of the fruit stress, more blooms are appearing this year on the trees.

"My father always said, 'Anything that shocks the tree, they form fruit buds,'" said Kuntz. "We had a very dry season last year, and that tends to be a shock on the trees, and they develop a nice set of buds."

Need moisture

"I think it looks pretty good all over," he said. "We need the moisture now to produce them."

Kuntz Orchards sprays to thin the fruits. Kuntz said the spray thinning is necessary to provide a larger, more profitable fruit size, and saves on labor. "That's where the money is," he said. "The larger the apple, the better."

He also said that by reducing the load on the trees, "you set fruit buds for the next year. If you let them all on, it's very hard to get a nice crop every year."

Also, the farm is using a new semidwarf variety. Half the acreage is in semidwarfs because orchardists can grow more per acre, the trees don't take as much pruning, they're easily sprayed, and the ladder size is smaller, said Kuntz. "They're a lot nicer for picking during harvest," he said.

Uses fertilizer

Kuntz uses a 10-20-20 fertilizer broadcast between the rows.

During the season, the trees are carefully monitored for moisture needs and sprayed for the control of insects and disease.

The harvesting season runs right after Labor Day in early September to about November 10. Kuntz Orchards hires about 45 pickers during harvest.

According to Kuntz, many orchardists have survived the winter without a quick, early warmup that could have threatened fruit

Membership Development

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — PRIME is the basic no-frills testing program that provides accurate, timely, and essential management information along with production records that carry the "DHIA NAME" and at a cost that gives you the most return for your dollar!

A DHIA technician helps you get started, he or she can explain how to report the infor- mation on the easy-to-use barnsheet and how to weigh and sample each cow's production on your test day. The technician is then available as a resource person to help in any way possible.

PRIME Program allows the member to collect and record the data, eliminating the labor of the technician. You would be a direct member of the State association and not subject to county association assessments.

The PRIME program has nine different options. You may choose to decide how often you want to test your herd. You can test every month of the year, every other month or quarterly; you decide when. You can choose to weigh and sample each cow's milk each month; one milking or both, or you may choose to just weigh the milk and not take samples every month, or you may choose certain cow's to test.

As a member enrolled in PRIME we will have your individual cow and herd production records on file in our computer at Ihe PA processing center. One advantage is that your records are in our computer and can be transferred at no cost if you would choose to change type test. As a PRIME member "moving up the ladder" into a more complex, or "official" program is a an opportunity to use the young sire semen from the A.I. studs.

PRIME designed in the first place for the producers who want management records with a minimum of effort and cost. It also appeals to those producers who find the full range of information services in DHI, AMIPM, and DHIR either too complicated or too expensive.

PRIME is available across the state of Pennsylvania at a variety of cost, considering equipment needs, technician involvement, and the wide range of options within the program. If you are interested in what this low cost service program has to offer, or if you know of a dairy producer who could use PRIME, (or any of our other programs, please contact a DHIA technician or Region Manger for details. Please feel free to also call the DHIA office in State College at 1-800-344-8378 and ask for assistance.

bud development. As long as we can get through the spring without a freeze, it should be a good apple crop, according to the fruit grower.

Harvest half

The last time a late freeze occurred, harvest of the crop was cut in half (from a normal 1,000 bushel-per-acre season to about 500 bushels per acre).

Kuntz grows a great deal of the York variety, which he said is "a good keeper and it's a good apple for sauces" and other uses. "It's a hardy apple and is better to grow than any variety, I think," said Kuntz. "It's a good keeper. You can keep it a long time in cold storage, that's the main thing."

The Apple Blossom Festival, set for this Saturday and Sunday, is the "Ag Progress" of the county's apple industry. There will be various fruit displays and lots of entertainment for the whole family, including apple pie eating and bobbing contests, squaredancing, antique car exhibits, hayriding, a large arts and crafts show, and other activities.

On Sunday, May 3, the annual crowning of the Apple Blossom Queen takes place at 2:30 p.m.

Pennsylvania DHIA Sends Letter To Lancaster Members

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—In an attempt to clarify its position for transfer of records, a letter from Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association was sent to each member of Lancaster County DHIA this week. The letter was in response to Lancaster's program to distribute individual release forms through supervisors to all their members over the next several weeks.

"For many years the Pennsylvania and the Lancaster DHIA's have worked together to benefit DHIA members all over the state," said Frank Orner, Pennsylvania president. "United in a common purpose, we have seen our associations grow in size, capability and complexity, with new services being added in response to changing needs.

However, Orner said the form letter requesting release to process records at another data center was disappointing because Pennsylvania DHIA has made efforts to meet the needs that members have expressed. He listed the new individual cow page that's now available as an example. Other soon to come items memtioned were: lap top computers to provide electronic data entry and test day reports on the farm, an improved herd summary report and offers to reduce DHIA fees by redistribution of field service costs.

Orner said the transfer of records requires an individual letter from a member with reasons for requesting a transfer clearly showing the financial benefits that transfer will provide. "The important thing to note is that if an individual makes a request to transfer records, meets the proper requirements to insure that records are not jeopardized and shows financial benefits, the request will be granted," Orner said. "If the requirements are not met, they will not be transfered."

According to the statement sent along with the letter, the state's procedures for requesting release and transfer are: A. Dairyman must notify PA DHIA by letter stating the reasons for requesting a release; and B. The PA DHIA board will act on the request at the next regularly scheduled board meeting. The request must be received at least 15 days prior to the board meeting to be considered at that meeting.

Conditions to be met for transfer are: A. No outstanding bills for service in existence; B. No pending rules, or bylaws violation in existence; C. The dairyman has not been solicited by another organization and must be willing to sign a statement to that effect.

Acceptable release criteria are: A. The request for release must document a need for specific services that are not available in the home state and show how that specific service will be of financial benefit to the dairyman; B. Documented failure of the home state DHIA to provide service that meets quality certification standards, or fails to abide by the National DHIA bylaws or official rules.

Unacceptable release reasons are: A. A member conflict with a DHIA employee; B. Differences in cost between states of similar or identical services; C. Differemces between states in the enforcement of official rules; D. Difference of opinion with the operation of the association; E. Alleged laboratory or data processing inaccuracies; and F. Alleged, but unsubstantiated dirty equipment or other unsatisfactory test day conditions.

Lancaster Members Request Release

Meanwhile, the signing of release request forms continues amoung Lancaster DHIA members. Officials said that since the start of the program, as reported two weeks ago, more than 300 dairymen have sent requests to Pennsylvania for transfer. The program to give each Lancaster member the opportunity to receive a release form through the local supervisors is expected to be completed by the middle of May.

appointment of a new CEO at the next meeting on July 24-25. Until then, Dukas has requested that Dickinson remain on full-time employment with National DHIA until a new staffing plan is in place. Dickinson has agreed to this request.

In a personal note to friends associated with the DHIA system, Dickinson said that his announcement may come as a surprise, and suprise announcements often cause rumors to fly. Since those rumors are seldom beneficial to the people or organizations that are the subject, Dickinson wrote the note to communicate constructive feedback on the facts of his action.

"The late-April meeting of the Executive Committee was planned during our convention at Madison," Dickinson said. "That meeting appeared to me to be perfect timing to start the transition process toward a new CEO. Why start? Diane and I have many interests and activities we would like to pursue together. All too often, we have not been able to do things together, like visit our grandchildren, because of the demands of the CEO position.

"Why start now? This is the ideal time of year for National DHIA to recruit new staff. Between the convention and the Executive Cimmittee meeting, Phil and I developed a proposed transition plan. We all hope the plan adopted by the Executive Committee will eventually strengthen National DHIA to serve the DHIA system and the remainder of the dairy industry even better than now.

"I do hope I can continue to work for National DHIA on a part-time basis and contribute to the betterment of the DHIA system after the transition to a new CEO is completed by the Board in late July," Dickinson said. "I have enjoyed my opportunity here at National DHIA immensely. Diane and I will always treasure the friendships we have made in my career prior to coming with National DHIA and while I have been in my present position. I hope I will be able to continue working with you in a new capacity".

Cornell, Northeast DHIA Sign Memorandum

ITHACA, N.Y. — Two Memoranda were signed recently to reaffirm the strong relationship between Cornell's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences (CALS) and the Northeast Dairy Herd Improvement Association, as well as the relationship between the Cornell Dairy Records Processing Laboratory (DRPL) and Northeast DHIA.

The first memorandum "...defines clearly the respective rights and responsibilities of CALS and NeDHIA in the administration supervision and financing of the National Cooperative Dairy Herd Improvement Program of New York." The objectives of the NCDHIP within New York State are:

thereby benefiting themselves and the consumers of their products.

2. To maintain uniformity and a high standard of integrity in record keeping systems to provide authentic information to dairy farmers and give reliability to scientific studies and educational demonstrations.

3. To provide data to State Experiment Stations, CALS, ES of USDA and ARS of USDA for use in research and education, including the development of effective procedures for estimating the genetic transmitting abilities of dairy animals.

4. To provide summaries and analyses of information from participating herds to dairy farmers; to research, teaching and extension personnel; and to others as appropriate.

5. To increase the number of dairy producers participating in the NCDHIP program by demonstrating the fundamental benefits of such programs; and

6. To develop services and programs needed by dairy producers to meet the other objectives of this Memorandum of Understanding.

"This is a win-win partnership which clarifies the accountability and defines specific roles more clearly..." commented Northeast DHIA General Manager, Nelvin Empet.

What will this partnership mean for Northeast DHIA members?

The refined educational/research relationship will provide an important link between Cornell and Northeast DHIA. Research data will be reported and results can be used and brought forth to the field for use in improving the Northeast dairy herd. The "free-flow" of data and improved communication are important as Dairy Herd Improvement records grow and change to meet the ever changing needs of the Northeast dairy producer. Without the benefit of research and the communication of research ideas and results, Northeast DHIA would be at an extreme disadvantage in pursuing long range goals that benefit member dairy producers.

Additionally, research data provides the framework and benchmarks that DHIA members have come to expect from the DHIA system. Progressive Northeast dairy producers look for research advances and new ways of improving management on the farm. University research attempts to provide the answers.

The second memorandum involves Northeast DHIA and the Dairy Records Processing Laboratory at Cornell. It establishes joint ownership of software which produces the records, and provides for a greater degree of joint ownership to member farmers.

This Memorandum will establish for the first time, a joint board with equal membership of DRPL, DHIA and Cornell University. "CALS and Northeast DHIA jointly agree to form a DRPL board which shall have the responsibilities and operational authority as outlined... The DRPL board shall consist of not less than eight nor more than ten individuals, one half of whom shall be selected annually by the Dean of CALS and the other half shall be selected annually by Northeast DHIA..."

In summary, this new agreement provides more specific accountability as well as a more efficient working relationship designed to better serve the Northeast dairy farmer. Both parts of the Memorandum provide long-term stability for all parties involved. It also serves as a solid foundation to assure that the Northeast DHIA Cooperative as a whole can continue to grow and become stronger for the benefit of improving the Northeast dairy herd.

An Easier Way To Transfer DHIA Records Available

The Cornell Dairy Records Processing Center and Northeast DHIA announce the introduction of a new Standard U.S. Identification and Record in Progress Transfer Form. This form was designed by the nine U.S. Dairy Records Processing Centers. All nine centers agreed to use this standard form, which will facilitate the transfer of records when cows move between states that process their DHIA records at different centers. The Cornell Dairy Records Processing Lab has completed the programming needed to print this form, and its use will begin with the processing of reports in May. The Cornell DRPL is the first of the nine U.S. processing centers to initiate the use of this standard form.

In the past, the Cornell DRPL has printed both a lactation-in-progress transfer form and an individual cow page when a cow was coded as sold for dairy purposes. These two forms were to be forwarded to the cow's purchaser by the seller. The U.S. Standard Form will replace these two forms. It contains the current lactation-to-date credits needed by the new processing center to continue the cow's current lactation and lists all the cow's completed lactations, with the 305-day actual and ME, 365-day record (if used), and the complete lactation credits.

In addition, two "multi-animal"

Grangers To Discuss Issues At Banquet

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — More than 300 Grange members will gather Monday, May 4th at the Sheraton Inn Harrisburg to discuss issues of importance with their state legislators. This annual event is one way the Pennsylvania State Grange attempts to bring government closer to the people.

"The banquet is our way of saying thank you to the legislature for the hard work they do," said Brenda Shambaugh, Grange legislative director. "It also gives our members an ideal opportunity to discuss one-on-one the problems facing them."

Some of the issues which the Grange is supporting and will be discussed include: HB 496 Nutrient Management - This bill would establish statewide nutrient management legislation. The Grange feels legislation is needed to protect farmers and consumers alike.

HB 829 Bottle Bill - This bill would require a $.05 deposit on bottles. The legislation would encourage recycling and decrease the number of discarded bottles which can cause injury to humans and livestock.

HB 1313 Loan Forgiveness - Many of the state's colleges and universities train some of the best professionals in the country but often these students are lured out of state. This bill would give loan forgiveness for agriculture and veterinary students if they farm or practice in Pennsylvania after graduation.

HD 1492 Rural Leadership Development - This legislation gives the Department of Community Affairs the authority to establish a rural leadership training program. The purpose is to encourage development of rural community leaders by providing leadership training to citizens and advanced training to elected officials.

HB 1530 DER Agricultural Advisory Committee - Formation of such a committee would require DER to give all policies and regulations to the committee for review. This bill would ensure that DER doesn't pass policy which could effect agriculture without first consulting with the farm community.

HB 1828 Deep Mine Mediation - This compromise on Mine Subsidence Laws includes a provision that the coal company must replace water and buildings in the event of loss or pollution of the water.

SB 727 School Strikes - The Pennsylvania State Grange is supporting original language which included the use of binding arbitration in settling contract disputes between school boards and teachers.

SB 1238 Seasonal Farm Labor - The Grange is supporting amendments that would benefit farmers who use migrant workers.

SB 1505 Timber Legislation - This bill would encourage small timber harvest by discouraging high township fees.

Health Care - The Pennsylvania State Grange has recently established a committee to look into the rising cost of health care and what legislative initiatives are possible to reduce costs.

State Budget - The Grange is concerned with the lack of budgetary support given to agriculture in the Governor's proposal. They are particularly concerned with the fact that no appropriations were given to the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania.

School Bus Drivers - The Grange is seeking requirement changes so that school bus drivers don't have to receive a commercial drivers license, but still must meet certain standards for the safety of our children.

Wetlands - The Grange continues to work with officials to balance the environmental and economic concerns surrounding wetlands. If a farmer has farmed the land in the past, he/she should be allowed to continue to farm it.

Standard U.S. Transfer Request Forms are now available from the Northeast DHI Center. These forms can be filled out by DHI herd owners when they purchase cows and transfer information is not provided by the previous owner. DHI #106 has space to request transfer information for three cows from one or more processing centers. DHI #107 can be used for up to nine cows from a single processing center. Northeast DHI and the Cornell DRPL can use the information provided on the forms to assist the new owner to obtain the necessary transfer credits. There is a fee charged for this service.

Cows that move between two herds that process at the Cornell DRPL will continue to have all previous and current lactation credits transferred at no charge the first month they enter the new herd or the next month. Cows that come from herds that process at other centers can have current lactations only transferred at no charge when they enter the herd.

The Cornell Dairy Records Processing Lab has additional features available that assist dairy farmers to obtain transfer information. Herd owners can request transfers in advance for cows that they anticipate selling. The DHIA Supervisor uses a special code on the barn pages to request the transfer, and it is sent with that test day's herd reports. The herd owner then has the transfer in hand on the sale date to present to the new owner.

The Cornell DRPL has had a system in place since April of 1985 to allow all the other DRPC's free access to its computer files to obtain information electronically for cows sold for dairy. The other processing centers need only use the telephone lines for this service. The Cornell DRPL was the first to make this option available to other centers.

If you have further questions about any of these forms, or would like copies of them, please contact Diane Ledvina at the Northeast DHI Center, in NY: 1-800-344-2697; in the Northeast: 1-800-255-5344.

More Than Money From Leasing Farm

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Robert "Bob" Schaffer has a little shadow, 3-year-old Dwayne Switzer.

While Bob directs repair work to be done to a feed elevator for the heifer barn, Dwayne plays with toy trucks in the dry dirt of the equipment shed.

He builds what appears to be a trench silo.

Dwayne is out of harm's way, but close enough so that Bob can keep him in the corner of his eye.

"I'm his 'adopted' grandfather," Bob says, smiling. The two go almost everywhere together.

Bob is in his late 50s, and greying. He wears roomy dungaree overalls, rubber boots and a baseball-style cap.

Walking next to Bob, Dwayne also wears a cap. His small, bright red rubber boots scuffle in the gravel.

Bob is the landlord and Dwayne is the youngest child of renters Leonard and Marie Switzer. The farm is near Elizabethville, in northern Dauphin County's Lykens Valley.

On Tuesday, several different work crews were at the farm installing a silo, pouring cement, delivering fuel and fixing equipment while Bob, with Dwayne at his side, took time to discuss the business of renting a farm to young couples starting in the business.

The conversation covered not only the current situation, but also how he got started in farming and people and relationships which helped him.

While talking, Dawyne wandered into an adjacent half-foot-high alfalfa field. His head was down and his eyes scanned the ground.

Occasionally, he stooped to pick at something.

Meanwhile, Bob talked about the structure of the free stall heifer barn with its use of inverted roof trestles and how a former county agent had suggested it.

He said they sent away for the plans. It was built to be easily cleaned with a skid loader. He said he's been happy with it.

The ceiling on the north side is supported with inverted roof trestles and skylight panels were installed. The heifers can be moved to the front to scrape out the rear, etc.

An interruption.

Dwayne returned with an early bloomed violet, a dandalion and some other flowers clutched in his hands.

Bob knelt down and admired the collection. He asked Dwayne if the flowers were for his mother.

The young boy shook his head no and held them out and in his young English, conveyed that they were for "grandpa."

Bob again admired them and smiled.

Robert and Doris Schaffer have lived on their farm since 1958 and quit milking cows in 1987. They never had any children.

After almost 30 years of doing the milking in his 46-stall stanchion barn with just his wife and the occasional help of his brother Walter, Robert said he was ready to quit milking so strenuously.

For example, during one seven-year stretch Bob never missed one milking, he said. "That was foolish. Nobody should have to do that."

But with that in the past, Schaffer said that in considering what he was going to do with the farm and his later years, he got the idea of creating a renting-partnership arrangement with a young couple after hearing about a successful deal in Lebanon County between Ed Funk and David Weaver.

The Weaver-Funk arrangement was basically a 50-50 split of the milk check and work.

"(They) had this type agreement and I talked to them several times. They even sent me a copy of their agreement. We used that as the basis," Schaffer said.

The arrangement is basically that Schaffer takes care of the crops, feeds heifers and does general help, while the Switzers take care of the cows.

It's a similar arrangement to that of many father-child working relationships. However, the Switzers are not related.

But the tenor of the relationship between the Switzers and the Schaffers is apparently as good as, if not better than, two-generation family farming arrangements.

The Switzers own their own herd of registered Holsteins and live in the main house at the farm.

Prior to moving to the Lykens Valley area, they had rented a farm in Lancaster County and purchased their own feed, Schaffer said. Their rolling herd average then was below 16,00 pounds of milk.

Since moving to the 130-acre Schaffer farm in January 1989, the herd jumped production to a current 22,600 pounds of milk average. The 1991 end-of-the year final for last year was 20,475 pounds.

The Switzers also milk three times a day, and feed grain three times a day to help boost production.

Schaffer said he provides hay, haylage, high moisture corn and bedding, but he doesn't furnish a protein supplement.

He said he doesn't grow a lot of corn.

"Most years it's cheaper to buy it than it is to grow it yourself," he said.

The protein supplements are purchased also.

Schaffer also makes his own high-protein (22 percent) calf starter which has given him good results, he said.

Most of his hay crops are ensiled, Schaffer said, because of feed value, storage ease, and ease of handling. He does bale some hay also.

While Schaffer was readying the farm for a renter, he had to find a place to live, so that the Switzers could live in the main farm house — a large brick home.

Since the farm was originally two farms, there was a second farm house. First, Schaffer had stored grain in it. Eventually he rented it very inexpensively to a family who made repairs and fixed it up. They lived in it for 16 years.

Finally, after some remodeling and more fixing up, it is now the "retirement" house for Bob and Doris.

Every morning, Bob drives the mile or so to the farm.

In so many words, Schaffer said the way he sees the working and personal relationship with the Switzers is that he is continuing the same helping-out-the-young-couple type of business attitude which enabled him to get a start in dairying.

When Schaffer, who was "town born and raised," first bought the farm, there were 90-some acres on it that he purchased for $13,000.

Later, through an auction he purchase adjacent land for a little more than $6,000.

That was 30 years ago and Schaffer said many people told him he paid too high a price for the land.

However, at the time, he said that he had no money to actually pay for the acreage. His farming career had been broken up by a stint in the military, prior to 1958, which didn't leave him a rich man.

What he did have to offer for the land was his word, his devotion and his work.

In other words, commercial lenders wouldn't touch him.

However, Schaffer said he and the former owner had struck a deal where Schaffer could buy the farm — it would be owner-financed.

By the time the second piece of land was financed, the banks were ready to make offers, but on a condition that a mortgage on the first farm be used as collateral.

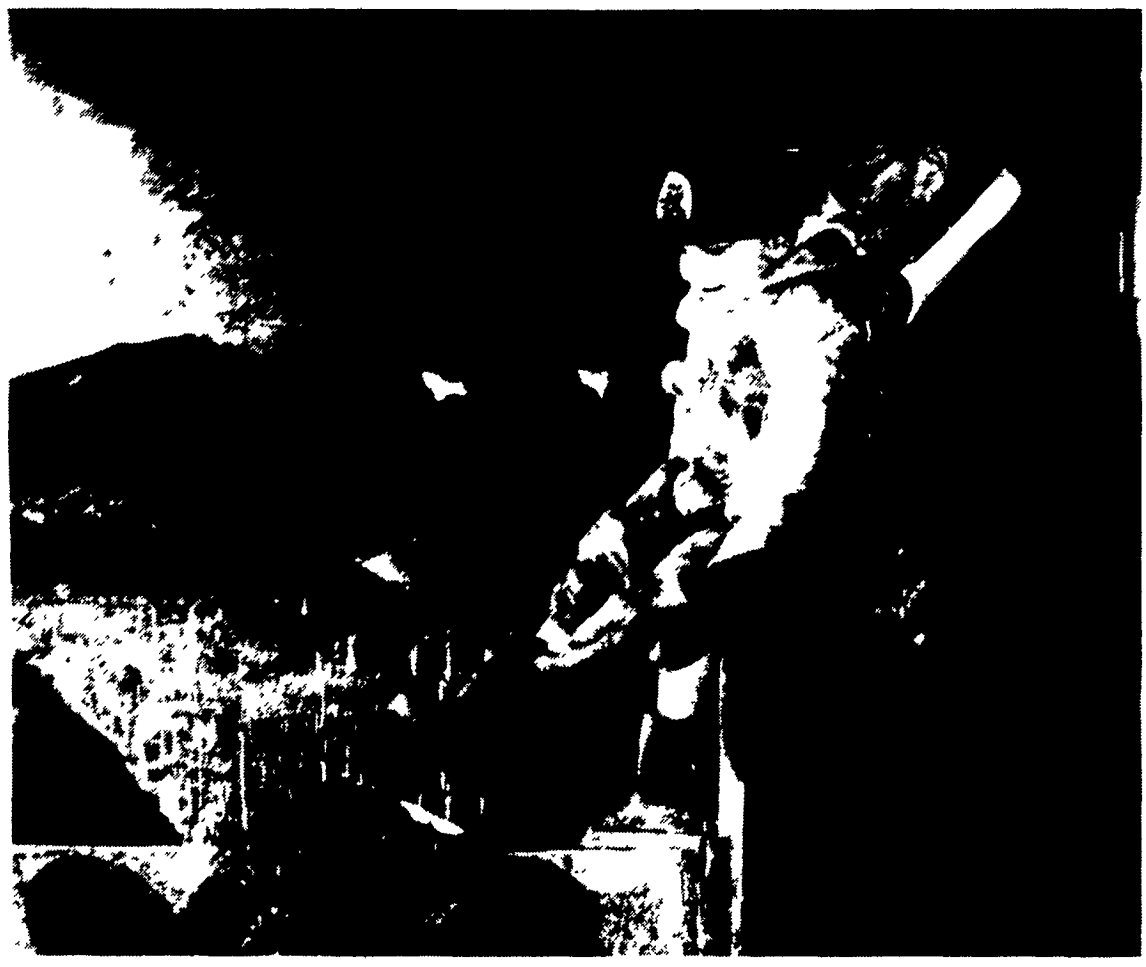
The metal plates for a third Harvestor silo are stacked in the left foreground. The Shafer farm is being rented to own by the Switzer family. The panoramic view of the Lykens valley includes Short Mountain, on the left, beyond the farm house. The mountain ridges on the right is the southern edge of the valley.

This free-stall heifer barn is unique in using inverted roof trestles for support.



Robert Shafer holds up 3-year-old sidekick Dwayne Switzer to show him calves.

In his way, Schaffer is doing the same thing for the Switzers. They don't own any machinery or equipment, but plans are that the next step is for them to purchase what Schaffer owns. Eventually, the long-range plan is for the Switzers to buy the entire farm.

What Schaffer gets from the arrangement is being able to see the farm facilities stay in use by someone who enjoys dairying. It also gives him the opportunity to stay working on the farm, even though he doesn't want to continue working with cows fulltime.

Also, when Schaffer started out, he didn't know a lot about dairying, except for what he learned from two uncles on his mother's side of the family who helped him out.

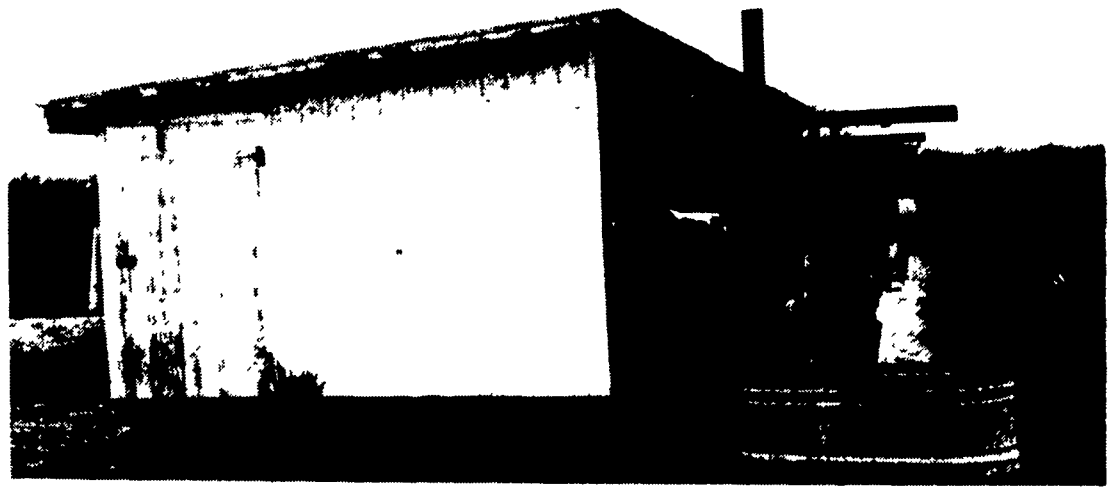
Schaffer said he learned a lot over the years through the help of others, by reading and by talking to people and going on farm tours and asking questions.

Though he said he doesn't interfere with the management of the cows, he is ready to offer any advice sought from him.

"When you (dairy farm) alone, it's tough," he said. "There's no one there to share in your successes or your disappointments."

In effect, through helping the young couple take over the land, Schaffer gets to keep the land in farming.

He also gets the company of his side-kick, Dwayne.



The south-facing calf-raising building has to be hand cleaned, but it is outfitted in the front with a gutter-scaper system, right.

Bob Shafer and Dwayne Switzer look over work being done to install an additional silo.

Breeding For Solids

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — Some Pennsylvania dairy producers are now being paid for both the solids-not-fat (SNF) and milkfat components in their milk.

This primarily affects dairy herds in the southeastern and south central areas of the state.

According to Larry Specht, Penn State Extension specialist, herdowners are now asking if they should incorporate selection for non-fat solids in their breeding program.

Non-fat solids are made up of the protein, lactose and mineral content of milk. Protein and lactose values can be determined by the use of standard infra-red equipment used by most present-day testing labs. However, most commercial laboratories do not test individual farm samples for lactose. The ash (mineral) content is usually estimated at 0.7 percent since the normal range is from 0.5 to 0.9 percent for most cows milk.

One problem that arises in selecting for SNF is that DHIA labs over most of the country do not measure and thus cannot report SNF values for individual cows and herds. Consequently, the sire and cow evaluations produced by the USDA Animal Improvement Programs Lab (AIPL) twice a year do not have SNF values.

At one time, the USDA animal evaluation programs did make available either solids-not-fat or protein values. However, by 1987 the number of cows with SNF values had fallen to less than 10 percent of the cows on test and SNF evaluations were discontinued.

While we cannot select for SNF directly, there is an economic index calculated by USDA-AIPL that will work very well. This is the Predicted Transmitting Ability for Milk, Fat and Protein Dollars. It is abbreviated to: PTA M, F, P$. This value comes very close to being a "perfect" index for ranking sires and cows on SNF values.

It is fortunate that a new development in milk pricing can be accommodated by a procedure that is already in place.

One other important point to remember is that the plan in effect in Order 4 pays for pounds of components produced rather than paying on a base price plus differentials for the percentages of a component(s) in the milk.

Sire choices need to be based on the PTA's for pounds of protein and/or other components instead of on their PTA milkfat or protein percentages.

Milk, Fat and Protein Dollars (M,F,P$) will work very well as the major criteria for decisions as to which sires to use and which cows to breed to become the mothers of the next generation.

It's Easy To Obtain EPD Information

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Many cattle farmers have started using expected progeny differences (EPDs) to select breeding stock.

EPDs are only one of many management tools being implemented to help cut costs as market competition stiffens and consumers demand leaner meat at lower prices.

EPDs can be defined as the difference in performance expected from progeny of a sire compared to progeny of another sire.

This method of sire selection is practically standard operating procedure in many registered cattle operations, but how can it benefit all cattle farmers?

"Using EPD information can be the basis for steady herd improvement," said Dr. John Hough, director of education and research at the American Polled Hereford Association.

"We're finding many cow/calf operators are requesting annual sire summaries to select bulls and/or semen to optimize the economically beneficial traits needed in their herds," Hough said. "Once EPD values and their cost-effectiveness are understood, a sire summary can be one of the most effective tools to assist in a herd improvement program."

Sire summaries are easily obtained from breed associations, which also supply them to land-grant universities and extension centers. Representatives from breed associations, county and state extension agents, and state beef cattle specialists can explain how to use the summaries. In fact, breed associations and extension specialists offer educational programs to help increase understanding of EPDs.

"If you decide to incorporate EPD information into your herd management program, it is very important you do not compare EPD information across breeds," Hough said. "EPDs can only be compared within a single breed."

Characteristics that can be selected from EPDs include birth weight, weaning weight, milk production, yearling weight, and scrotal circumference. Each EPD has been assigned an accuracy value which can help you better determine the reliability of the EPD estimates.

By incorporating EPD information into your sire selection program, you can end up with greater trait predictability from your herd and potentially greater profits from higher-quality cattle.

Dairy Couple Completes Program

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — Local dairy producers Michael and Carol Walker, District 3 winners of Milk Marketing Inc.'s Young Cooperator (MMI-YC) Leadership Conference, recently completed a three-day educational Fogram conducted for young producer participants from the MMI's eight state region. The event was held in Strongsville, Ohio—the headquarters of MMI, one of the nation's largest cooperative raw milk sùppliers.

Michael and Carol Walker were selected as YC finalists for their farming, co-op and community involvement. The Walkers manage a 310 acre Mikel Holsteins farm near Meyersdale, Penn. As MMI members, they cooperatively market the milk produced by their 72 cow Holstein herd. The Walkers are actively involved in the Grange, Atlantic Breeders Association, Agway, Somerset Rural Electric, Pennsylvania Young Farmers and their local church.

Learning at the meeting Adaptation and vision dominated the conference as key note speakers asked the Tobins and other YC winners to participate in sessions dealing with the future of their farm, cooperative, markets and industry. On the family farm front, Mike Deardorff, vice Fesident of advance marketing for Business Men's Assurance Co., encouraged members to secure a better future for both family and farm through aggressive business and financial planning.

"Review short and long term goals. Establish financial projections for your business. Also, consider yow liability exposure and review how you manage and control all policies, insurance and financial," said Deardorff, reviewing strategies for effective business planning.

On the cooperative front, Rod Carlson, MMI director of marketing and member services, discussed change as being a "constant in today's market place" and explained how MMI's recently implemented volume Ficing program responded to those changes.

"Out of the total U.S. milk pool, MMI markets only 21/2 percent or 3.8 million pounds annually. This means tbat MMI must deal with regional prices, not national," says Carlson. "...One way MMI can directly impact prices is in Class I sales. If we are going to hold Class I sales we have to hold onto large blocks of milk to maintain member Fices."

Also, the Walkers joined other 1992 YC finalists in meeting with MMI staff members to discuss the current legislative, marketing, member service and Fomotional picture; and they reviewed tips and techniques for handling their local media.

MMI is dairy cooperative owned by 6,000 dairy farm families located in an eight state Midwestem area including Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Kentucky, Maryland and West Virginia. Last year MMI marketed more than 3.9 billion pounds or 453.22 million gallons of milk.

Foraging Around

By Dr. John E. Baylor
Forage Specialist (Retired)
Penn State University

SOME GRASS GRAZING CONSIDERATIONS

I recently returned from the 1992 Forage Conference in Grand Rapids, MI sponsored by the American Forage and Grassland Council, Michigan State University and the Michigan Hay and Forage Council. Thus, in this month's column I've opted to share with you the results of two studies reported at the conference on grazing studies in the eastern U.S. These findings won't be entirely new to you, but they should be of interest and may give you a little more food for thought.

Controlled Grazing For Dairy Cows

First, let's turn to a practical economical study on grazing in Northern Michigan. Over the past several years the practice of controlled grazing for dairy cows to cut down on production costs has caught on for more and more dairymen. Last year in northern Michigan researchers worked closely with four dairymen to gather some hard dollars and cents facts on controlled grazing. Milking herds for the dairymen ranged in size from 35 to 63 cows.

In brief, here is what they reported. Actual dollar savings for the four dairymen ranged between $8,200 to over $15,000 during the grazing season, or a savings of about $2 per hundred weight of milk produced. Forage analyses of pastures averaged 24% C.P. and .74 megacal for the grazing season.

Controlled grazing, these dairymen said, resulted in higher quality feed for the animals and less stress on time and machinery, further resulting in better cow health and, in general, a better way of life. And all four dairyman plan to continue the practice and probably expand their grazing systems in the future as they get more experience.

When you look at time, depreciation, interest, and capitol cost of equipment, the researchers concluded, its no wonder that controlled grazing is catching on throughout the country.

Production And Quality Of Selected Cool-Season Grasses

But the maximum benefits of controlled or intensive grazing can be attained only by using the best pasture grasses. And, studying the responses of several grass species and varieties has been the object of one on-going research study at Penn State University. Researchers there have been evaluating fifteen varieties of three cool-season grass species-- orchardgrass, perennial ryegrass, and tall fescue for production and forage quality under intensive rotation grazing by dairy cows.

After two years of observations these researchers have determined that, while non-productive under drought conditions, the tetraploid ryegrasses were highest in quality, showing consistently about five percentage units higher digestibility than orchardgrass. But, surprisingly perhaps, despite its lower nutritional value, orchardgrass appeared to be preferred by the cows, probably due, the researchers believed, to the fact that cows in the study were more familiar with its texture and taste. Next in order of preference, they found, were the tetraploid ryegrasses, diploid ryegrasses, and finally the tall fescues.

As indicated, this is an on-going study and will continue. It does indicate, however, the differences in growth characteristics of both grass species and varieties within species--and the potential of some of the newer grass varieties under grazing conditions.

Students Hold 67th Penn State Dairy Exposition

JUDY PATTON
Union Co. Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — When the sawdust settled at the end of the Penn State Dairy Expo last Saturday, Tammy Balthaser stood first in line as All Around Grand Champion with Dave Lentz in the Reserve All Around Champion spot.

Tammy is a senior in ag business from North Creek Farm in Berks County. An award-winning member of the Dairy Products Judging Team, she plans to go into dairy promotion and marketing. Reserve Champion Dave Lentz, a junior in dairy and animal science from Lebanon, PA, was fourth high individual at the All-American in dairy cattle judging last fall.

The 67th Expo, held at the Penn State Ag Arena April 25, was the first one without color breeds. A total of 34 exhibitors competed in amateur, intermediate and professional divisions, depending on their showing experience.

Sidney Barnard was the Expo dedicatee. Sid has devoted over 35 years at Penn State to "filling a gap between the dairy farm and consumer" to get a marketable product, as he says in his own words. As a professor of food science extension, Sid has collected innumerable samples of milk and dairy products for lab analysis, conducted meetings, and written articles and papers aimed at having a good-tasting, safe product on store shelves which will sell better. He is the advisor of the Dairy Products Judging Team and helps students with projects involving milk quality.

Judging showmanship was Lisa Francisco, a 1987 dairy production graduate from Sussex County, NJ, who works for Telmark, Inc. Fitting judge William Lesher, also a 1987 graduate, is in partnership with his father in Berks County on Way-Mar Farms, a 120-cow dairy farm and bottling operation with a retail store.

In the championship classes, Tammy Balthaser was Champion Fitter and Reserve Champion Showman; Duane Stoltzfus, a senior from Morgantown, PA, was Reserve Champion Fitter; and Dave Lentz was Champion Showman.

Jodie Everly served a dual role as both the 1992 Penn State Dairy Princess and the overall Expo chairman. A prospective veterinarian, Jodie raises beef cattle and shows dairy cattle at her Butler County home farm. Her alternate princesses are sophomores Miriam Kelly, Blair County, and Shannon Peterman of Lycoming County. The Dairy Sweetheart was Emily Mills, a third grader from Port Matilda, daughter of Dr. Edward and Cynthia Mills. Dr. Mills is an assistant professor of dairy and animal science at Penn State.

In the special events contests at Expo, Dr. Lam Hood, dean of the Penn State College of Agricultural Sciences, and Pennsylvania Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff won the Celebrity Milking Contest. Michelle Davenport placed first in the Alumni Showing Contest, with Dr. Lester Griel in second. Milk Chugging (won by DTS in 1 minute 39 seconds) and Calf Dressing (won by the AZ Little Sisters for their football player costume) rounded out the events.

DAIRY EXPO BANQUET

Honored at the Saturday evening banquet as Distinguished Alumnus was Dr. David Morrow. From a Blair County farm Dr. Morrow rose to become a nationally recognized expert in animal reproduction. After graduating with high honors from Penn State in 1956, he earned DVM and Ph.D. degrees at Cornell and was a faculty member at Michigan State for 22 years. Currently he is a dairy herd health consultant and owner/operator of Arch Spring Farm in Blair County. He is a Penn State Trustee and is president of the Penn State Alumni Association.

The Outstanding Young Dairyman was Jennie Hess Brown. Since graduating in 1989, Jennie has been a York County extension agent in Gettysburg. Her duties include coordinating the 4-H dairy program and coaching the dairy judging team. She married Penn State alumnus Dale Brown.

Angie Bollinger won the William R. Davey Award for Outstanding Senior in Dairy Science. A student in the business option with a minor in extension education, Angie has been vice president of the Dairy Science Club, Dairy Princess, and chairman of several club projects as well as being in several other campus activities. She is from a Lebanon County registered Holstein farm.

The current Dairy Science Club president (and banquet emcee) Karen Fessler was the 1992 Outstanding Senior in the College of Agricultural Sciences. Karen is from a Berks County dairy farm, where she also raises sheep.

The August E. Branding Award for Outstanding Junior in the Dairy Science Club went to Dave Lentz, who was also high individual on the Penn State Dairy Judging Team. The Judging Team's Service Award winner was Charles Itle, chairman of the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show and founder of the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Judging Contest.

For the first time Robert Rumler, retired executive secretary of the national Holstein Association, native Pennsylvanian, and Penn State dairy science alumnus, presented in person the award which bears his name. The award, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, goes to the Expo show manager, who this year was Tom McCauley.

Also on behalf of PHA, Ken Raney presented an award to Tom Wiker for his work as 1991 Nittany Lion Club Fall Classic Sale chairman. A senior in dairy management from a dairy farm in Quarryville and a 1991 summer intern with PHA, Tom also received the Dairy Shrine Award.

American Dairy Science Association Scholarship winners were: Karen Fessler, Robert Davis, Lynette Goodling, Tom McCauley, Brent Baker and Todd McHenry.

4-H Public Speaking Contest Held In Somerset

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

SOMERSET (Somerset Co.) - Fifty-eight members of the county 4-H Clubs participated in the annual Public Speaking Contest held at the St. Peter's Catholic School and church hall on April 22. There were 25 in the senior division and 33 in the junior division. Serving as master of ceremonies was Robert Antram, interim director of the Somerset County Cooperative Extension Service.

Paul Will, 17, son of Dan and Kathy Will took first place with a speech about "Creativity." Citing examples from children, teenagers and adults dealing with children, Will was convincing. "I just sort of challenged the audience to broaden their mind," he said, later.

A junior at the Berlin-Brothersvalley High School and a member of the Milksquirts 4-H Club, Will says he's been in 4-H since age eight, always showing cows and pigs at the county fair. Right from the outset, Will says he's been in the thick of 4-H public speaking competitions. Twice previously he has gone to the state contest.

Will's home, a 750 acre Century Farm called the North View Farm, has a 90 head dairy herd of cows demanding of the Will's a three-times-a-day milking schedule.

Michele Countryman's in-depth speech on "Body Language" placed her second in the contest. She, too, will participate in the state contest held next August at the Pennsylvania State University.

"We all have it," declared Countryman about body language. Sure enough, her illustrations proved that everybody has unconscious body movements that to an observer are suggestive of almost anything between total boredom to keen alertness of mind.

The daughter of David and Linda Countryman, the Berlin-Brothersvalley junior, like her peer, is a member of the Milksquirts 4-H Club. From years of practice, Countryman is quite the expert on food preservation, having used it as her 4-H project. Her successful efforts found her a state winner entitled to attend the National 4-H Congress held last December in Chicago.

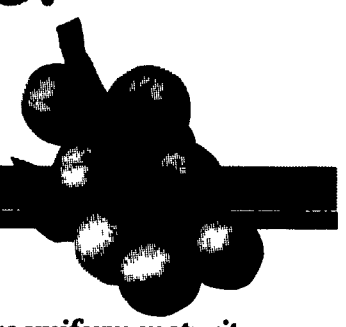
Finalists in the Somerset County Public Speaking Contest are from left, Jill Clites, Karen Rhoads, Kristen Hay, Paul Will, Michele Countryman and Christy Wysocki. Will placed first followed by Countryman in second. They will go to state competition in August at Penn State.

Other finalists in the county senior division were Jill Clites, Kristen Hay, Karen Rhoads and Christy Wysocki. Their timely topics dealt with Black Bears, Somerset County, Care of Dogs and Dead At Seventeen, which dealt with teenage drinking and driving.

Winners in the junior division were Jennifer Hosier, Susan Barbera, Debbie Black, Tessa Slifco, Lauren Lynch and Jessica Lynch.

Speeches of the semi-finalists were judged by Martha Halverson and David Antram. Prior to that, senior speech winners were selected by room judges, Lori Barndt, Mike Countryman and Roberta Antram.

Calcium Nitrate: tomato nutrition the way you want it



Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer has been earning tomato grower loyalty for more than forty years. In the field! Under weather conditions that often fail to cooperate! At harvest, when talk time is over and product promises are measured by results! Growers have found that Calcium Nitrate comes through.

Use Calcium Nitrate on your next crop. You will be pleased by the growth, yield and quality you see. The kind of profitable results achieved by tomato growers across America, season after season, because of Calcium Nitrate's unique combination of nutrients:

Nitrate nitrogen for fast response. Better timing and control. Calcium Nitrate supplies nitrate, the non-acidifying nitrogen that's readily available for plant uptake—under plastic mulch or open rows. You'll see fast, uniform response with the precise feeding and timing you need for better growth and better crop management.

Earlier, more uniform maturity. Improved yield and quality. Nitrate nitrogen gives the quick optimum response the crop needs and then "runs out." Elimination of residual nitrogen and salt problems promotes better yields, uniform maturity and harvest efficiency. One good thing leads to another when you fertilize with Calcium Nitrate.

Vital calcium: it helps your crop; helps your soil. Calcium Nitrate contains 19% water-soluble calcium. This vital nutrient, combined with nitrate nitrogen, provides tomato crop benefits both above and below the ground. Young leaves, stalks, roots and fruit must have calcium for proper development. Adequate calcium in the fruit markedly improves harvest and shipping quality. This low-salt, non-acid source of nitrate and calcium is unmatched by any other nitrate fertilizer.

Available in bag or bulk. Apply Calcium Nitrate straight or ask your dealer to include it in your tomato fertilizer. You'll be glad you did!

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

Corn Husk Dolls Preserve American Heritage

JOYCE BUPP
York County Correspondent

GROTTOES, (Virginia) — Using a crop residue that is normally tilled back into the soil, Pat Broyles creates works of art.

It's an endeavor that sends the rural Virginia woman and her family hurrying into neighboring cornfields each fall to harvest cornhusk. From the vanloads of husk-enclosed ear corn the Broyles haul to their log cabin home, Pat gathers and stores a year's worth of raw materials. After husking, the ear corn is returned to the grower.

The cornhusk creations designed by Pat Broyles' nimble fingers are not just craft items, but folk art collectibles. In fact, Pat's limited edition cornhusk Santa with Elves piece was featured as the color cover of the 1991 Christmas edition of Early American Life magazine.

Pat Broyles' career as a cornhusk folk artist began in 1982, when she read a magazine article on the traditional dolls. An aunt of Pat's husband, Steve, showed her how to make her first basic doll.

"It interested me because it was an early craft; and I love being creative with my hands," recalls this lifelong-lover of antiques. "I made a couple of dolls, did a few craft shows and I was hooked."

Pat's dolls range from the traditional bell-skirted type to lifesize, intricately-crafted ones, complete with hands and fingers made of twisted-shaped cornhusk. Lifesize dolls are dressed in vintage baby garments and shoes she acquires through auctions and antique shops, costly both in the time it takes to locate them and the expense. Other dolls wear garments sewn from vintage fabrics.

An initial part of many of the designs is dyeing the husk to the soft shades which enhance the traditional look of the dolls. Pat soaks quantities of the husks in various dyes until they reach the desired shades, then spreads them on her enclosed back porch to dry. Stored dry, in plastic bags, the husk keeps well. Before use, the husks are soaked in warm water for about 10 minutes for pliability.

Faces of the large dolls are flat husks, their soft skintone shades and facial features painted on. Customers, Pat says, often ask if the heads are made from wood.

"Fingers took me a long time to get the way I wanted," she smiles. "I'd work awhile, throw the husks down in frustration, then go back to it later and try again."

Persistence paid off for this self-described perfectionist. The hands on her large dolls, with fingers and thumb of rolled, twisted, cornhusk, look almost realistic enough to open and close.

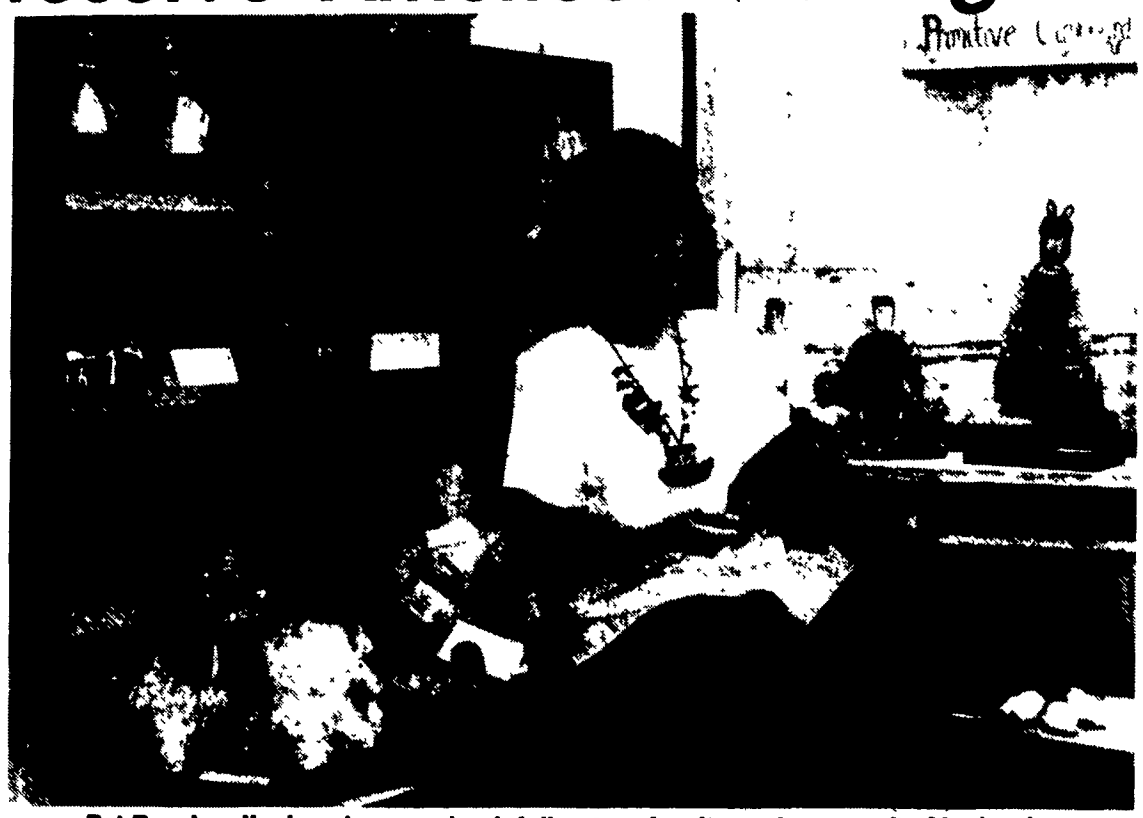
Using real hair was another challenge Pat tackled, after reading that the very early dolls had human hair. Tedious to work with, the hair must have enough length for fashioning into a style typical of the earlier era the doll represented, like braids or twisted into a bun.

"I've never seen anyone else take cornhusk to this extent," Pat admits of her passion for detail on her art pieces.

That attention to tiny detail is evident in all of Pat Broyles' work. Tiny birds and miniature packages - all of cornhusk - decorate her soft-green, shredded-cornhusk trees. Her Amish dolls each holds a pieced, handmade miniature quilt; one of the four quilt designs incorporates more than 50 tiny pieces of colored fabric. And, the numerous Santas that take shape from Pat's gifted fingers sport beards of soft, curly, white sheep fleece.

With real human hair, garbed in a vintage dress and shoes, this cornhusk doll is a unique, folk art collectible.

Cornhusk dolls, Santas and shredded husk trees are among the folk art creations Pat Broyles displays at regional craft shows.



Pat Broyles displays her cornhusk folk art on furniture pieces crafted by her husband, Steve, from salvaged, Civil War-era wood.

This limited edition cornhusk art piece, Santa with Elves, was featured on the 1991 Christmas issue cover of EARLY AMERICAN LIFE magazine.

Santas are popular with the clientele at the numerous country craft shows Pat attends. Many of her Santa ideas are gleaned from those depicted on antique Christmas postcards.

Her limited edition Santa piece with elves selected by Early American Life for its Christmas issue cover stands nearly two feet high and features a wooly-bearded cornhusk Santa, dressed in a ticking-striped cobbler's apron, sitting on a chair of antique wood. Small, red-capped elves work about a doll at his feet and on a wooden ark he holds on his lap, with one "overseeing" from the vantage point of Santa's shoulder. The piece takes Pat about two months to complete.

Both Santa's chair and the toy ark are crafted from antique wood by Steve Broyles. Broyles, an artisan with old wood, built some furniture pieces for Pat's use in her party craft show displays. Before long, customers were inquiring about purchasing the tables and cupboards.

"I love old buildings; old buildings talk to you," says Broyles, "You find burn marks, dates, carved initials on old pieces of wood. And, if there's such a thing as working at your hobby, I'm doing it."

Employed by the Museum of American Frontier Culture at Staunton, his love of old wood and old buildings is lavished on the living history structures of several working farms. The Shenandoah Valley museum depicts how the German, Scotch-Irish and English style-farms of the early settlers evolved into the American farm.

Years ago, Broyles set about salvaging wood from his father's "home place," where the old bank barn had deteriorated beyond repair.

"I thought he was crazy," laughs Pat. "He made us save every piece that had any possible reuse value. Now, we're using that wood."

The "old" furniture he creates out of vintage wood is already "distressed," even down to the chipped, cracked paint. Occasionally, some paint touchup is necessary, but even that is carefully matched and applied to retain the look of antiquity.

Old wood goes into the Santa chairs, forms the wings of the cornhusk angels and is the material from which the Noah's Ark toy in Pat's line of designs is crafted.

Steve builds the arks in two sizes and Pat crafts and colors the people and pairs of animals for the ark, from cornhusk sheep to a pair of brightly-striped snakes. One of the ark sets was presented as a gift to America's ambassador to England.

Their love of wood and antiques set the Broyles on an unusual task some years ago. With a 16-year-old son and 14-year-old daughter, their log house was being outgrown, so they purchased a log cabin to move and add to their home.

"The four of us spent a summer building a stone wall from the old chimney; we had to go to the creek and get more rocks. The kids helped mix mortar," relates Steve. "We took down and numbered each log, ended up hewing more logs and putting to use some of the old tools I collect."

That addition eventually became Pat's cornhusk art studio, where the fireplace and old logs enhance her historic designs. She often asks their children to critique the cornhusk art she creates there, and finds considerable help in their suggestions and input.

"Cornhusk dolls started with the Indians," explains Pat. "They were the only kind of dolls their children had. Cornhusk was for all sorts of things, like roping and baskets. The settlers learned from them, and made clotheslines, rugs, brooms, all from cornhusk."

Pat and Steve take their shared display to several museum-related craft shows and she often demonstrates crafting with cornhusk. Most shows on their schedule are in northern Maryland and southern Pennsylvania, including Mercer Museum Folk Fest at Doylestown, an annual show at Valley Forge, Franklin and Marshall College in Lancaster and the York County Crossroads exhibit.

"You have to find your niche," says Pat, now exploring marketing methods requiring less time away than shows. A few exclusive galleries handle her work, including the Woodrow Wilson Museum at Staunton, and a color brochure facilitates mail orders. A shared arts-crafts shop with other artisans is a future possibility.

Recently, the family purchased an 1860s stone and frame house not far from their present home,

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

My husband and I took a 10-day trip South last month. We visited children in Georgia and a child in Virginia. And, it happened that a fourth child was in the area too. So, we had a nice Easter together.

The long auto trip is not to my liking but it is a necessary part of the vacation. There are so many preparations prior to the trip. To take summer clothes or not? Their peas are already blooming and mine are just coming up.

Who will tend our cats — especially now that we have four kittens? They were born in a very big, deep cardboard box and were five weeks old before they managed to climb out. The one is so curious and keeps falling off our back porch.

As I love to bake, I make different kinds of cakes several times a week. Then I share some with our son and his family. As my husband buys apples by the half-bushel, they are often one ingredient in the cakes.

We've had our new lawn landscaped by a professional service. There are two big maple trees in the front yard and a lot of shrubbery in the corners and around some big rocks. I had already put in lilies, peonies, and other perennials. My saffron bulbs had to be moved and some of them were destroyed by their rototiller.

Soon I will have fresh cut flowers on the table every day. Last Sunday some visitors were impressed by a bouquet of big, white daffodils and blue hyacinths in a green vase. I do like to work with flowers.

Farm Vacation Guide Available

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With summer vacations on the way, families looking for something new and different may want to consider a farm vacation.

"A working farm is a wonderful place for a family to spend their vacation time," State Agricultural Secretary Boyd E. Wolff said. "In addition to the scenic beauty many farms offer, visitors can learn more about Pennsylvania agriculture, our number one industry."

The 1992 Pennsylvania Farm Vacation Guide, now available from the Department of Agriculture, lists the names and a brief description about farms that accommodate tourists.

Twenty-six vacation farms located throughout Pennsylvania offer activities such as swimming and hiking, horseback riding and pony rides, volleyball and horseshoes, and hunting and fishing. The hosts often encourage visitors to learn about their farm operation and help feed the small animals.

Some of the farms are open all year, offering winter activities like ice skating, cross country skiing, tobogganing and sleigh rides.

Individual accommodations and rates vary from farm to farm. Guests will find rooms in old restored farmhouses and colonial mansions, or rustic cabins and primitive camping. Homestyle country cooking is often part of the vacation package.

and plan to refurbish it, including the open staircase and four fireplaces. with their shared love of history, old buildings and craftsmanship, the Broyles' excitement with this soon-to-be home is evident.

Friends often tell the Broyles they were born 100 years too late. The couple, however, has found a shared way to adapt to that love of old things by restoring and preserving part of America's heritage.

"We're losing a lot of our traditional crafts because people aren't willing to put that much time into something," worries Pat. "I'm not a mass-producer kind of person.

"Cornhusk dolls were not originally collectibles, they were for children to play with, and were eventually swept up in the dust pan," Pat relates. "There are a lot of cornhusk dolls in museums, though, that someone did take care of and save. I want to make mine to last."

Information on Cornhusk Folk Art Figures is available from Pat Broyles, Route 1, Box 200, Grottoes, Virginia 24441. Her brochure is available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Be organized. Plan ahead. Design layout, decide on varieties, order in advance and have your ground prepared for an early start.

Right. Sounds great in the gardening advice books. Just doesn't always happen exactly that way for us charter members of Procrastinators of America. Well, I would be a charter member if I'd gotten around to joining.

Not that there wasn't some planning ahead.

A faded "sticky" note (now there are glue sticks that make any paper a sticky note) on the side of the cupboard next to the kitchen sink lists "to do" reminders gleaned from last year's season: plant purple cauliflower instead of worm-prone broccoli . . . share pansy plants with Catherine . . . save some gladiolius bulbs to follow a row of early onions.

And the stack of seed catalogs traveled along north to the hunting cabin on at least two separate occasions - and returned unstudied. Too many birds to watch, too many jigsaw puzzles to piece together, too many card games to play with the kids, too many trails to ski.

But on a glorious, sunny, breeze-stroked April afternoon, no notes, no planning, no layout, no orders, matters. Spring's gladness beckons from beyond the storm door glass and I burst the shackles of computer and calculator on the inside for the beautiful, blessed outside.

Earlier, the younger Farmer had plowed, then disked, my garden space, a slightly trapezoidal-shaped plot in the corner of a field just beyond the lawn. It's trapezoidal for the same reason I inherited it for the garden - an electric-line pole long ago planted there.

The pole complicates working the small corner with the large field equipment, and always causes a few canyon-like furrows to remain near its base, passable with the big plow, but not the wider disk. Intent on smoothing them for planting, I tackle the plot with garden tractor and the mini-harrow the Farmer devised for it, after my pleas for some garden-size piece of tillage equipment.

After only a few passes with the mini-harrow, I manage to bury the mower deck in loose soil. The tractor slides into a furrow canyon as I attempt to straddle and smooth a major gully. Reverse gear and hand pushing buries it only deeper. I trudge back to the house disgusted; no gardening today.

Rescue arrives promptly in the form of Scott, our work/study high school senior, who breaks from manure hauling to retrieve a tow chain from the shop. We pull the garden tractor out - with the three-wheeler cycle.

Yeah, it looks silly. But it works.

The gorgeous gardening afternoon saved, I poke onions in the ground, drop Sugar Snap pea seeds in a row, almost plant the glad bulbs I'm storing for neighbor Ann instead of my own, and mark it all with labels and sticks until the rows begin to show.

But where are the Little Marvel peas I also planned to plant? Why didn't I buy more onion sets? And - what can I do to alleviate maneuvering around this pole?

Next day the Little Marvel peas turn up - in the plastic seed-store container where they'd been all along. Onion sets go on the errand-run list. But the pole problem nags on.

Asparagus! That's it.

For years, I've wanted an asparagus patch. Two decades ago I tried only to have it accidentally tilled out by the Farmer, who was thoughtfully trying to help and didn't know I'd already planted the roots.

Asparagus needs a good rich bed of soil that will be left alone for years. The awkward corner in front of the pole is where the calf-pen manure I use for mulch/compost is dumped year after year. You could almost sprout a dead stick in that soil. Perfect for asparagus and no tilling around the pole.

And, behind the asparagus, I'll extend the raspberry row with few more plants. Maybe some red or yellow ones for variety.

Sure, this could all have been planned months ago, with catalogs and diagram paper. But it takes the embarrassment of being yanked from the garden with a motorcycle to get some of us in gear.

Now, if I can just find some hybrid asparagus roots . . .

Macho Recipes

When it comes to naming your husband's favorite recipe, most wives found it difficult. Several wrote that their husbands have lots of favorite recipes. Some sent recipes for their husbands' favorite meal.

I guess this means that the way to a man's heart is through cooking. According to a Pennsylvania Dutch proverb: "Kissin' don't last. Cookin' do."

Perhaps, you should try both 'cookin' and 'kissin' the next time you serve your husband's favorite recipe.

WACKY CAKE

3 cups flour
2 cups sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
6 tablespoons cocoa
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup oil
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 teaspoons vanilla
2 cups cold water

Place all ingredients in a large bowl. Mix thoroughly and pour into 9x13-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes.

Creamy Chocolate Icing:
½ cup shortening
½ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 cups confectioners' sugar
¾ cup cocoa
2 tablespoon milk

Place ingredients into bowl and mix thoroughly. Add more milk if icing is too stiff.

Contributor writes: This is my husband, Raymond's, favorite cake. He loves chocolate and baked goodies so there are never too many chocolate cakes.

POOR MAN'S STEAK

1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 onion, chopped
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can water

Mix ground beef, crumbs, milk, salt, pepper, and onion and press into cookie sheet. Chill overnight. Cut into squares, roll in flour, and brown in skillet. Place pieces into roaster. Cover with 1 can mushroom soup mixed with 1 can water. Bake covered in 300 degree oven for 1½ hours. Uncover during the last 10 to 15 minutes so meat browns lightly.

CHICKEN MARSALA

4 to 8 boned and skinned chicken breasts
Italian crumbs to coat
¼ cup milk or 1 egg, beaten
½ green pepper, diced
1 small white onion, chopped
½ cup mushrooms, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons lemon juice
½ to 1 cup marsala wine

Heat large skillet until hot. Melt 2 tablespoons olive oil and 2 tablespoons margarine.

Dip cleaned chicken in milk or egg then dip into crumbs. Brown several minutes on each side. Remove from skillet.

Brown green pepper and onion. Add garlic and lemon juice. Add wine. Return chicken to skillet and simmer slowly, about 30 to 45 minutes, or bake at 325 degrees in oven for 30 to 45 minutes.

Add salt and pepper to taste. Serve over rice.

Contributor writes: My husband likes a combination of recipes. We recently served Chicken Marsala, Layered Salad, Pudding Fruit Salad, and Black Bottom Custard Pie to guests and received lots of compliments. My husband made the dessert. (Recipes included).

We recently moved to Harford County, Maryland, where we live in a new log cabin built the old-fashioned way.

SPICY PEACH SHORTCAKE

Shortcake:
1¼ cups flour
⅓ cup dark brown sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon allspice
½ cup butter
1 cup milk

Custard:
⅔ cup sugar
¼ cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk
2 eggs, beaten
2 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ teaspoon almond extract
4 cups sliced fresh peaches, sweetened, or 30-ounces frozen sliced peaches, thawed and drained.

For shortcake, preheat oven to 450 degrees. Combine flour, brown sugar, baking powder, cinnamon, salt, nutmeg, and allspice in a large bowl. Cut in butter until mixture resembles small peas. Stir in milk just until blended. Turn into 1 9-inch buttered round cake pan. Bake 20 to 25 minutes. Cool in pan or wire rack 5 minutes. Turn onto rack and cool completely.

For custard, combine sugar, flour, and salt in a 2-quart heavy saucepan. Blend in milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture boils. Boil and stir 1 minute; stir a small amount of hot mixture into eggs. Return all to saucepan. Cook over low heat 1 minute. Stir in butter. Cool slightly. Stir in vanilla and almond extracts, cover and cool.

To serve, split shortcake in half horizontally. Place bottom half on serving plate, spread about 1½ cups custard on bottom half. Cover with top half of cake; top with remaining custard. Arrange peaches on top. Spoon remaining peaches over each serving.

Those entering the contest must submit their entries, in a disposable container, to the Bake Shop between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. on May 15, or between 9 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. on May 16.

Events include a Rhubarb Pie Throw, Rhubarb Arcade, Rhubarb Race Car Derby, and plenty of food.

Here's a rhubarb recipe to get you in the mood to celebrate the traditional Pennsylvania Dutch vegetable that is harvested throughout late spring and early summer. The recipe, from Anna Mary Wenger, appears in the Hammer Creek Mennonite Church cookbook.

FRENCH RHUBARB PIE

1 8-inch unbaked pie shell
1 egg, beaten
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups rhubarb

Crumbs:
¼ cup flour
½ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup butter

Cut rhubarb into small pieces and add remaining ingredients. Stir well and pour into an 8-inch unbaked pie shell. Top with crumbs. Combine flour, brown sugar, and butter. Rub together to make crumbs. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes and continue baking at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until rhubarb is soft when pricked with a fork.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Potatoes are certainly a prominent part of our diet and always have been, as in "meat and potatoes . . ." Furthermore, there are many ways to prepare tham that make "the spud" popular with most everyone.

This week's column features the best ways to microwave the potato. To prepare whole potatoes, scrub oval potatoes of similar size. Pierce each one to allow steam to escape, or cut into one-inch pieces.

To microwave, arrange potatoes about two inches apart in a circle in the microwave. For crisper potato skins, sprinkle each dampened potato with salt. Microwave potatoes uncovered on high (100 percent) until tender, 11 to 13 minutes. Let stand five minutes. Potatoes hold their heat well.

To serve, add margarine or butter, salt and pepper. Season with bay leaf, caraway seed, dill, mint, poppy seed or sage. Top whole potatoes with seasoned sour cream or yogurt.

NEW POTATOES WITH ONIONS

¼ cup water
½ teaspoon salt
10 to 14 small new potatoes
2 tablespoons margarine or butter
½ teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
Dash of dried dill weed
1 green onion, chopped

Prepare potatoes as directed. Place water, salt and potatoes in two-quart casserole. Cover tightly and microwave on high (100 percent) five minutes; stir. Cover and microwave until tender four to six minutes longer; drain.

Mix remaining ingredients except onion in one-cup measure. Microwave uncovered on high (100 percent) until bubbly, about one minute; stir in onion. Pour mixture over potatoes.

Always remember, vegetables with skins or shells need to be partially pared or pricked in several places to allow steam to escape to prevent bursting while microwaving. Cooking such foods as potatoes also illustrates an important microwave principle - cooking time increases as the number of potatoes increases. Choose vegetables of similar size for best results.

SWEET POTATOES

Wash sweet potatoes of similar size but do not pare. Pierce potatoes to allow steam to escape.

To microwave, arrange potatoes about two inches apart in circle on paper towel in microwave. Microwave uncovered on high (100 percent) until tender when pierced with fork, 8 to 10 minutes. Let stand five minutes. To serve - add margarine or butter, salt and pepper . . . season with cinnamon, cloves or ginger.

PINEAPPLE-NUT SWEET POTATOES

1 can (18 oz.) vacuum packed sweet potatoes, drained
¾ teaspoon salt
1 can (8¼ oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
¼ cup coarsely chopped nuts
1 tablespoon packed brown sugar
1 cup miniature marshmallows
½ teaspoon nutmeg

Layer sweet potatoes, salt, pineapple, nuts, brown sugar and ½ cup of the marshmallows in 1½ -quart casserole. Cover tightly and microwave on high (100 percent) until hot, five to seven minutes.

Sprinkle with remaining marshmallows. Microwave uncovered until marshmallows are puffed, about one minute longer. Sprinkle with nutmeg.

ORANGE SWEET POTATOES

1 can vacuum packed sweet potatoes, drained
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup orange marmalade

Place potatoes in one-quart casserole. Sprinkle with salt; spoon marmalade on potatoes. Cover loosely and microwave on high (100 percent) four minutes; stir and spoon marmalade on potatoes. Cover and microwave until hot, one to two minutes longer; stir.

FOR THE KIDS TO MAKE ROSY APPLES

Core four large baking apples. Pare skin on top half of each apple in petal design if desired; place upright in individual baking dish or 10-ounce custard cup. Fill center of each with one tablespoon cinnamon candies and top with about one tablespoon packed brown sugar, pushing firmly into core. Microwave uncovered on high (100 percent) until tender when pierced with fork, four to six minutes. Serve with cream.

Thanks to Mrs. Lawrence Petet, Hollsopple, and to Pat Pfleegor for sending recipes. Also thanks to Dottie Yautz, Easton, for sending a recipe for microwave apple butter, which she said is easier and faster than other recipes.

Apple Butter

4 quarts apples
2 quarts apple cider
2 cups sugar
2 cups dark corn syrup
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Boil cider until reduced to 1 quart. Pare the apples and slice thin. Put the apples into the cider and cook very slowly, stirring frequently, until it begins to thicken. Add sugar, syrup, and cinnamon, and continue to cook until thick enough to spread when cooled.

Apple Butter

16 cups unsweetened applesauce
2 cups brown sugar
6 cups white sugar
1 cup vinegar
3 tablespoons cinnamon
1 tablespoon allspice

Combine ingredients in a granite roasting pan or stainless steel kettle. Bake at 350 degrees for 3 to 4 hours, until thick and brown. Stir one time during the first 2 hours and every 30 minutes during the remaining time.

Although this recipe is for the oven, it can be done in a slow cooker for a longer period of cooking time. Very delicious flavor!

What's New In Major Appliances

If you have not shopped for a washer, dryer, dishwasher, refrigerator, range or microwave oven recently, you may be surprised at the wide variety of models, features and options. Consumers have sent a strong message to appliance manufacturers for appliances that accommodate their lifestyles. In addition to getting the job done, appliances should be convenient to clean and use, energy efficient, stylish, and offer increased value and quality.

To help you become familiar with some of the choices in major appliances, here is a look at some of the top trends.

While each appliance category has its own special set of trends, some trends encompass all appliances. These include: increased emphasis on appearance, more appliances with electronic touch controls, and improved energy efficiency.

Washers And Dryers

One of the biggest trends is installing laundry appliances in a location closer to the active living areas of the home. No longer are these appliances relegated to the basement. They are now found in or just off the kitchen or bath, near the bedrooms and even in a closet.

Hand-in-hand with this trend is the emergence of full-sized stacked laundry equipment. With the dryer placed over the washer, these appliances can be installed in places laundry equipment has never gone before. Convenience is another trend, especially with more family members pitching in to do the laundry. Pre-programmed wash and dry cycles, self-clean washer filters, bleach and fabric softener dispensers, dryers that automatically shut off when the clothes are dry and larger door openings for easy access all play a role in making the appliances easier to use for all family members.

Dishwashers

Improved washing action, better filters and food disposers have made pre-rinsing the dishes a relic of the past. To boost cleaning power when the water temperature may not be 140 degrees F, many dishwashers offer water heating options. With the help of the heating element in the bottom of the dishwasher, the proper water temperature is insured for best cleaning and drying results.

Since the kitchen is a favorite gathering place for both family and friends, quiet dishwasher operation is gaining importance.

Refrigerators

Consumers' number one wish is flexible storage space. This challenge is being met with sturdy, adjustable shelves that can be positioned to accommodate items of varying size. Adjustable deep door bins can now hold a gallon of milk or a 6-pack of cans. A few top-of-the line refrigerators offer "easy access" compartments in the door so heavily used items like milk and juice are convenient to get. Sealed meat/cheese drawers and humidity controlled crispers keep foods fresher longer.

Automatic ice makers eliminate the chore of someone being responsible for filling the ice cube trays. Some refrigerators offer the choice of ice cubes or crushed ice. Through-the-door ice and water is gaining in popularity.

Ranges

New technologies have emerged in recent years providing some very exciting alternatives to basic gas burners and coil electric elements. Here is a brief overview of some of the newer options.

* Ceramic glass cooktops feature high wattage electric coils under black ceramic glass which provides much better performance than the white glass cooktops of the past.

* Halogen cooktops are a ceramic glass cooktop which combines coil elements and one or two special halogen elements (vacuum-sealed quartz glass tubes filled with halogen gas). Halogen elements glow almost instantly when turned on and, depending on the wattage, may provide quicker heat up times than ceramic cooktops.

* Solid elements feature cast iron disks sealed to the cooking surface so there are no drip bowls to clean. Sealed gas burners are easy to clean since they are sealed into the cooktop so boil-overs will not seep underneath. This option provides many of the benefits of gas cooking, plus more contemporary styling.

One of the features consumer want most is easier cleaning. This is accomplished by removable oven doors, lift-up/off cooktops, removable control knobs, porcelain drip bowls, anodized gas burners and raised edge cooktops. The most hated chore of cleaning the oven is even relatively painless with a self-cleaning oven which reduces food soil to ashes that are easily wiped out. A common misconception is that a self-clean cycle is expensive to operate. Surprisingly, it ranges from about 25 cents for gas ovens to about 40 cents for electric.

New Trends In Drapery Hardware

New developments in curtain and drapery hardware have created a starring role for items that were once strictly part of the supporting cast. Rods, swagholders and tie backs are making strong decorative statements in finishes that range from cast iron to brass to faux marble. Avant-garde motifs, such as spears, fleur-de-lis and exaggerated nuts and bolts, can change the personality of traditional window treatments.

Other innovations include hardware that is designed to enhance the fabric, shaping it in ways that look complicated but are really simple. One example is a swagholder with a removable center plug that can be used to create a decorative pouf or a flat rosette. It can also double as a tieback for a conventional drapery treatment. Another is a pole with rings at either end that transforms a length of fabric into a swag and jabot treatment. Even traditional curtain rods are undergoing changes. Innovations here include end-snap brackets for easy installation and transparent rods especially for shear curtains.

Life With Berks County Little Miss Rachel Hartman

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

HAMBURG (BERKS CO.) — Rachel Hartman is going to miss not being Berks County's Little Miss Dairy Princess when she relinquishes the crown May 9 to another little girl.

It's a job the 6-year-old has thoroughly enjoyed, indulging an uncanny natural talent for standing up in front of an audience. She doesn't just say a few words, Rachel usually sings — without accompaniment — one of two songs she made up about the glories of cows.

Recently, she walked jauntily up to the stage at the recent Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club recognition banquet in Shartlesville to sing this song:

In the summer when we play
The cows are outside eating hay
They drink water from the spring
But they don't say anything.
Then at night when they come in
To the barn you hear them sing
As they're milked they say moo, moo
That means milk is good for you.

Her singing always brings a hearty applause, along with a few "Ahhhs."

Rachel just smiles and walks off, not embarrassed or haughty.

Rachel made up a special "cow cheer" for the Dairy Princess pageant last year. It was original, and she recited it with such poise that she simply charmed the judges.

Sometimes, at functions, she tells jokes instead of singing a song. One of her favorite jokes is "What do cows do for entertainment?

The answer: "They go to the 'moovies.'"

"I have a lot of jokes," she said.

And where does she get them?

"I make them up in the car on the way to the functions," she said.

Rachel, a first-grader at Tilden Elementary, near Hamburg, is the eldest of three daughters of Bruce and Polly Hartman. Her sisters are Paige, 15 months, and Tiffany, 2.

On their 87-acre farm, the Hartmans milk 50 Holsteins, some of Someday, when Rachel is old enough, she may help out on the farm by driving a tractor. But for now, Rachel just gets to sit on one from time to time. Behind her are some of the cows in her father's 55-head Holstein herd.

One of Rachel's favorite toys is the miniature John Deere tractor. Rachel spends a lot of her free time playing with her sisters, Tiffany, 2, and Paige, 15 months.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

KISSEL HILL (Lancaster Co.) — "What you learn today is not hogwash," Sue Pfautz told pupils at Kissel Hill Elementary School. Sue went to the school to tell the children about swine.

Most of the children were surprised to learn that swine is a name for pig.

Sue and her pet pig, Harry, told the children about pigs and all the stuff children have because of pigs.

"Pigs give us coats, pocket books, shaving cream, glue, buttons, chewing gum," Sue said.

"Chewing gum?" the students murmured. "Ugh!"

It didn't sound very appealing to chew gum made from a dirty pig.

Of course, chewing gum is not made from a dirty pig. In fact, part of a pig helps to keep you clean. It's pig lard that is used to make soap.

Sue said, "The next time your mother asks if you washed your hands, you can tell her, 'I washed them with pig lard.'"

The children learned that a pig helps people with medical problems. A pig's heart valve is used to repair people's heart. And pigskin is used when people are badly burned.

which are registered.

Neither Rachel nor her sisters are old enough to help extensively on the farm yet. And her dad doesn't want to rush it.

"I had some farm accidents when I was a kid," he says, watching his three youngsters cavort in the yard beside their home. "She's only a kid once; let her be a kid."

But Rachel does have a special chore of which she is immensely proud. She gets to provide some of the care of the four calves, whose tongues tickle her hands when she feeds them hay.

"When she gets older, if she wants to show animals, she can," her dad said. "But that's up to her. We're not going to push her."

In the meantime, Rachel is also busy with junior choir at St. Paul's UCC in Kutztown and Brownies, as well as attending the many functions throughout the year which call for the attendance of the dairy princesses.

At these times, Rachel can see her special friend, Kelly Gelsinger, the Berks County Dairy Princess, who Rachel says is the neatest person she's met while being an ambassador for milk."

In one of Kelly's last appearances, she came to Rachel's school on March 18, did her magic-show presentation about the benefits of milk, and went room-to-room with Rachel proclaiming the same message.

That was a day Rachel will remember

"She was like a superstar," said Bruce about the attention shed on Rachel. "Everyone loved her."

Berks County's Little Miss Dairy Princess Rachel Hartman, 6, of Hamburg, feeds one of the calves on her farm.

Burnside Festival Highlights Barn Raising

BETHLEHEM (Lehigh Co.) — Burnside Plantation's Barn Raising Festival promises to be one of the most rewarding tasks in which volunteers will participate and the most dramatic, historic event of this decade that attenders will witness.

Scheduled for Saturday, May 16 and Sunday, May 17, the Barn Raising Festival will help realize a long range goal set by Burnside Plantation to become a living history farm museum where visitors can experience firsthand, the pre-industrial agricultural life of the Moravian community between 1748 and 1848.

Once the barn is finished, it will be used for processing and storing crops and housing equipment and animals. It will also serve as a resource for area civic and educational organizations, and make available unique resources for study and research.

Rachel has a natural gymnasium in her yard — a hill for tumbling and doing cartwheels.

To raise the barn, volunteers are needed to serve as post guides, and on the rope crew, lift crew and pegging crew. Post guides will monitor the progress of the post/sill alignment during the early stages of the lift and prevent the posts from "kicking out" while the rope crew will assist in the later stages. Lift crew volunteers will lift by hand or man pikes of varying lengths. Pegging crew volunteers need to be agile as they will be checking and adjusting the alignment between timbers and driving the pegs into place.

Other highlights of the Burnside Barn Raising Festival include craft displays, food and entertainment.

About 40 crafts people are expected to be featured at the festival selling and demonstrating wood carving, pottery, weaving, spinning, quilting, blacksmithing, rug making, frakturs, needlework, embroidery, primitives, basket making, herbs, straw hat weaving, furniture making and wood graining.

A variety of foods from chicken barbecue to roast pig and apple dumplings to strawberry shortcake will be sold.

Saturday's entertainment will begin at 1 p.m. with a performance by Jens and Brandywine Friends. The group's repertoire includes some Appalachian and bluegrass fiddle tunes, country tunes, nostalgic melodies and new songs. At 2 p.m. Bruce Gaston takes the stage.

On Saturday night, activities will culminate with The Fresh Vegetables calling for the square dance which will run from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. The event requires a $5 per person, admission. Music, food and drinks will be served.

Sunday's performers will be Roy Justice with his minstrel, storytelling and music program at noon, and Bonnie O'Donnel at 1 p.m.

Lectures provided by the Heartland Guild of Craftsmen from Fleetwood, Pa., include "Pennsylvania German Folk Art" on Saturday, May 16 at 3 p.m., and "500 Years of Design" on Sunday, May 17, at 2 p.m.

Children's activities such as potato printing, barn-bent making, a feather or walnut relay race, sack races, a water relay race and a Maypole, are provided by the Junior League of the Lehigh Valley.

Festival admission fees of $5 per family, $2 per individual and $1 for children under 12 years of age will be charged. Festival operating hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. both days.

For more information call Burnside Plantation at (215) 868-5044.

Proper lime application can increase your dry weather yield

You can't control the weather, but you can increase your dry weather yield by controlling soil fertility with proper lime application. Fall and early winter lime application corrects soil pH, restores vital nutrients, and makes your fertilizer more effective in preparation for spring planting.

York County Holds Dairy Princess Pageant

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — Shannon Doll is the new York County dairy princess, crowned during pageant ceremonies April 25 at the York 4-H Center.

The daughter of Bernell and Joanne Doll, Brodbecks R1, Shannon is a senior at Southwestern High School. She is enrolled in the diversified occupations curriculum and employed at the Golden Corral restaurant in Hanover. Shannon's future plans include pursuing an agriculture-related degree at Penn State.

A 4-H dairy club member for 10 years, Shannon owns two Ayrshires in the family's 70-head mixed herd, and also exhibits several Holsteins. She has participated in both 4-H and Holstein dairy bowl competitions as a member of York County's dairy bowl team.

For her dairy promotion skit, Shannon teamed with a puppet named Ernie. Asked by program emcee Ralph McGregor to name her promotion priority, Shannon chose visiting day care and elementary school-age youngsters, because she especially enjoys "talking with little kids."

Eight-year-old Janet York was selected the York dairy miss. Janet is the daughter of Kathy and Jerry Yohe, York R10, and a third-grade student at York New Salem Elementary School.

Four dairy miss contestants were named as alternates. Stormi Greek, 8, is the daughter of Bonnie and Leonard Greek, Delta R2, and a third-grade student at Clearview Elementary School. Beth Haberland, 7, is the daughter of Diane and Ted Haberland, Thomasville R1, and a first-grade student at Paradise Elementary School.

Alternate Raechel Kilgore, 7, is the daughter of Pam and Doug Kilgore, Airville R2, and a first-grade student at Clearview Elementary School. Jessica Sprenkle, 6, is the daughter of Kathy and Jonathan Sprenkle, York R28, and a kindergarten student at Lincolnway Elementary School.

In a tearful farewell, retiring princess Penny Jordan reviewed highlights of her reign and encouraged dairy producers not to "give up" on the milk production industry.

Judges for the pageant were Jayne Hess, Gettysburg, the reigining Adams County dairy princess', Carol Druck Tipton, Windsor, a former York dairy princess; and John Weaver, York Farm Credit. Entertainment was provided by magician Dave Rojahn.

Pig Goes To School

things the children learned is that ham, which is made from pig meat, is 30 percent leaner than 10 years ago.

Sue told them that pigs used for breeding stock are given first and last names to keep track of the best traits and carry them on from generation to generation.

To help the owners identify pigs, the pigs' ears are notched. Depending where the notches appear on a pig's ear, they signify a specific number.

Teen age girl pigs are called gilts. Gestation means the pig is pregnant. It takes 3 months, 3 weeks, and 3 days until the piglets are born.

When the piglets are born, they weigh about 3 pounds. The pigs like to be kept very warm so the farmer installs a heat lamp above the piglets to keep them a toasty 90 to 95 degrees.

Sue showed the children a video of pigs growing up at a farm. The students laughed as the pigs played "King of the Mountain" by climbing up and down their fat mother's stomach.

When the piglets are 4 to 5 weeks old, they are weaned from mother's milk and are given pellets to eat.

The farmers have a hospital bed for runts of the litter or if they are hurt. "This gives a pig a rest away from all the commotion," Sue said.

Many funny sayings are related to a pig.

Perhaps, when you were a toddler, your mother said, "Can you wiggle your piggy toes?"

Teachers believe that some of their students are "real hams," and they hope students will go "whole hog" over their homework.

Grassland FFA Commodity Team Earns State Recognition

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The average farmer couldn't score as well on a new statewide test that members of the Grassland FFA at Garden Spot High School passed with flying colors.

From last October to December, twice a week, six members of a special Commodity Marketing Team were hunched over a data network terminal, on-line with the Chicago Board of Trade. Pencils ready, they participated in several mock trading sessions — purchasing various commodities such as wheat, soybeans, live cattle, corn, hogs — and afterward were tested on their ability by Penn State.

The team came out on top, placing first in a new annual statewide competition which judged them on their mathematical and marketing abilities. They team was awarded a $300 scholarship to be divided among team members and a plaque for the school.

The award comes in light of Penn State's effort to accelerate marketing and mathematics tools in the ag curriculum.

"We're trying to promote this as an activity with great emphasis in the state on trying to encourage and integrate academics into the program," said Dr. Thomas H. Bruening, of the Penn State Department of Agricultural and Extension Education, who presented the award last week.

Bruening said that the program "is a great way to integrate mathematical concepts into the ag education curriculum, along with marketing. The average farmer would have trouble competing well on this test, it's that difficult."

As a team, individual members were assigned certain responsibilities. Those included looking at current trends in the marketplace and, as part of the class, to "discuss what we knew about the commodity and the trends, what we thought would be the best option that day," said Shelly Ogline, a member of the team.

The senior class project allocated different commodities to individual team members.

Shelly said, many times, the decisions were "gut-level," and prices fluctuated widely on many items. "I followed soybeans," she said. "Prices were very iffy — they went up and down and sometimes were more down than up."

The Lancaster office of Shearson Lehman Brothers provided a lease for the use of a DTN monitoring system, hooked by satellite to the Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT), from which the students worked.

"It's a national program," said Bruening. "This is a test that's given across the nation. It's a new program with the FFA, and it's supported through the Chicago Board of Trade."

Working with CBOT, Penn State judges their activities on marketing acumen and accuracy.

Bruening said although the test is a simulation, "it gives (students) the reality that, in fact, they're actually making trades. It causes a tremendous amount of interaction between the students and what's actually transpiring in Chicago.

"It gives them a tremendous leg up on other people because they have this knowledge, they know how to implement this in markets, and markets are really how farmers make money," said Bruening. "If they can effectively deal with the marketplace, then we'll have the potential to make a difference in profits."

Tour Blooms With Decorating, Floral, Food Ideas

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — The Kitchen Kaper Tulip Tour on April 27 bloomed with ideas for decorating, cooking, and floral arranging.

About 670 people toured seven homes in the Ephrata area — the largest turnout ever according to Barbara Doner, co-chairperson for the Tulip Tour, which is sponsored by the Women's Club of Ephrata.

"It was a tremendous success as usual," Doner said of the fifth annual tour, which is used as a fund raiser for local charities.

The homes were decorated in a variety of styles that included country, victorian, contemporary, traditional, and eclectic.

Chefs from local restaurants prepared a specialty in each house that participants sampled.

Doner said, "It's no problem getting restaurants to participate in the tour. They call and request being included in the tour because they think it's a tremendous way to advertise."

In addition, local florists arranged floral displays inside and outside each home.

Homes featured on the tour included the Kimmell House Bed and Breakfast owned by Harold and Margaret Althouse. The Georgian-style sandstone farmhouse reflects the revolutionary era when George Washington was president.

Guests sampled She Crab Soup and fresh vegetables with dips prepared by Jonathan H. Davenport, executive chef at the Black Horse Inn, Rt. 272 Denver. Royer's Flower Shop, Inc. provided the floral decorations.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Schmuck, 419 Countryside Drive, Ephrata, revealed a mix of styles and ideas focusing on traditional and French country with a soft contemporary touch. Chef Bill Lauver and Doug Kurtz, food and beverage manager from Holiday Inn, Denver, served Chicken Mornay to guests. The florist was from Foster's Flowers in Akron.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Lee Zinn, Hill Rd., Denver, opened their Cape Cod style home filled with antiques and collectibles. In the family room, a Christmas tree with more than 500 ornaments remains up all year.

Chef John Gerhard from Zinn's Diner served the Lancaster County specialty Rival Soup. Country Lane in Denver provided the floral decorations.

A marble walk and marble porch leads into the two-story Victorian-style home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Schillaci of 227 Mason Drive, Ephrata. Chef Terese Zaleski of Cake a la Carte, Akron, prepared California Fruit Tart for the tour participants. The house, decorated by Country Charm House of Leola, shows what can be done in bedrooms, and in living areas with Victorian touches in a new home.

The contemporary home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Witmer, 257 Mason Drive, Ephrata, has a kitchen and dining area that opens into a great room, featuring a cathedral ceiling and fireplace. Akron Restaurant provide lasagna to guests. The Ephrata Flower Shop arranged floral decorations.

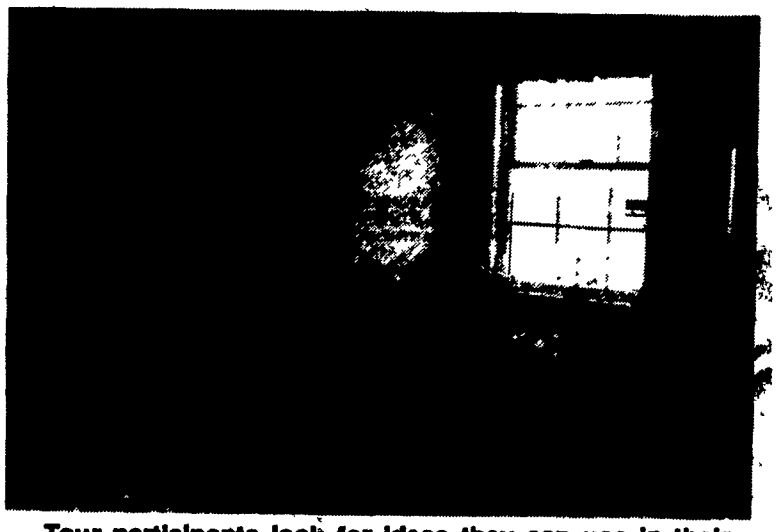
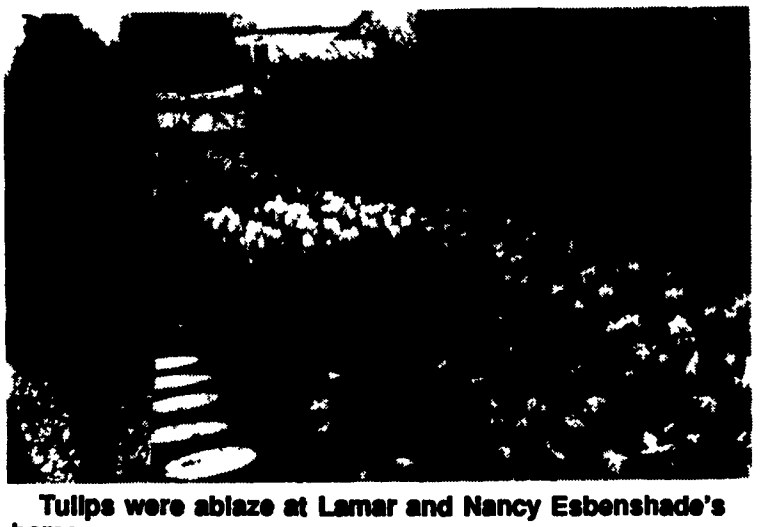
Tour participants such as Cindy Weigman of Fleetwood took advantage of the opportunity to buy crafts from local artisians. Maggie Callaugan, right, sells items made by members of the Hope United Methodist Church.



Tour participants look for ideas they can use in their homes.



Tulips were ablaze at Lamar and Nancy Esbenshade's home.

Tour participants admired the dining table setting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Schillaci, Ephrata. Notice the cake decorated with chocolate ruffles by Terese Zaleski of Cake a [illegible], Akron.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Schmuck of Ephrata included a blend of many styles.

Shartlesville Quilt Show

made by local persons.

The quilts are spread on tables at the Fire Hall for all to examine. There will be several antique Amish quilts for sale including a 1920's Lancaster County "Diamond in the Square," a "Pinwheel" from Miflin County and an "Irish Chain" c 1925 made in New Holland in 1935 by Anna Reif. Part of the charm of this show is that consignments come in up to the morning of the sale so no-one knows what surprises may appear. Last year's most unusual quilt was a double bed size featuring an applique map of the United States, dated 1938 with city, river and lake names embroidered on it.

An antique quilt specialist, Karen Kinnane will be available from 1-4 p.m. both days to identify and date your family heirloom at no charge. A free handout "How to Care For And Clean Your Antique Quilt" is available at the show.

Besides quilts, the sale offers old and new quilt patches and tops, vintage fabrics from scraps for quilt repair to yardage, "magic quilts" (convert from a pillow to a lap quilt "like magic!"), vintage linens, pillows shaped like hearts, cows, pigs and rabbits which are made from damaged antique quilts and chenille spreads, crochet and hand loomed rugs, patchwork pot holders, Christmas quilts, tree skirts and patchwork stockings and ornaments, antique pincushions, needle cases, and scissors holders.

Enjoy the Amish Pantry with its homemade jams, jellies, stuffed pickled peppers, preserves and baked goods (just like Grandma used to make).

The show is held in conjunction with the annual town-wide yard sale.

All proceeds from the quilt sale benefit the Shartlesville Fire Company to help purchase and maintain equipment.

The show is held at the Fire Hall on Main Street (Hex Highway, also known as Old Rt. 22) Interstate 78, exit 8. Hours are 8-4 p.m. both days. Admission is $3 or $2 with ad or discount tickets available by sending a SASE to Fire Co. Quilt Show, P.O. Box 6, Shartlesville, PA 19554. To consign quilts call Karen Kinnane at (215) 488-7792, Wednesday through Friday, 11-4 p.m. The Fire Company commission of 10% is added to the price set by the consignor. This is a sale not an auction.

Shartlesville is located 35 miles W. of Allentown, 15 miles N. of Reading and 45 miles E. of Harrisburg.

Kiwifruit Tips

Kiwifruit, a small round fruit also known as a "Chinese gooseberry," is a particularly rich source of vitamin C. The outer skin is fuzzy and brown, the inside bright green, dotted with edible black seeds and is a festive addition to any recipe.

The tangy-sweet flavor of kiwifruit has been described as similar to a combination of pineapple, melon and strawberry, but you'll find it uniquely delicious.

For best eating, firm kiwifruit needs to be ripened for full tangy-sweet flavor. Let kiwifruit ripen at room temperature for several days until it yields to gentle palm pressure, then use right away or refrigerate. To hasten ripening, place kiwifruit in a fruit ripening bowl or in a bag with an apple or banana and leave at room temperature for a few days until ripe. Kiwifruit will also ripen slowly if refrigerated for several weeks. When ripe, kiwifruit should always be refrigerated away from other fruits.

PUMP OUT PIT FAN

Many manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular.

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful, caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals.

Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO^2. Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death.

Tulip Tour Blooms

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Zimmerman of 234 Stephen Lane, Ephrata, brimmed with country accents. The Nav Jiwan Tea Room, Ephrata, served both cheese and banana muffins in addition to Lemon Grass tea. Floral accents were done by Oberholtzer's Greenhouse, Brickerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Esbenshade of 619 E. 28th Division Highway, offered a wealth of floral landscaping ideas done by the homeowners' business Esbensades Greenhouse. Reflections and Portofino Restaurants served Clams Casino to those who toured the 13-room home.

Another highlight of the tour included a craft sale by local artisans at the Ephrata Church of the Brethren, 201 Crescent Avenue, Ephrata.

Super Summer Salad Contest

BENSALEM (Philadelphia Co.) — The Pennsylvania Fair at Philadelphia Park, Bensalem will have a new feature this year, a "Super Summer Salad Contest." The event will be held on Sunday, May 17, at 2 p.m., at the Fair's Picnic Pavilion. Interested salad preparers are encouraged to enter their best summer salad in the contest. The grand prize winner will take home a top award of $100.

Three categories make up the contest: main dish salads, side salads, and dessert salads. All entries must be prepared prior to arrival at the fair and must be properly stored so as to be protected from exposure to heat. Proper storage will be a critical factor in the judges' selection. This requirement ties into the commodities' theme of food safety at the Fair. Throughout the Fair, Pennsylvania commodity organizations will have a complete display providing information on proper food handling and storage.

Basic ingredients for each salad must be readily available items from Pennsylvania farms and processing plants. All entries will be judged on the creative use of fresh food stuffs, the presentation of the salad, taste and originality. Fair premiums will be awarded in each category, first place $20, second place $15, and third place $10. The grand prize winner will be selected from the first place entries in each category.

All entries for the contest must be received by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program by Friday, May 8, 1992, an extension of the earlier listed date in the Fair's premium book. These entries must include the contestant's name, address, daytime telephone number, the category entered, and the complete recipe for the salad entered. All of this information should be sent to: the "Super Summer Salad Contest," c/o Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

The contest is jointly sponsored by the Pennsylvania Fair at Philadelphia Park, the Pennsylvania Beef Council, the PDPP, and the Pennsylvania Vegetable Marketing Program. Further information about the contest is available by calling (717) 787-6903. Fair premium books are available by calling (800) 749-3247.

Jogging With Infants: No-No

Jogging with a baby on one's back, not a totally uncommon habit, can have very serious consequences. A jogging parent's body movements can jerk a baby's head back and forth with such force that whiplash and brain damage may occur. Small babies lack the muscular strength needed to hold the head steady against the movements. Even short spurts of running or jogging can be damaging.

Are Fat-Free Foods Really A Healthy Alternative?

While nutritionists continue to push consumers toward a lower fat diet, food manufacturers are bombarding supermarkets with an array of low-fat and fat-free products. For almost every product on the market, a lower fat or fat-free counterpart can be found. Are all these fat-free foods really a healthier alternative?

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA), indicates that a fat-free product is one containing 0.5 grams of fat or less per serving. A low-fat product is one containing 2 grams of fat or less. In addition, many products exist which are not considered low-fat by definition but contain less fat than their regular fat counterparts.

To be able to know how to properly interpret these definitions, consumers should know how to read labels. Until the new food labeling laws go into effect (making serving sizes standard), manufacturers can manipulate the serving size of fat-free products so they appear to contain even fewer calories. Consumers also should know how to interpret labels containing statements such as "98 percent fat free." Such statements can mislead consumers into thinking that the products contain only 2 percent of their calories from fat, rather than 2 percent of their weight from fat.

Most nutritionists would agree that switching from regular mayonnaise to fat-free or low-fat mayonnaise is a healthier choice. There is a significant savings of fat and calories for the same amount of fat-free mayonnaise when compared to regular mayonnaise. This holds true for many other fat-free products as well, such as salad dressings and ice cream.

On the other hand, we have defeated our intent if fat-free products are used in place of more nutritious foods. If you pass up the carrot sticks in preference to the fat-free chocolate cake, then maybe you should reconsider your choice. Lowering the fat in our diets is one issue, but compromising nutrients is another.

Nutritionists may argue that moderation is still the key to a healthy diet. Even foods like chocolate cake can be eaten if moderation is practiced. Fat-free products still contain calories, but they do not give us the license to overindulge.

Furthermore, nutritionists have yet to grasp the long-term health implications of diets containing large amounts fat substitutes such as Simplesse or Olestra, or carbohydrate fillers such as maltodextrin, corn syrup, sugar, and carrageenan (seaweed extract). In the struggle to manufacture the perfect food, are we losing sight of what constitutes a healthy diet?

Research Before Breaking Ground

FLEMINGTON, N.J. — Thinking about doing your own landscaping? Planning and research should precede a visit to the local nursery; a successful landscape is a complex undertaking.

A few basic tips should help you avoid some of the most common landscape mistakes.

TOO MANY PLANTS FOR THE AREA - Plants should be spaced for final results rather than immediate effect. Keep in mind the mature size of plants and plan room for them to grow. Overplanting will result in plants having to be moved after a couple of years, or annual pruning will become an impossible chore. If the sparse appearance of proper new landscaping is a problem, fill in with temporary herbaceous plantings. Ground covers quickly give a "finished" look to a new landscape planting.

TOO MANY DIFFERENT KINDS OF PLANTS IN AN AREA - The "one-of-everything" landscape usually doesn't work well. Better to limit the number of varieties used and plant groups or masses of a variety, except where single specimen plants may be appropriate.

WRONG SIZE PLANT - Too often plants that will be much too big for the site are planted. In choosing landscape plants, find out about the mature size. Mature sizes are only approximations but it certainly helps to know whether the shrub to go under the front window grows to 3 feet or 30 feet. Pruning to keep plants that are genetically destined to be large confined to a small space is usually a losing proposition.

PLANTS GROWING IN INAPPROPRIATE LOCATIONS - Match the plant choices to the conditions that exist: shade, sun, wet, dry, windy. Trying to grow plants under conditions they don't like is asking for problems and disappointments. Find out, before buying, conditions needed by the plants being considered for planting.

ONE-SEASON LANDSCAPE - The planting looks great but only for part of the year. Give special consideration to year-round characteristics of plants being selected for use in highly visible areas. For instance, azaleas and rhododendron are glorious in spring, fine in summer but not great in winter; they probably shouldn't be the dominant planting for areas used or visible all year. A year-round landscape doesn't mean evergreens only, just careful choices of plant materials.

Rutgers Cooperative Extension publishes various lists that can be helpful in selecting plants for the landscape. Stop by our office on Rt. 31, M-F, 8:30-4:30 or call (908) 788-1339 for copies of: Fast Growing Shrubs, Shrubs for Shade, Shrubs for the Home Front, Plants for Wet Sites, 50 Small Trees for NJ, Plants for Screen Plantings. Other publications on specific plants are available, as well. For some there may be a small fee.

How To Test Your Soil

PITTSBURGH (Allegheny Co.) — With the gardening season just a few weeks away, you should have already started to plan your garden. Here are some recommendations from David Quatchak, extension agent, Allegheny Co.

Good gardening starts with a soil test. Each season home gardeners put considerable time, work and money into the development and maintenance of lawns and gardens. Most gardening programs involve the applications of some lime and/or fertilizer either before or after planting the particular plant, be it grass, vegetables, trees, shrubs or flowers. These efforts may be wasted if the soil is limed and fertilized improperly or in a way that does not meet the plants' needs.

Azaleas, for example, can suffer from an iron deficiency if too much lime is applied and the soil pH is raised too high. Improper fertilization can cause the build-up of nutrients to a point where they become toxic to plant roots. There can also be a nutrient imbalance in the soil where one nutrient inhibits the uptake of another — even if both are present. Just any fertilizer program will not meet the needs of all plants.

There is no way of telling the lime and fertilizer needs for any given soil by just looking at the ground. Many factors affect plant growth and, although they cannot all be predicted, you can take steps to determine a soil's nutrient status and future plant needs. This predictability is the principle advantage of all soil testing programs — they let you know exactly what is there so there is no danger of over-application.

Soil sampling and testing are not difficult. It is as simple as taking a number of samples from the garden or lawn and sending a composite sample to your state laboratory or reputable private testing service. Soil test kits are available from the Extension Office. You will then receive a report indicating the soil's pH and nutrient status along with lime and fertilizer recommendations.

How to take soil samples

Collecting the soil sample is not difficult, but it must be done properly to ensure meaningful laboratory results. The testing procedure is very precise, so the better your sample, the better the results. It is your responsibility to make certain that the sample tested is representative of the total lawn or garden area.

The soil sample tested in the laboratory is actually a composite of many borings, cores or spade slices from the property. To obtain this representative sample, gather soil from 10 to 12 places chosen at random throughout the area, then combine these to make one single sample.

Individual samples should represent distinct areas or growing conditions based on present use, past treatment and/or future plans. Various sampling areas might include the front and back lawn, vegetable garden, flower bed or landscape beds. Areas that have been limed and fertilized differently in the past should be sampled individually. Remember that the recommendations are based on the plants to be grown in the soil. One single, generalized recommendation is not suitable.

Depths of sampling should vary depending on the tillage and current conditions. Where plantings are already established and no tillage is planned, sampling into the root zone is preferred. For lawns this would mean a sample up to four inches deep. In landscape beds where the roots are somewhat deeper, the sample should be taken from six to eight inches deep. Where tillage is planned, in areas like a vegetable or flower garden, sample from the tillage depth.

Sampling tools

A variety of tools can be used to remove samples. Soil sampling tubes are the most convenient. Simply push the tube to the depth to be sampled. Collect the cores and combine them into the composite sample. Special soil sampling tubes are available in many garden centers, but a section of thin-walled pipe can be used as well.

A shovel and tablespoon can also be used. Push the shovel six to seven inches deep into the soil. Tilt its handle forward to make an opening wide enough so you can scrape some soil from the side of the hole. Starting at the depth to be sampled, scrape the tablespoon upward to the soil surface. Remove the spade and let the soil fall back to close the opening. With this technique it may take a bit longer to obtain the necessary volume of soil. A trowel and spade or shovel can also be used. Use the spade to open a hole to the depth to be sampled. With the spade, take a thin slice of soil from the side of the hole and hold it on the blade of the spade. With the trowel, mark off a one-inch wide strip down the middle of the slice on the spade and push off the excess on both sides. Combine these one-inch strips to create your composite sample to be sent for testing.

Be sure to use clean tools and containers for all sampling and mix the composite sample very well. Place the sample into the package supplied with the soil test kit and mail it to the laboratory. Soil test mailing kits are available in every county extension office and many garden centers, greenhouses and nurseries. Check the local phone directory for private testing laboratories in your area.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H Keystone Winners

Four Adams County 4-H members were selected as 4-H Keystone winners in four National 4-H Award programs.

The winners were selected on the state level through judging of a member's 4-H accomplishment record. The top 4 or 5 individuals in each program area were invited to Penn State for a personal interview. Based upon the results of the interview, individuals will be selected as state winners and represent Pennsylvania in national competition and attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago after Thanksgiving.

Cumberland County Goat Club

The Cumberland County 4-H Goat Club met recently at the home of Andy and Addison Rook in Newville.

The meeting was opened by President Heather Glennon.

Club leader Red Allen spoke about the market goat auction at the Cumberland County Livestock Sale in August. Justin and Derek Carpenter gave demonstrations on writing letters to prospective buyers at the auction and thank-you letters after the auction.

Orders were taken for club T-shirts. The next meeting will be at Heather and Bobby Glennon's house in Newburg on May 6.

Home, Yard Improvements

Spring is that time when many do-it-yourselfers get busy with projects that fall under "Home and Yard Improvements".

For example, in the home, we might tackle the job of creating more storage space in a utility room, garage, or basement. Maybe some shelves are needed in the garage. Bedroom closets sometimes need to be refurbished. Maybe you want to create an improved laundry center, sewing center, or shop and tool storage center in the basement. Repair work may be needed in attics or basements. Interior and exterior painting can be great projects, but do you know about the many different types of paints available — and their uses? What is an alkali primer? Where are latex paints best-used—and where should one use alkyd paints — or enamel — or epoxy esters — or a fire-retardant paint?

Outside, we might get into projects such as building a small storage shed, making a patio or deck, building planter boxes, making patio and outdoor furniture — or an in-place barbecue grill. How about fences, gates, swing sets, sandboxes, walkways, etc? Or, maybe you want to lay out a volleyball court, badminton court, croquet area, shuffleboard deck, horseshoe-pitch, or other outdoor recreational area. Dry walls or other retaining walls may be on the "to do" list. Do you know how to put a "weep hole" in a retaining wall for drainage?

Maybe you want to learn about different types of siding; wood preservatives; types of wood screws, bolts, and other fasteners. Do you know about the gluing properties of different woods? Want to learn how to "solve" dozens of different "paint problems"? And then there are things like calking, calking materials, stains, creating special indoor lighting effects, water-proofing masonry, managing mildew—and even adaptations for a wheelchair home.

If you are interested in any of the above, or hundreds of other pieces of related information — or if you simply want to learn how to talk more-intelligently to your building or home-improvement contractor, you may wish to get a copy of "Home and Yard Improvements Handbook. It contains 100 pages of sketches, plans, specifications, detailed directions, explanations of technical terms, etc., etc. It comes from the Midwest Plan Service in Ames, Iowa; and it is now available at all County Cooperative Extension offices in Pennsylvania at the ridiculously low price of $3.

Plant Small Fruit

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — If you love the taste of strawberries, raspberries, and blueberries fresh off the vine, this may be the year to plant a fruit garden.

To get your garden off to the right start, select an area of your yard that will be in the sun most or all of the day.

Plenty of sunlight is crucial for growing small fruit. Sunlight allows rapid drying of the plant leaves, which helps prevent disease and reduces the need for fungicides.

The site should have good air circulation and some protection from wind. It also should be large enough to permit adequate space within and between rows so that you can tend the plants and pick the fruit easily.

If you don't have a large area, you can use fruit plants as a property divider, grow raspberries on trellises or cultivate strawberries in pots.

The soil on the site must be well drained. If water stands for more than 24 hours after a spring rain, the soil probably isn't appropriate for small fruit production.

Before planting, test the soil for fertility and pH. Soil tests kits are available at county extension offices for a nominal fee. When you submit the soil for analysis, specify the crop you intend to grow, since nutritional and pH requirements vary among fruit types.

Think twice before planting fruit in last year's vegetable plot. Brambles or strawberries shouldn't be planted where any solanaceous crop — such as tomatoes, peppers and potatoes — has been grown for the last five years. Verticillium, a soil fungus, can linger and infect small fruit crops.

Plant quality is another key to success. Choose one-year-old nursery plants that are well grown and heavily rooted. The only exception is blueberries — two-year-old plants are recommended. All plants should be listed as certified, virus tested or virus indexed.

To prevent damage from birds and rodents, cover vines with nylon or plastic mesh, closely woven wire or cheesecloth before fruit begins to ripen. Mowing the grass will help keep rodents away, since they require lots of cover to hide from natural predators.

Fruit crops can be grown without chemicals, but the quantity and quality of the harvest may not be as high. Fruit similar to what you can buy in the supermarket can't be produced reliably without pesticides.

Information on making pest management decisions that are economically, environmentally and socially sound can be found in the Penn State publication, Small Scale Fruit Production. This comprehensive guide to planting, managing and harvesting home fruit crops is available for $7.50 at county extension offices or through the Publications Distribution Center, Penn State, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, Pa. 16802; (814) 865-6713.

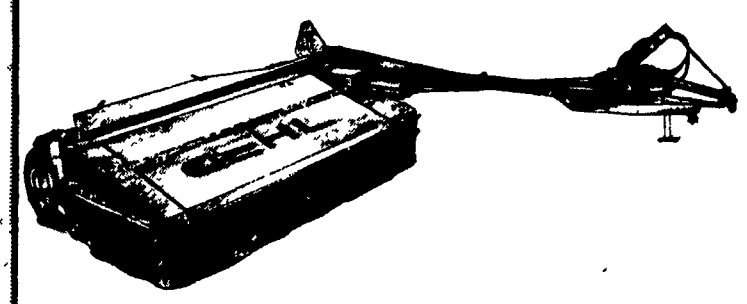
GEHL

CUT HAY THE DISC WAY!



Gehl has two all-new disc mower conditioners to cut your crop down to size, fast and easy. The DC2340 has 7 discs and a 9-foot cutting width; the DC2360 has 8 discs and a 10½ -foot cutting width.

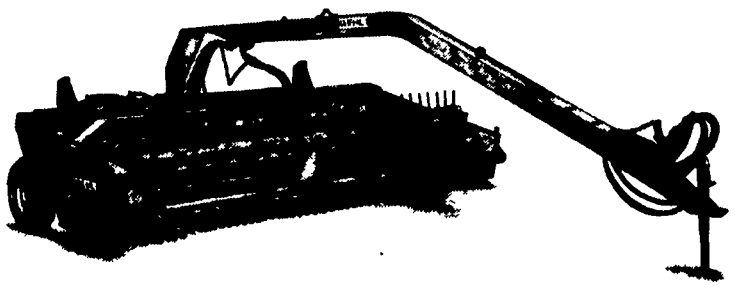
- High speed discs - Each disc has two knives to slice through the toughest crops and conditions; the disc gear drive operates in an oil bath for long life.
- Sturdy frame - Cradles the cutterbar for extra protection and durability.
- 540 or 1,000 rpm driveline with equal-angle hitch for smooth power transfer.
- Standard hydraulic tongue - Makes it easy to position the unit without leaving the tractor seat.

COMMON SENSE MOWER CONDITIONERS

Gehl mower conditioners are "common sense" machines because they're packed with sensible features. Gehl pull-type sicklebar mower conditioners are built to give you fast cutting and conditioning for quick crop dry-down.

- Full-width intermeshing conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs deliver thorough, uniform conditioning.
- Simple sickle drive with pivot-arm design provides more cutting force.
- Fewer moving parts than competitive models for worry-free performance.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar from rocks and uneven terrain.
- Two models with 7-foot and 9-foot cutting widths available.

CUT BIG HAY FIELDS DOWN TO SIZE!



Gehl swing-frame mower conditioners are designed to cut your biggest hayfields down to size. Gehl swing-frames give you the capacity and maneuverability of a self-propelled mower conditioner at a pull-type price. Gehl also makes conventional sicklebar models as well as disc mower conditioners. The swing-frame units offer:

- Full-width conditioning rolls with intermittent ribs for thorough, uniform conditioning.
- Total hydraulic drive for smooth operation.
- Center-pivot design for excellent maneuverability.
- Three-point flotation support protects the cutterbar from rocks and other field obstructions.
- Easily adjustable for full-width swaths or high-standing windrows.

Environmental Ed Program Forms Sweet Partnership

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — A $25,000 grant has been awarded to the Pennsylvania State Envirothon Program by Hershey Foods Corporation to help make quality environmental education programs available to high school students throughout the state.

The 1992 State Envirothon Program is sponsored by Pennsylvania Association of Conservation Districts, the State Conservation Commission, and the Hershey Foods Corporation. Cooperating agencies include the Department of Environmental Resources' bureaus of Forestry and Water Quality Management, the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission, the Pennsylvania Game Commission, and the USDA Soil Conservation Service.

"Hershey Foods is an environmentally responsible business," said Michael Berney, corporate contributions manager. "We believe we have an obligation to preserve the environment for future generations and we recognize the importance of educating the public about the environment. The Envirothon Program provides an excellent learning experience. In fact, many of the students who participate in the Envirothon pursue careers in an environmentally related field."

Envirothon students, under the direction of high school faculty, develop decision-making skills to help them become responsible, environmentally conscious citizens. Students learn how their actions can help protect or improve the environment.

"We approached the Hershey Foods Corporation because our interests are compatible," said Andy Patterson, Envirothon chair. "Hershey is a good example of a Pennsylvania-based company that has taken steps to establish a set of environmentally sound principles. Fortunately for the Envirothon Program, educational activities that teach youth how they can become environmentally responsible citizens is impor- tant to Hershey."

The program involves environmental exploration and takes the form of a competition. Five-member student teams are quizzed at five natural resource stations: aquatics, wildlife, soils, forestry, and a current issue. A new current issues topic is selected annually. Previous topics have included acid rain, hazardous waste, recycling, wetlands, and sustainable energy. This year's issue is groundwater protection.

In 1991, 48 county teams participated in the state Envirothon. The Envirothon has expanded beyond Pennsylvania's borders. At the 1991 National Envirothon, hosted by the state of Maine, teams from nine states, as well as Canada and Australia, were represented.

A team will represent Berks County at the state Envirothon scheduled for June 27 at the PP&L Montour Preserve. For more information, contact Jack W. Schonely, district manager of the Berks County Conservation District, (215) 372-4657 or the Pennsylvania Envirothon Program, 225 Pine Street, Harrisburg, PA 17101 (717) 238-4998.

Patz® slide of COR-TEN® steel resists corrosion
COR-TEN steel provides atmospheric corrosion resistance for longer slide life.
Patz COR-TEN steel slides are painted to further protect against corrosion. COR-TEN steel holds paint longer than ordinary steel. If the paint is scratched, COR-TEN steel forms a tightly adherent oxide to "heal" itself.
COR-TEN steel is stronger than mild steel. The COR-TEN steel slide is welded to a 4½-inch by 6⅝-inch COR-TEN center box beam for extra rigidity.
Ask your Patz dealer about the 10-year warranty on COR-TEN steel slides.

SMALL FLOCK QUIZ

Herbert C. Jordan
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

Take a quiz on a small flock of chickens.

If everything is otherwise managed well, the following will be true or false.

True or False 1. If all manure is cleaned out of the growing pen two or more times a week and the floor scrubbed clean, there is normally no need to use bedding.

True or False 2. Cannibalism can normally be prevented (without beak trimming) by giving birds an adequate diet (feed), plenty of floor space, enough fresh air to breathe, and plenty of unpolluted water to drink.

True or False 3. Pullets lay larger eggs when they begin to lay, then, as they get older, they lay smaller eggs.

True or False 4. Two percent cracked eggs or fewer is normal to excellent for layers for a whole year while 5 percent cracked eggs is average to below average. Ten to 20 percent cracked eggs produced is terrible.

True or False 5. The only domestic chicken known to lay pastel-colored shell eggs (blue, pink, green, and tan) is the Araucana or a hybrid of it, originally from South America.

True or False 6. A valuable reason to keep clean bedding in nests and on the floor of a normal layer house is to produce clean eggs that do not need washing before being set for incubation or used for home consumption.

True or False 7. All chicken eggs, on a dry weight basis, can provide the same level of nutrition or level of chemical compounds.

True or False 8. Chicken owners who allow birds to run on and off their property are being sued occasionally by strangers who claim the chicken caused an accident or incident where a human was injured.

True or False 9. If poultry manure is dried to below 50 percent moisture as it is produced, normally fewer flies, less repulsive odor, and fewer problems occur from the manure.

True or False 10. When an egg is produced from a pullet or hen, it is at its highest point in interior quality and cannot be higher. A fresh egg can only lose quality, it cannot gain quality, so we must preserve the quality in a fresh egg as much as we can.

True or False 11. One study has indicated that if egg producing pullets are grown from one to 20 weeks of age with roosts available to them, which they use normally, then when the pullet is laying at ages beyond 20 weeks, they will seek and use a nest more than a pullet raised without roosts.

True or False 12. If a pullet or hen has a pound or more of excess (hard) fat in the abdomen and viscera, they will not lay as many eggs or as well as a pullet or hen with little or no excess fat in the abdomen.

1. True. 2. True. 3. False. 4. True. 5. True. 6. True. 7. False 8. True 9. True 10. True 11. True 12. True.

FARM MANAGEMENT

TO BORROW OR NOT TO BORROW?

Alan W. Strock
Farm Management Agent
Chester, Lancaster Counties

With spring planting season upon us, paying for crop inputs may be weighing heavily on your mind. Some farmers pay cash for their seeds, fertilizer, chemicals, rent, and other inputs.

However, most farmers finance at least a portion of their costs. Many finance their inputs on a deferred account from their supplier. Other farmers finance their inputs through a line of credit from their lender.

Lines of Credit Can Work For You

A properly used line of credit can save time and money four ways by:

- Reducing interest expenses.
- Taking advantage of vender discounts.
- Acting as a cushion for unexpected expenses such as drought-related expenses, overhauls, or good buys at a local farm auction or on other expenses.
- Saving taxes by leveling income and taxes.

Example:
Assume: spring cropping costs = $30,000 vendor interest rate = 16%, bank line of credit interest rate = 8.75%, money is repaid after 9 months.

- Interest charges and savings calculation for spring cropping costs:

(Vendor)	$30,000 @ 16% for 9 mo.	= $3,600.00 interest paid
(Bank)	$30,000 @ 8.75% for 9 mo.	= $1,968.75 interest paid
Savings		= $1,631.25 interest saved

Reduce Interest Expense

A line of credit can easily save you thousands of dollars in needless interest.

Even though your spring cropping costs may be less than $30,000 you can save substantial interest expenses through cheaper interest. Suppliers are not in the business of lending money so they traditionally charge higher rates than lending institutions.

Vendor Discounts

Many feed, seed, fertilizer, machinery and even some veterinarians offer cash discounts if the bill is paid timely.

Example:
Assume: feed bill = $5,000, discount offered = 4% if paid in 10 days, bank line of credit interest rate = 9%, money is not repaid for five or six months.

- Cash discount and interest charges and savings calculation:

(Discount)	$5,000 @ 4%	= $200.00 discount savings
(Interest charge/month)	$5,000 x 9% + 12	= $ 37.50 monthly interest
(Interest charge)	$5,000 @ 9% for 5 months	- $187.50 interest paid
(Interest charge)	$5,000 @ 9% for 6 months	= $225.00 interest paid

So if the line of credit was paid back within 5⅓ months, the discount earned would have exceeded the interest paid on the line of credit. Pencil out your cash discounts — you may save money by paying the expenses out of your line of credit and then paying the line back as soon as possible.

Purchasing Feeder Animals

Using a line of credit to purchase feeder pigs and steers will save you time and effort. Using a line of credit may also save the banker much paper work.

Many banks require the line of credit to be paid down to zero once a year. This makes you take stock of your finances and analyze your usage of the line once a year.

This forces you to review your financial progress, which is meaningful!

Fill Cash Flow Voids and Provide A Cushion for Unexpected Expenses

Properly using your line of credit to get cash discounts, good buys on feed or other inputs, as well as not paying the high interest and carrying charges on your feed, fertilizer, and other bills can save lots of money.

Use your cash flow projection to calculate the amount of line of credit you need and allow for those frequently occurring unexpected expenses.

Tax Savings

Year-end tax management by using your line of credit may produce large tax savings. Using the line to even out your tax liability is the goal.

Once you have prepaid expenses, you are locked into it unless a less-than-average profitable year occurs. But you still received those quantity and early order discounts.

Example:
Assume: $10,000 tax savings and today's present tax rates:

Federal Income Tax Rate	15% or 28.00% or 31%
Net Social Security Tax Rate	14.13%
State Income Tax Rate	2.60%
Local Income Tax Rate	1.00%
Total Tax Rate	32.73% or 45.73% or 48.73%

$10,000 x 48.73% = $4,873.00 tax savings or deferral.

Operating Expenses Only!

Your line of credit is to be used only for operating expenses. It is NOT to be used for capital purchases such as machinery, building improvements, or breeding stock, UNLESS you are sure you can get the loan repaid within the next 9 to 12 months. So do not abuse the line of credit, because you could lose the privilege!

I can think of no good reasons to not have a line of credit unless you lack the discipline to use it properly and are consistently abusing it.

In Summary

A local banker told me 80 percent of his lenders have a line of credit. The successful manager of the 1990s will manage their finances as well, if not better, than their livestock and crops. A line of credit is an excellent tool to lower your farm's operating expenses.

SOLUTIONS TO MANURE ODOR — AN UPDATE

As the size and number of hog operations continue to expand, odor concerns are beginning to overshadow all other issues facing our industry.

Yes, consumers worry about health, antibiotic residues, and even animal welfare. But these issues seldom have an immediate impact on the consumer's quality of life like manure odor.

Two years ago, in an article on this subject, I wrote that there were few if any effective, economical solutions to manure odor. That hasn't changed.

But in the last two years, the political climate has clearly evolved. Our state senate continues to spar over a statewide nutrient management bill. And township supervisors seem to be in a frenzy passing their own management ordinances, most of which probably had odor as the driving force.

Nature Of The Problem

Sources Of Odor

Three factors contribute to odor from hog operations.

The first is the hog facility itself. Usually it's a relatively minor source, but since large operations have dominated Pennsylvania's recent expansion, complaints about facilities are frequent.

The second source of odor is the manure storage area. Most storage systems are anaerobic, which generate a lot of odor. Left uncovered, the odors wander with the wind. The trend to deep pit storage under buildings probably does little to contain odors, since gases will still be exhausted from the facility.

The third source of odor is manure spreading. Surface spreading from anaerobic storage generates odor that can carry more than a mile. The good news is that spreading is not an everyday process for large operations, so most residents tolerate these intermittent changes in atmospheric aroma.

Can We Measure Odor?

Yes, but it's not quite as objective as weighing a hog. Odor intensity is subjective — it's different to me than it is to you. So it takes a panel of sniffers to give their opinions. Also, after you're around the odor for a while, it will gradually become less offensive.

To avoid the loss of sensitivity, some researchers impregnate the odor on a cotton patch, which can be evaluated away from the swine facility. Researchers also use a device called a scentometer, which enables the evaluator to dilute smelly air with uncontaminated air and arrive at an odor concentration which is just barely detectable.

What stinks in hog manure? Some 60 compounds have been identified in the air from swine facilities. About 40 of those are probably responsible for making the place smell like a hog barn. And the most intense odors apparently come from six of these organic compounds.

Solutions To Odor
Common Sense

Where is the facility located? If it's near a development or will be soon, you may be in for headaches. And occasionally, when the operation is at the top of a hill, odors can drain down the hill during cool or frosty nights when there is no wind.

What direction does the wind blow in the summer? Whoever lives downwind from your buildings, your manure storage, or your fields where you spread is a potential source of complaints.

How far is it to your nearest neighbor? Ideally, it should be at least a mile. The absolute minimum is one half mile (my opinion). I recommend these separation distances to producers for their own protection. But some townships have taken that opinion and written it into law.

Covering Manure Storage

Covers are effective at trapping odors in the storage facility. Plastic covers cost $3-$4 per square foot.

That doesn't sound too bad until you do the multiplication. For example, the cover for a quarter-acre lagoon (which is miniature compared to many) would cost around $30,000 or $40,000. Precast concrete costs about $5 per square foot. And wooden trusses covered with a fiberglass roof costs about $4 per square foot.

Additives

There are a bunch of these on the market. According to the company literature, they're all supposed to work. Unfortunately, the research data to back up the claims is scarce to nonexistent for most products.

Sarsaponin is an exception. It contains extracts from the yucca shidigera plant and is sold as Micro-Aid, Bio-Ade, and De-Odorase. Several experiments demonstrate that sarsaponin, when used as a feed additive, is effective at reducing ammonia levels.

In non-experimental observations, many producers also notice that Micro-Aid also helps to liquify sludge after 1 month. These field observations have been partially confirmed in at least two trials.

In these studies, Micro-Aid reduced absolute dry matter in the manure by 22 percent and 13 percent, respectively. To the best of my knowledge, sarsaponin does not have impact on manure odor (other than ammonia reduction).

Microbe-Lift is a product that has been distributed by Tri-County Confinement Systems in Lebanon. According to Greg Lentz, at Tri-County, the product has been effective in solids reduction.

Compostore is a combination of yucca extract, yeast culture, and bacteria, and is currently distributed by Farmer Boy Ag in Myerstown. Jay Zimmerman, at Farmer Boy, believes it has promise, especially from the aspect of solids reduction. And that makes sense, since the digestion capabilities of the yucca extract (sarsaponin) have been documented. It also contains yeast, which some producers have used alone as a solids reducer.

Injection

Either injection or incorporation of the manure goes a long way toward reducing odor from the most intensive source — spreading. Unfortunately, injection is not possible for all soils, and it may create some production problems for small grains and hay.

Aeration

Aerating manure is effective at reducing odor by encouraging the growth of aerobic bacteria which generate less odor than the anaerobes. The problem is cost. Getting the air (oxygen) into the manure on a continuous basis is expensive.

For example, a 1,000-head finishing building would generate about 270,000 gallons of manure in six months. To aerate that volume of manure would require about 12.5 horsepower, which would chew up about $500/month in electricity.

Methane Digestion

There are only two swine operations that I'm aware of in Pennsylvania that have methane digesters. Both seem to be effective at reducing odor from manure.

Both operations use the methane to generate electricity and heat. Because of this, they save at least $15,000 per year in fuel and electric costs. But both digesters were expensive. (Today, a digester for a 400-sow farrow-to-finish operation might cost $250,000).

Will the savings in heat and electricity pay for the investment? It might if the operation is large enough. For smaller enterprises, the concept is just as viable.

Unfortunately, digesters are custom built and expensive. So you need a big operation and a lot of pigs to absorb the capital investment.

Fan Scrubbers

Narrow Loaders Work In Small Spaces

OWATONNA, Minn. — Mustang Manufacturing Company, Inc. has introduced two new skid steer loaders in the 600-pound class to its 900 series.

Only 36 inches wide, the 910 and 911 loaders can operate in such confined spaces as farrowing barns, finishing barns, and free stall dairy barns. And with a 600-pound SAE load rating, a breakout force of 1,050 pounds and a lift height of 96 inches, the units can meet the needs of the residential-focused contractor, the rental market, as well as smaller or rural users.

The 910 loader is powered by a 18 HP Onan diesel engine, and the 911 loader by a 16 HP Onan gas engine; both are hydrostatically driven.

The 910 and 911 units have the following features:

- Dual lever steering, which incorporates return to neutral and neutral start.
- Lift arm locks designed into ROPS/FOPS structure.
- Fast-A-Tach bucket mounting system.
- Axle seal protection designed into axle and frame design.
- Lockable engine compartment.

Other skid steer loaders in Mustang's 900 series are the 920, 921, 930A, 940, and 960, with SAE load ratings ranging from 850 pounds to 1,700 pounds. All are powered by diesel engines (except the gas-powered 921) and are hydrostatically driven. Specific data for the series includes:

Only 36 inches wide, the 910 and 911 skid steer loaders can operate in such confined spaces as farrowing barns, finishing barns, and free stall dairy barns.

Ford New Holland Auto-Wrap twine wrapping systems for the new Models 650 and 660 round balers do not require operator involvement. Bales are twine-wrapped automatically with 10, 14, 18, or 23 wraps as preselected. Auto-Wrap is a factory-installed option for both new balers.

Auto-Wrap Twine System For Balers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — A new, economical, factory-installed twine system is available for Models 650 and 660 round balers from Ford New Holland.

Both balers produce high-density bales with an exclusive hydraulically tensioned combination belt and roll bale chamber design.

The simple, economical Auto-Wrap system for the new balers is mechanically controlled and fully automatic.

"Without electronics, it's easier to switch tractors," said Ford New Holland Product Manager Jim Payton. He said that this will appeal to custom operators and ranchers who use less experienced tractor drivers.

With Auto-Wrap twine tie on a "650" or "660," it's easy to see what is happening at all stages of the wrapping process. The bale size indicator moves toward full and an arrow signals the driver when the bale is ready to wrap.

Twin twine tubes drop automatically and wrap the bale from the center outward to the ends with 10, 14, 18, or 23 wraps per bale as desired. Wrapping is a steady motion with minimal overlap and uniform twine placement.

This wrapping system applies the twine without operator involvement. This feature appeals to most operators because there's less fatigue by the end of a day's baling.

When the bale is wrapped, the operator ejects the bale, checks the tailgate latch indicator to be sure the gate is closed, and heads on down the windrow. An optional full-bale alarm buzzer is available to signal wrapping has started. The alarm pauses while the bale is being wrapped and buzzes again when wrapping is complete.

"The simplicity of this system will have broad appeal to hay growers," said Payton. "It costs less and is very uncomplicated. That makes baling easier."

Enfield Earns Safety Recognition

WHITEFORD, Md. — Enfield Equipment, Inc., recently earned recognition from John Deere for achieving its goal in John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program.

Bill Hushon accepted the award on behalf of Enfield Equipment, Inc. from Dave Kastler, area service manager of John Deere, during a presentation ceremony at the dealership recently.

"Customer safety is very important to us here at Enfield Equipment, Inc. We believe that any safety program offered by John Deere will benefit our farmer customer such as the Bypass Start Safety Program," said Hushon.

The program is part of John Deere's effort to educate customers about the danger of bypass starting. Bypass starting is a general term for any starting method that bypasses the safety features designed into the starting system or departs from the proper starting procedure. Examples include shorting across the starter solenoid with a metal object and starting the tractor with a key from the ground.

"Bypass starting is a dangerous practice because it places the operator on the ground in front of a drive wheel of the tractor. If the operator bypass starts the tractor while it's in gear, he will likely be run over," said Hushon.

John Deere's Bypass Start Safety Program involves most John Deere tractors built since 1960. The program calls for John Deere dealers to install a safety-start kit (starter solenoid cover and bypass start warning decal) on every qualifying tractor in their service areas and inspect the tractor's starting system. There is no charge to the customer for the kit, installation, inspection, or travel time. Dealers who completed 100 percent of their assignments by a certain date were recognized by John Deere for their efforts.

"There still may be some tractors or owners we have been unable to identify," said Bill Hushon. "If this is the case, we urge these individuals to call the dealership immediately so we can schedule a technician to install a free safety-start kit and conduct a free inspection of the starting system." The telephone number is (301) 452-5252.

Dekalb Seed Brings Silage Winner

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — William Taninies, Honesdale, center, won the Pennsylvania 5-acre corn contest silage division using Dekalb DK485 with a harvest of 30.63 tons per acre. From left, John Wysolmerski, Dekalb district sales manager; Taninies; and Ernie Rutledge, a local Agway salesmean who sold the corn to Taninies.

The new 7-disc New Holland Model 415 disc mower-conditioner from Ford New Holland cuts 11 feet 4 inches (3.5 meters) wide. A 102-inch chevron design rubber roll conditioner is gentle on leafy legume and grass crops. Disc-type cutterbar cuts through wet or dry crops, fire ant, and gopher mounds for non-stop mowing.

New Holland Model Mows 11-Foot Swath

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The New Holland Model 415 Discbine® mower-conditioner from Ford New Holland mows a 11-foot 4-inch-wide (3.5 meters) swath.

A 102-inch Chevron design roll-type conditioner handles both leafy legume and grass crops. Adjustable windrow shields let the operator deposit the crop in a wide, fast-drying swath or a narrower windrow.

"Swath width is easily adjusted without tools," said Product Manager Joe Weicksel. "This is an important feature for matching round baler and forage harvester widths."

The new model 415 is a seven-disc unit. Adjustable skid shoes help control cutting height in uneven fields and meadows.

Optional hydraulic header tilt allows cutting height control on the go and helps protect the cutterbar in rocky conditions. The gentle, leaf-saving action of its roll-type conditioner makes the machine a good choice for alfalfa and other legumes, as well as grass or grass-legume mixtures.

"The conditioner rolls lift the crop away from the mower discs to prevent crop build-up at the cutterbar," said Weicksel. The disc mower bar slices through wet or dry crops for non-stop mowing. Fire ant and gopher mounds can usually be ignored because discs spin right through where a sickle-type cutterbar might clog.

Model 415 is available in 1000-RPM PTO drive with either a double CV driveline or swivel-hitch driveline for extremely tight turn corners. It's designed for rapid, large acreage hay harvest in areas hay producers grow a variety of crops, including flat land or hillsides.

ple live in proximity. The fan scrubber apparently forces air through a wet packing, which removes most of the dust and therefore the odor. This technology is not used in this country, and it obviously does not work in curtain-sided buildings.

Local Solutions

In the 1990 article, I wrote, "Like it or not, local ordinances and zoning may be the best solution to the problem of manure odor." In the absence of state legislation, that statement is probably still true.

Some areas should be zoned for residential development, with little or no livestock production permitted. Other areas should be zoned for agricultural use, with very limited residential construction allowed, and no housing developments.

What many townships are doing, however, is making intensive swine operations almost impossible to construct anywhere.

For example, Delaware Township (Juniata County) recently passed an "Agricultural Waste Storage and Nutrient Management Ordinance." Some of the requirements include:

- No agricultural waste storage permitted within 2,500 feet of a residence.
- No agricultural waste storage on slopes steeper than 15 percent.
- No spreading on slopes steeper than 12 percent slope.
- No spray irrigation.

Statewide Solutions

Where does the "Nutrient Management Bill" (HR 496) stand? It's still being debated and modified, and has been since June 30, 1991, when it first arrived in the Senate Agricultural and Rural Affairs Committee.

In particular, legislators are having trouble agreeing on whether DER can sensibly handle the enforcement, and whether the bill should supersede all local legislation.

What exactly the bill will look like when it is finally approved is anybody's guess. But the entire industry has pretty much accepted the fact that a bill of some kind is a certainty.

Summary

1. Technological solutions to manure odor are few. Covering the manure storage, methane digesters, and aeration all work in theory, but in practice they either don't fit the operation or are too expensive or both. The best technology, which is seldom practical, is to keep a lot of distance between the hogs and your neighbors.

2. Political solutions are being drafted as you read this. Many of the bills appear to focus on nutrient management, which makes sense environmentally. But since many of the local ordinances are driven by odor, intensive agriculture may be forever changed.

Soy Farmers Commit To Research

CREVE COEUR, Mo. — When the government reallocated agricultural research funds away from traditional programs earlier this year, soybean farmers took up the slack, committing their own resources to research new uses and more economical production methods for the crop.

Producer-funded soybean research currently under way includes the search for ways to manufacture a durable, moldable soy-based plastic for food containers, packaging and plastic films, and exploring soy-based alternatives for starter pig rations and cloning resistant genes.

Funding for this research comes through the national soybean checkoff, administered by 63 farmer delegates making up the United Soybean Board (USB).

Starting in January of this year, USB approved 36 research projects, totaling an estimated $5 million over two years. The projects cover a wide range of problems and opportunities in soybean pest control, production, new and expanded uses, composition, and basic research.

"Soybean farmers tell us they want a balanced research program," said David Womack, USB research committee chairman, "that emphasizes increased utilization of soybeans and soy-based products, as well as improved profitability on the production side. As a result, USB's first-year budget directs 60 percent of its research grants to finding new and expanded uses for soybeans. The balance is targeted at lowering production costs.

"The biodegradability of soybeans and their competitive costs make them attractive alternatives to petrochemicals in various food and industrial products," Womack said. "Soon soybeans may be used in wood adhesives, plastic containers, cosmetics, silk-like fabrics, and other products. Fruit and vegetable growers may someday use soy-based, edible film to prolong shelf life of their produce, and pork producers could feed starter-pig rations that incorporate soy proteins."

The most ambitious research project invoives five researchers at four Midwest locations who are charting a "road map" of soybean genetic traits. Such a map will speed the timetable and reduce the cost of soybean breeding in the future.

Centered at the USDA Agricultural Research Service in Ames, Iowa, the research involves scientists from Purdue University, Iowa State University, the University of Minnesota, and the University of Nebraska.

Other research includes the search for a high-protein, high-yield-potential, drought-tolerant soybean variety; another with improved taste, texture, and nutritional qualities; low-linolenate edible soybeans; high-linolenate industrial-use soybeans; and a variety without raftinose and stachyose sugars for use in hog and chicken feed.

The present focus on environmental safety and economics makes pest control increasingly difficult for soybean producers. Goals for soybean pest research include cloning a Phytophthora-resistance gene and engineering resistance to soybean looper, corn earworm, velvetbean caterpillar, bean pod mottle virus, and soybean mosaic virus.

Three regional, specialized projects involve tagging, mapping, and the study of soybean cyst nematode resistance. Integrated pest management approaches are the focus of two projects.

For more information on USB-administered soybean research, write to David Womack, USB, P.O. Box 410977, Creve Coeur, MO 63141-0977, (314) 469-0292.

Kent County Gains 4-H Agent

NEWARK, Del. — Ted Palmer has been hired as Kent County 4-H agent by University of Delaware Cooperative Extension, effective April 1.

Palmer, a resident of Milton, Del., brings with him a background rich in cooperative extension work as well as industry.

Most recently he was a general sales manager with Pars, Inc. But from 1968 until 1984 he worked with extension in Sussex County, first as a 4-H agent, then as an agricultural agent.

As a 4-H agent from 1968 until 1978, Palmer helped develop and expand the junior leader weekend training, younger member weekend training, and an interstate 4-H exchange program. During his tenure, 4-H enrollment in Sussex County increased from 400 to 750 members.

He also initiated several county-wide 4-H clubs that focused on specific areas of interest, including a livestock club, a dairy club, and a sportsman club. In addition, he initiated an adult leader training weekend.

As he reenters 4-H, Palmer said he plans to assess Kent County's program needs through input from volunteer leaders.

"4-H is an organization that runs on volunteers," he said. "I want to spend a lot of time with volunteer leaders, junior leaders, and 4-H links to find out where they think the organization should be going."

A University of Delaware alumnus, Palmer has served on the board of the Delaware 4-H Foundation as member and president. He has also served as a member and president of the Cape Henlopen school board.

Youth Development Takes Family Approach

NEWARK, Del. — Develop a strong family unit and you will develop strong children — that's the guiding philosophy of the Seaford Collaboration for Youth.

What sets this coalition apart from other after-school programs that offer supportive activities for children and teens is the commitment to involve the entire family as well as the community.

Financed by an Extension Service USDA Youth-At-Risk grant and matching funds from the city, the program is coordinated through University of Delaware Cooperative Extension by Joyce Simpson, Sussex County 4-H agent.

Guy Herrick, youth coordinator, works with children. Robin McCabe, family coordinator, is responsible for the family component of the collaboration.

"Many people look at the 4-H program as restricted to middle America," Simpson said. "It's not — it's for all youth and their families. With the Collaboration, we tried to involve children who may be at risk."

Simpson said youth at risk are identified as being a behavioral problem, being behind a grade level, or being from a single-parent home. They may be victims of substance or child abuse or be economically disadvantaged.

Simpson said the Collaboration relies on the school system to identify children who may be at risk, and thus eligible for the after-school program.

Seaford was the perfect place to launch this type of coalition, said Simpson. It already had the Drug-Free Seaford Board comprised of city and school representatives as well as citizens.

"The Collaboration has proven to be a good partnership in helping parents, who are their children's first line of support, become more effective," Simpson said. "Seaford is committed to prevention planning. The community contributed space, the schools contributed social workers, and we contributed organizational skills and programming."

Others are as pleased with the program as Simpson. Seaford Retirement and Rehabilitation Center, Grace Baptist Church, and Blades United Methodist Church have all donated space for the program. And the Collaboration has received federal and local funding for another year.

Part of the program's success can be attributed to its specific, achievable goals. Last year, the program's goals included enrolling 150 at-risk youth in life-skill development programs, reaching out to parents of youth participants, involving 75 percent of the children and their parents in community service projects, and engaging 100 youth in ongoing community and youth 4-H activities.

Herrick plans and directs the after-school program. He pulls activities from cooperative extension programs in other states to develop a mix that suits the needs of the Seaford youth.

"Generally speaking, I try to build self-esteem in the kids," Herrick said. "I create a bond with the kids. And I let them know that I'm there for support."

Herrick had to work at building trust in the program. About six weeks passed before the first children came to participate. But now they take turns rounding up their friends after school. Herrick said that by keeping the groups small, he can give each child individual attention and caring.

McCabe approached the project by asking, who's doing anything for the parents? She can now answer that she is meeting with parental support groups once a week.

"Our programs empower the adults to help themselves," said McCabe. "It's so important to realize that people are basically the same. It's their cultural, educational, and financial backgrounds that determine where they are in life."

She said some backgrounds may include alcoholism, abuse, lack of education, and other difficult obstacles. But the program helps families feel good about themselves, no matter what their backgrounds. The goal of the group is to empower individuals to make positive changes in their own lives.

"We rely on community resources to teach our clients to be better parents," she said. "Child Inc. has donated its expertise to the groups by teaching parenting classes."

A group will often identify its own needs and ask for an educational program in a specific area, McCabe said. She draws on cooperative extension educational resources at the university to plan programs around financial management, nutrition, and other areas of interest.

McCabe said group members have encouraged each other to set educational goals for themselves and their children. She especially has been gratified by watching her clients reach out to support their own communities.

"I love to see our participants feel good enough about themselves that they can start doing something for others," she said.

During the past year, McCabe has seen parents volunteer at a rehabilitation and retirement center and in the classroom. One group, in collaboration with 4-H junior leaders, is working with the management of its apartment complex to repair and build new playground equipment. Another group has held a covered-dish supper and is planning a bake sale to raise money for a field trip. A 4-H club is being organized in one of the communities and is drawing on residents to be volunteer leaders.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

Farm's Future Depends On Communication

NEWARK, Del. — Passing along the family farm from one generation to the next is a worthy goal, but one that's hard to achieve.

The two biggest obstacles are organizing the estate so that inheritance taxes won't eat up all the farm's equity and generating more income to support additional families.

If family members don't communicate their plans and concerns to each other, the task can be doubly difficult, said University of Delaware Cooperative Extension vegetable specialist Ed Kee.

This message was emphasized during a workshop on estate planning and business structures for farm families organized earlier this year by Kee and Dr. H. Don Tilmon, extension farm management specialist.

The two-day workshop attracted 50 young Delaware farmers and family members. It was taught by a team of extension professionals, an attorney versed in tax law, loan officers, a financial planner, and agribusiness people.

The topics covered ranged from farm transfer strategies and insurance needs to business structure options, borrowing money, running a business and improving communications skills.

"The purpose of the course," said Tilmon, "was to provide information on estate planning for one generation to pass on the farm's assets to the next in an orderly fashion — bringing a son or daughter into the management of the business to groom them for takeover." Another goal was to sharpen the management skills of both generations.

Since bridging the generation gap can be the most challenging part of continuing a family farm business, Kee said speakers stressed the importance of communication.

"Farm family members who work at keeping the lines of communication open ensure a healthier business and the successful transfer of the farm to the next generation," Kee said.

"Specific goals, needs of ownership, income, level of desired responsibility to workloads, vacations, and outside interests must be spelled out," he said. "Regularly scheduled meetings to discuss these issues are crucial to the process."

Dr. Patricia Tanner Nelson, extension family life specialist, dealt with the subject of communication early the first day in a presentation on "Tackling the Tough Issues: the Psychology of Discussion Between Generations on Farm Plans for the Future."

"This was one of the most important topics discussed," Tilmon said. "Families must address the issue of intergenerational planning, as hard as it is to get it on the table."

Another speaker who stressed good communication was Bob Miller, an agricultural loan officer with Maryland National Bank. Miller identified four factors he considers critical to a thriving farm operation:

- Finding ways to reduce costs without sacrificing production.
- Working continually to improve financial management skills.
- Improving marketing skills to boost the bottom line.
- Keeping communication lines open between family members.

To dramatize the difficulties of the estate planning process, Tilmon and Kee presented a case study in which a 61-year-old farmer's broiler/grain operation wasn't generating enough income to bring his married son into the business. The parents also wanted to be fair to two daughters who weren't involved in the farm.

Participants were given specific details of the farming operation. They were asked to consider how the farm could be made more productive and how the parents should plan for passing on their estate.

"One of the points this case study made clear," said Kee, "was that 'fair' isn't always equal when transferring a farm to the next generation."

When it was over, participants were asked to evaluate the workshop. Though 21 percent said they already had a high level of estate planning knowledge, 50 percent felt the course greatly increased their awareness of the need for a will and estate planning. Before the class started, 71 percent had a will. After it ended, all the others said they were motivated to get one.

Kee said he proposed the course after realizing how many farmers need this kind of information.

"In my travels around Delmarva, I've been impressed with the number of people in their twenties and thirties who are taking on significant responsibilities for their families' farming operations," Kee said. "These young people, their parents and even their grandparents, will face many challenges as they strive to continue the business."

Kee and Tilmon plan to offer another course on some aspect of business and farm financial management next winter. Possible topics include personal finance, labor management, and investment, or retirement, insurance, and government programs.

Teens Attend 4-H Conference

NEWARK, Del. — If you think today's youth is apathetic or self-involved, you can't prove it by the four teens who represented Delaware at the 1992 National 4-H Conference, held recently in Washington, D.C.

Carrie Argo (Milford), Heather Gooden (Camden), Katherine Huang (Newark), and Alex Melson (Wilmington) served as Delaware's delegates.

"Empowered Youth Creating Action" was the theme for this year's conference, which drew more than 320 young people from all 50 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Canada.

The conference served as a forum for young people to identify problems, suggest solutions, and make recommendations to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

To practice leadership and skills for effecting change at the grassroots level, the teens were organized into focus groups to explore the potential for youth involvement in nationally pressing issues such as environmental stewardship, cultural sensitivity, fitness, and global relations. In addition, delegates met with elected representatives from their respective states.

Argo, who is a junior at Milford High School, has been a member of the Broadkill 4-H Club for nine years. At the conference, she took part in the nutrition consulting group. Argo now plans to increase fitness programs in her club and throughout Sussex County.

Gooden, a sophomore at Caesar Rodney High School, is an eight-year member of the Westville 4-H Club. At the conference, her group focused on the issue of recycling. As a result of their discussions, the delegates formed an ongoing national network to share information on environmental problems.

Huang, who has been a 4-H day camp counselor for three summers, is a sophomore at Tower Hill School. She enjoyed learning more about National 4-H and was impressed with the scope of activities. Her consulting group — "Youth As Resources" — recommended changes in how to involve youth in 4-H programs.

Melson, a senior at McKean High School and a member of the Meado-Larks 4-H Club for 10 years, participated in the national 4-H ambassador training. He plans to work with the state 4-H office to reorganize the local ambassador program to promote 4-H. He will also serve as a resource to the Delaware 4-H Foundation in fundraising activities. While at the conference, Melson was chosen to represent 4-H at the White House for the Great American Workout, the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports kickoff that launches national Fitness Month.

Beautiful Garden Begins With Soil

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — If you're planning a flower garden this year, start getting your soil in shape now. Soil preparation can save you time, labor, and money as well as rewarding you with beautiful plants.

"Preparing the soil is the most important step in gardening," said Dr. J. Robert Nuss, professor of ornamental horticulture in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Have your soil tested this spring, and use the test results and recommendations as a guide."

A soil test measures nutrient amounts and pH, or level of acidity. Soil pH is measured on a scale of O to 14, with O being the most acid, 14 the most alkaline, and 7 neutral.

Most soils naturally have pH levels ranging between 5 and 8.

"Many flowers do well in a range between 6 and 7, so chances are you won't need to change your soil's pH to any great extent," said Nuss.

Don't guess when it comes to fertilizing and changing pH. Over-applying chemicals can harm soil and plants as well as pollute groundwater and streams.

"Excess lime raises the soil's pH above what plants can tolerate, makes it more difficult for them to draw nutrients from the soil, and slows growth of beneficial soil microorganisms," said Nuss. "Some flowers prefer a more acid soil and can suffer from iron deficiency if you apply too much lime."

Soil test mailing kits are available at county extension offices and larger garden centers for a nominal fee. County extension kits include instructions for collecting soil samples as well as the address of Penn State's soil testing laboratory. Samples can be mailed or delivered to the laboratory.

You will receive test results in about two weeks. Results include levels of potassium, calcium, phosphorus, and magnesium, along with the soil's pH. Also included are recommendations for the kinds and amounts of fertilizer to apply and how much lime — if any — to add to the soil.

"If you're planning to grow rhododendrons, azaleas, laurels, or other flowers that prefer acid soil, you may need to apply a chemical such as sulfur, which lowers pH," said Nuss. "Apply no more than the recommended amount."

Till the recommended materials about 5 inches into the soil. While working the soil, remove stones, sod clumps, weeds, and debris.

"Work in several inches of organic matter," said Nuss. "There's little danger of adding too much. Composted kitchen scraps, well-rotted manures, lawn clippings, and decayed plant material all are good forms of organic matter. They help retain water and supply nutrients for your flowers."

After tilling, your soil is ready for seeds or transplants. Feed transplants with a starter solution containing 2 tablespoons of high-phosphorous fertilizer diluted in a gallon of water. Pour 1 cup of the solution around the roots of each new transplant.

"Phosphorous is critical for getting new flowers off to a good start," said Nuss. "Without it, roots will develop slowly and plants will be weak."

Add 2 to 3 inches of organic mulch on top of the soil around your plants. Mulch helps keep soil moist, prevents erosion, discourages weeds, and builds up the soil's organic matter.

"Mulch also tends to be more attractive than bare soil in an ornamental garden," said Nuss. "It keeps mud from splashing on your flowers and gives the ground's surface uniform color and texture."

Several kinds of mulch are available at garden centers, including wood bark chips, shredded bark, and peat. If you use grass clippings, leaves or well-decayed compost, periodically loosen them with a hand cultivator or hoe to prevent surface crusting.

When your plants begin to flower, sprinkle two tablespoons of high-nitrogen fertilizer on the soil about 6 inches away from the base of each plant. This will enhance flowering and give plants a boost for the rest of the summer. "If you fertilize too soon, however, you will delay the plants' maturity and decrease the number of flowers," said Nuss. "Wait until the first flowers open."

Finally, retest your flower garden's fertility and pH levels each year for several seasons. If reports remain similar, you can eventually space sampling to every 3 to 4 years.

"Nutrient levels and pH gradually change over time," said Nuss. "It's important to keep monitoring the soil to keep levels optimum."

Soil test kits may be purchased for $6 at cooperative extension offices.

Biotech Research Offers Array Of Opportunities

CREVE COEUR, Mo. — Biotechnology and genetic engineering are opening a whole new era in plant breeding. But until soybean breeders understand exactly how each gene within a soybean plant works, plant improvements will remain a hit-or-miss affair.

To gain the knowledge and capitalize on biotechnology's promise, the nation's soybean farmers are investing nearly $1.6 million in two years on such research.

Funded by a national soybean checkoff and administered by the United Soybean Board (USB), 21 research projects involving genetic engineering are under way at land-grant universities and USDA facilities.

Soybean biotechnology research is aimed at three general categories: changing soybean protein and oil composition, improving pest control, and basic plant studies. The largest study coordinates the knowledge of plant scientists, genetic specialists, breeders, and physiologists to construct a road map that pinpoints specific soybean genes.

Such a map will speed the timetable and reduce the cost of future soybean breeding.

Centered at the USDA Agricultural Research Service in Ames, Iowa, the research involves scientists from Purdue University, Iowa State University, the University of Minnesota, and the University of Nebraska.

In other research, scientists seek to rearrange the quality and quantity of protein and oil within an individual soybean to custom-make new soybean varieties for specialized markets.

At the University of Kentucky, David Hildebrand and Glenn Collins are working on manipulation of linolenate and other fatty acid components in soybean oil. Food processors want low-linolenate soybeans for edible cooking oils and high-linolenate soybeans for industrial and nutritional uses.

Research under way at Cornell University could increase the value of soybens for swine and poultry feed by an estimated 10 to 12 cents per bushel, by eliminating raffinose and stachyose sugars. Researchers at North Carolina State University, meanwhile, are attempting to breed high protein and high yield potential into drought-tolerant soybeans. Another study focuses on improving the taste, texture, and nutritional qualities of today's soybean varieties.

In pest control, biotechnology goals include cloning a Phytophthora resistance gene and engineering resistance to soybean looper, corn earworm, velvetbean caterpillar, bean pod mottle virus, and soybean mosaic virus. Tagging, mapping, and the study of soybean cyst nematode resistance are subjects of three other soybean research projects.

For more information on USB-administered soybean research, write to David Womack, USB, P.O. Box 410977, Creve Coeur, MO 63141-0977, (314) 469-0292.

Fast-Growing Tree Tolerates Weather Extremes, Makes Good Windbreak

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - As the marketing arm of a governmentally sponsored research and breeding program, Austree Inc. has introduced a new tree species into North America, Salix-Matsudana x Alba in several genetic variations.

These trees grow like grass and are quickly revolutionizing tree farming and windbreak establishment. These trees are valuable for use in soil and water erosion, timber production, salinity control, as fodder, windbreaks, and landscaping.

"Austrees" are tolerant of hot summers and cold winters, high wind, and poor soils. They are ideal for conservation and the environment.

The original breeding and research program was set up to produce a windbreak and conservation species. Austree clones have been engineered and tested during the last 30 years.

Austrees grow tall and upright, they do not spread by seed or sucker, and they do not have brittle wood. The trees' main feature is that they grow extremely fast. Typical growth rates are between 6-15 feet in a single growing season.

The aim was to provide a super fast growing, disease-resistant tree that could be easily established in diverse climates. Extremely hardy, the trees now grow in all the continental United States and in every province in Canada.

Austrees grow tall and upright, they do not spread by seed or sucker, and they do not have brittle wood. The trees' main feature is that they grow extremely fast. Typical growth rates are between 6 - 15 feet in a single growing season.

For the farmer, the establishment of windbreaks makes sense economically. It has been estimated that it costs as much as $400/acre in some areas to replace lost topsoil nutrients with artificial fertilizers.

This does not include the valuable organic content of the soil which takes years to replace once the valuable topsoil has blown away. Using these trees, it is possible to obtain effective shelter within one season.

Freshly tilled soil will not blow away if there is sufficient shelter, and the damage to crops from blowing soil and hot wind can be minimized. By simply putting the "brakes" on the wind, one can end soil erosion.

The shelter provided increases production of crops above the ground as they have protection from drying summer winds, cold windborne spring frosts, and pelting from blowing soil.

Large-scale growers can qualify for financial incentives from government agencies who are implementing numerous conservation programs. Austrees have qualified in several regions of the country.

For the homeowner, it is possible to alter the climate of a property in a short time. It is possible to improve property value by using these fast growing trees and to create privacy, noise, and dust barriers. Energy is conserved because properly placed trees can reduce heating and air conditioning costs by as much as 25 percent - 35 percent. For people who want shade and shelter in a hurry, or new landowners wishing for privacy, the fast-growing Austree is ideal. Austrees will provide food, shelter, and nesting sites for birds and other animals.

Austrees' principal use as of now has been windbreaks. They have been used in orchards, berry farms, vineyards, etc. to enhance crop production and on livestock operations to increase the yields. However, their use as shade trees for poultry farms, houses, and parks and in gardens has proven to be very effective and easily maintained.

Landscapers are using the trees to provide "living screens" around mine slips, factories, and dumps. Golf courses have been using them to line fairways and shield off nearby houses.

Austrees are easily maintained by pruning or hedging. By side trimming, a narrow growth form makes the trees effective for small and large acreage alike. The living screens do not take up too much space and the dense bushy growth from the ground up make ideal shelter. The trees, manageability and density make their lower branches an ideal habitat for ground birds such as quail and pheasant.

The benefits of shelter may not be as immediately obvious to the everyday pet owner or gentleman farmer, but it has been shown that shelter will provide an economic gain. Livestock are kept healthy and productive by shading and cooling them in the summer and by having protection from windchill and snow in the winter. Diets are more efficient and food better utilized.

Heat stress in cattle is reflected by lower food consumption and a decrease in weight gain. In dairy cows, adverse changes occur in the yield and composition of milk.

Critical temperatures appear to be around 74°-81°. In hot temperatures, animals spend less time grazing.

Trials have demonstrated that at 81° cattle will spend only 11 percent of their time grazing, while at temperatures only a few degrees lower this time will increase to 37 percent. There can be differences of as much as 0.14 pounds daily weight gain in favor of steers having access to shade. A four-year study showed that shade increased the summer weight gain of yearling Hereford steers by a profitable 19 pounds per head.

Intensive farming has led to a number of problems apart from soil erosion. A serious problem, often associated with irrigation farming, is salinity. The water tables in a particular area are raised so that salts leach out into the soil. Consequently, production levels decrease and land values drop.

Austrees are used as "biological pumps" to transpire large volumes of water. The trees will control rising water tables and keep valuable crop land in production.

Shelter from established windbreaks means that irrigation is more effective as wind and evaporation are reduced. More effective irrigation means less water brought into an area and there is less chance of salts leaching into the soil, not to mention the savings in water usage at times when supply is often critical.

Austrees are capable of producing high yields of wood per acre. They will provide continuing returns from a single investment, because no replanting is required. The wood can be used to provide biomass fuel.

Trees are currently an important resource, and new products such as the Austree are timely arrivals.

The Best of the Best

The Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality coating represents the best of the best in the Wheeling Corrugating line of premium galvanized roofing and siding. Every panel that carries the 2 ounce coating assures you are getting the toughest, the most durable, the most corrosion resistant galvanized sheet available in today's marketplace.

2oz. Seal of Quality

Genuine Old-Time Quality
Every Wheeling 2 oz. sheet is manufactured from heavy gauge steel, topped with an extra thick zinc coating, and formed into profiles that contribute strength and good looks. Build with a Wheeling 2 oz. sheet and you'll be working with the kind of durability and dependability that's been a standard in the industry for almost 100 years.

The Proof is in the Process
The performance behind the Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality is possible because of Wheeling's patented Cook-Norteman manufacturing process. This technology allows a more consistent quality product, and a more uniform coating with unsurpassed zinc adhesion. The process takes more handling and more time, but the end result is a super premium panel that has its own limited 20-year performance warranty.

Dimensions and Specifications
If your building plans call for roofing and siding materials with exceptional corrosion resistance, minimum upkeep, and old-time toughness, you'll want to check the specs of Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality galvanized.
Gauge: 28
Lengths: Up to 40'
Steel: Full hard, 90,000 psi, cold rolled Wheeling-Pittsburgh carbon steel.
NOTE: * Premium Wheeling 2 oz. Seal of Quality zinc coated natural roofing and siding will outlast painted, regular galvanized or galvalume in most applications!

Poly Square Means Healthier Calves

The Poly Square Big Foot is constructed of Opaque material to eliminate the solar effect. It blocks out sunheat-not sunlight. Poly Square's inverted ribs and 5' (W)x7'6"(L) make it the biggest unit on the market today and extremely wind resistant. It has no pop rivets which means no breaks or cracks for snow and rain to sift in. The unit weighs 100 pounds plus manger & buckets. And Poly Square Big Foot is large enough so your calf can lay in the center, away from cold walls in the winter.

New Side Hay Feeder - Made especially for Poly Square Big Foot, no other unit has this feature. Also has a center roof vent for better air movement.

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING.
A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that
- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

The Eby Wrangler...
★ Better Looking ★ Better Built ★ Better Value

The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications

- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

ATTENTION ALL FARM OWNERS IN SOUTH CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA!

Do you own an active farm (prefer 100+ acres/dairy - flexible) with some fairly secluded woods on the property?

If so, are you concerned about retirement income or just looking for increased monthly cash flow? Do you need an immediate cash infusion?

What Factors Are Involved In Ensiling?

Editor's Note: Part 1 of 3 in a series on the silage-making process is reprinted with permission from International Silo Association.

The Ensiling Process

Ensiling is a method of crop preservation which, if it takes place under certain conditions, will inhibit spoilage during the necessary storage period. This allows the farmer to preserve his crops in a form that is readily accepted by the livestock with a minimum of nutrient loss. The fundamental strategy is to exclude the oxygen from the crop mass and to reduce its pH through bacterial fermentation. The ensiling process does not improve the quality of the feed; the quality must be present before ensiling.

Basically, the material going into a silo consists of two ingredients — chopped plant material (living and dead tissue and cell sap), and microorganisms (bacteria, molds, and yeasts). These two ingredients combine in the silo in an ensiling process which essentially involves two phases — the aerobic (with air) and the anaerobic (without air) phase.

1. Aerobic Phase. During this initial phase, and for as long as oxygen is present, the following process will take place:

a. Plant material going into storage consists of living cells which will continue to respire for some time, utilizing the oxygen of air trapped in the mass in combination with available soluble plant sugars to produce carbon dioxide, water and heat.

b. Aerobic organisms (bacteria molds and yeasts) present on the chopped material will also utilize the oxygen present and, in combination with water soluble carbohydrates (WSC) from the plant material, will produce more heat, carbon dioxide and water.

c. Unless outside air enters the mass, this action will continue until all the available oxygen is used up — usually within a few hours time.

d. Plant enzymes (proteolytic) remain active during this phase, breaking down plant protein to non-protein nitrogen (NPN) which results in a loss of nutritional feed value.

e. Heat is only produced during this phase of fermentation, i.e., when air is available.

f. As plant cells die, cell membranes break down, releasing cell juices (seepage from the mass will occur if the moisture content is relatively high).

g. Near the end of this phase, some acetic acid and possibly some butyric acid bacteria become active; however, this is soon curtailed by the normal bacterial activity of the next phase.

2. Anaerobic Phase. Once the oxygen in the ensiling mass is used up, anaerobic bacteria begin to grow and multiply, slowly at first, but gaining momentum with time (should be well under way within three days). During this period, the following will take place:

a. The anaerobic bacteria gain their entry by utilizing plant WSC to produce organic acids such as lactic and acetic.

b. The most important microbes are the lactobacilli, which are the lactic acid formers.

c. The amount and rate of acid production is dependent on the moisture content of the material and the availability of WSC (low moisture and/or low carbohydrates curtails acid production).

d. The temperature range during this time period is somewhat less than during the previous phase - usually decreasing to the 20-30 degrees C (70-85 degrees F) range.

e. As the concentration of acid builds up (i.e. the pH is lowered), the microbial activity will start to slow down, and at a pH of approximately 3.8-4.0, the acid level will stop all enzymatic and microbial activity — acid producers as well as spoilage organisms.

f. At this point (after about 2-3 weeks) the silage will have reached a preserved, stable phase, and unless an excessive amount of air is allowed into the mass, no further activity (good or bad) will take place.

Mist Sprayer Environmentally Friendly

PENDER, Neb. — Automatic Equipment Manufacturing Company's MB-50 mist sprayers are an efficient, environmentally friendly way to apply chemicals, according to Automatic President Jay Hesse.

In fact, researchers at Michigan State and Georgia have found that mist sprayers can save up to 50 percent of the chemical, fuel, and labor used in conventional spraying while still maintaining the effectiveness of the chemical.

Mist sprayers produce a turbulent air stream which propels the droplets to the target and deposits them for maximum efficiency. Other conventional sprayers depend on gravity and the wind. As a result, conventional sprayers deposit in an "umbrella" fashion on the periphery of plants. Mist sprayers penetrate the canopy of the plant, reaching the underside of leaves, covering the stems.

"The Automatic Mist Sprayer with fine particle sprayhead has the best of both worlds . . . an economical machine to buy and operate that gives maximum efficiency with chemical, fuel, and labor," Hesse said.

The MB models are available in PTO and engine driven units. The PTO unit is driven by a double V-belt from the PTO shaft and mounted on a sturdy, reinforced frame with a protective PTO and belt pulley shield. The engine unit is a self-contained sprayer, designed to mount in a pickup, on a trailer or truck. It has powerful 18 h.p., twin cylinder engine with convenient controls. The mist sprayers are equipped with a large fill cap that makes it easy to clean the tanks between chemicals.

Both units use controlled droplet application (CDA). The mist sprayers produce a turbulent air stream that propels the droplets to the target. The droplets penetrate the canopy of the plant, reaching the underside of leaves, covering the stems. Other types of sprayers depend on gravity and wind. As a result, they deposit in an "umbrella" fashion only on the periphery of the plants, Hesse said.

Atrazine Use Changes To Protect Water

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Ciba-Geigy has learned that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has accepted the company's proposal for changes in the labels which govern use of the product "atrazine."

Atrazine is widely used by farmers to control weeds in corn, sorghum, and other crops.

The label changes accepted by the EPA will be effective for the 993 crop year, and will apply to .l products which contain atraine. The revisions are part of an ngoing effort by farmers, government regulators, and Ciba-Geigy to reduce the potential for traces of atrazine to move from application sites into surface water.

According to Steve Spain, Ciba-Geigy's product manager for atrazine, the changes focus on two areas. "The new label will result in a reduction in the total amount of atrazine used and will address conditions which increase the chance of surface water runoff from treated fields," he said.

The revised label will eliminate non-crop total vegetation control uses of atrazine. For agricultural uses, the maximum rate for a single application will be reduced to 1.6 or 2 pounds of atrazine per acre, depending on the amount of soil-holding crop residue a farmer has in the field. Presently, atrazine can be applied in amounts of up to three pounds per acre.

The new label also creates buffer areas between atrazine application sites and surface water. For instance, atrazine application will not be permitted within 66 feet of the points where field surface water runoff can enter streams and rivers, or within 200 feet of lakes and reservoirs.

Spain said, "Ciba-Geigy shares the EPA's objective of preserving water quality. Over the past several years, we have devoted millions of dollars and substantial resources to research, regulatory and educational efforts aimed at preventing ag chemical presence in water supplies.

"As a result of these efforts," Spain said, "We are more confident than ever that atrazine use, when managed properly, can continue to be a viable weed control option for growers without compromising water quality."

In addition to initiating the label changes, Ciba-Geigy also made a commitment to the EPA to continue other product stewardship activities designed to reduce the potential for atrazine to impact surface water quality. These include participation in the establishment of grower "best management practices" administered at the state level, educating growers on water protection measures, research into water quality preservation, and conducting water quality monitoring programs.

Study Looks At Soybean Market

ST LOUIS, Mo. — An economic study to explore new promotion and research activities that could produce the highest return on investment of soybean checkoff dollars for U.S. farmers began recently.

The comprehensive study is funded by the national soybean checkoff administered by farmers on the United Soybean Board (USB).

Information in several areas will be considered in developing strategies to improve the global competitiveness of the U.S. soybean industry and target areas of greatest investment potential for U.S. soybean farmers' checkoff dollars.

"This study will take an objective look at all areas of opportunity to expand the market for U.S. soybeans and soybean products," said USB Industry Information Chairman David Winkles. "We want to single out one or two specific areas where the United Soybean Board could best apply producer resources to make a significant impact for increased profitability for U.S. soybean farmers."

According to Winkles, the study will be conducted by Abel, Daft & Earley, Inc., an economic consulting firm located in Alexandria, Va. The firm has a strong background in similar market studies and has access to econometric models and other information resources that contribute to the study.

In their study Abel, Daft & Earley will develop a statistical picture of the world soybean and soybean product market. By identifying and quantifying past trends in the total oilseed and soybean markets, they will develop a comparison of U.S. soybean markets to the rest of the world.

Using the data and interviews with industry leaders, the researchers will seek to understand how industry practices have influenced the behavior of producers, traders, and users and to identify the advantages and disadvantages of serving various world market segments. Finally, the study will look at U.S. and foreign commodity policies to see how government policies help or harm the U.S. soybean business.

The study is expected to be complete by the end of August.

Offers Retail Financing

ASSARIA, Kan. — Great Plains has expanded its services to include company-sponsored financing. With the formation of Great Plains Acceptance Corporation (GPAC), Great Plains now offers retail financing to its grain drill customers and trade-in financing to it nation-wide dealer network.

Don Peterson, GPAC president, said, "We listened to the financial needs of dealers and farmers and then did our best to meet those specific needs. As a result, we are convinced that providing a company-sponsored program with reliable and timely financing options will enable more farmers to upgrade their equipment by purchasing a new Great Plains drill."

Richard Plush, GPAC lending manager, said among the advantages of a captive finance company are convenience to the dealer network, competitive rates, low down payments, quick approval, optional insurance, and flexible payment plans.

"In addition, GPAC's direct service to farmers will allow them to keep their bank credit available for operating capital and provide complete and convenient financial arrangements at the time and place of purchase," he said.

"Many of the Great Plains drill dealers expressed the need for a trade-in finance program which we believe will bridge the dealer's need for interim inventory financing of planting equipment traded in on a new Great Plains drill," Plush said.

For more information about Great Plains Acceptance Corporation, contact a Great Plains dealer in your area.

Penn State Has Moth Control Tips

HUNTINGDON (Huntingdon Co.) — With the coming of May, Pennsylvania property owners are bracing for this year's onslaught of gypsy moth caterpillars.

The larvae, which last year defoliated about 1.2 million acres of state woodlands, hatch in late April and early May, depending on local weather conditions.

Mature gypsy moth caterpillars can be identified by the markings on their backs: five pairs of blue spots followed by six pairs of red spots.

Homeowners can reduce damage to their trees and shrubs by finding and destroying the moths' buff-colored egg masses in winter or early spring.

But if you didn't take that precaution, or if your property is infested by wind-blown caterpillars from other locations, there are several ways to protect your landscape from defoliation.

Penn State entomologist Gregory Hoover said several nonchemical measures have proven effective in controlling the pest. One of the most popular methods is "banding." To do this, in late May encircle the trunk of a tree at chest height with a 14- to 18-inch wide piece of burlap and tie a rope or cord around its middle. Fold the top half down, creating a skirt around the trunk of the tree. Near the end of each day, collect and destroy any caterpillars that have gathered under the flap.

Banding takes advantage of the caterpillars' tendency to come down from the tree during the day and seek a sheltered resting place. "Although I wouldn't recommend this method for a property owner with hundreds of trees, it can significantly reduce defoliation on individual trees in your yard," said Hoover.

Hoover said commercially available barrier tape also can be applied to trees. Barrier tape is treated with a sticky substance that reduces the chance that a caterpillar will gain access to the crown of the tree by climbing the trunk.

Another good defense is to maintain a variety of healthy, vigorous plants that can withstand the stress of gypsy moth feeding and attract songbirds and other natural predators. "Although gypsy moths feed on about 300 varieties of trees and shrubs, they prefer oak," said Hoover. "You'll discourage gypsy moths if you maintain diversity in your landscape." Some species Hoover recommends are ash, dogwood, honeylocust, horse chestnut, mulberry, rhododendron, sycamore, and yellow or tulip poplar.

Hoover said there are more than a dozen biological and chemical pesticides available for fighting the gypsy moth. But he cautions that application timing can be critical, and some chemicals may be harmful to certain landscape plants and the gypsy moth's natural enemies. If you choose to use pesticides, be sure to carefully read and follow label instructions.

If these methods fail to provide relief from gypsy moth damage, Hoover recommends contacting your county gypsy moth coordinator about including your property in next year's aerial spray program. But don't delay — Hoover said officials likely will plan and finalize next year's spray program before the end of this summer.

She replaces Dr. Blannie Bowen, C. Lee Rumberger and Family professor of agriculture, who has served as interim department head since October 1990.

Fennelly has been on the Penn State faculty since 1988. She has taught courses on needs assessments of community programs, evaluation of community health programs, and measurement issues in public health research. From 1980 to 1987, Fennelly was on the faculty at the Center for Population and Family Health at Columbia University. She coordinated a partnership between U.S. and Dominican Republic schools of public health and supervised and evaluated a four-year community health education program to reduce the incidence of adolescent pregnancy in northern Manhattan.

From 1973-1979, Fennelly was program coordinator and senior staff associate at the International Institute for the Study of Human Reproduction at Columbia University.

Dr. Katherine Fennelly

She helped to design the Women's Reproductive Health Care Program at Presbyterian Hospital, supervised family planning clinic services, and researched methods of fertility control.

Worksaver's new series of quick attach brackets allow bale or material handling equipment to be mounted on most popular skid steer loaders.

Brackets Allow Material To Be Mounted Onto Skid Loaders

LITCHFIELD, Ill. — Worksaver, Inc., has introduced a series of quick attach brackets to mount bale handling equipment on most popular skid steer loaders.

The skid steer becomes more versatile by utilizing Worksaver bale spears or forks to move round bales and square bales or pallets of material.

The quick attach brackets bolt to any Worksaver loader bale handling equipment with four "U-bolts." Once the brackets are mounted to the attachments, the operator can change the equipment quickly and easily.

The quick attach brackets may be purchased to retrofit existing Worksaver loader equipment. (Note: do not exceed skid steer manufacturer's recommended operating capacity.)

For more information, contact Worksaver, P.O. Box 100, Litchfield, IL 62056-0100, (217) 324-5973.

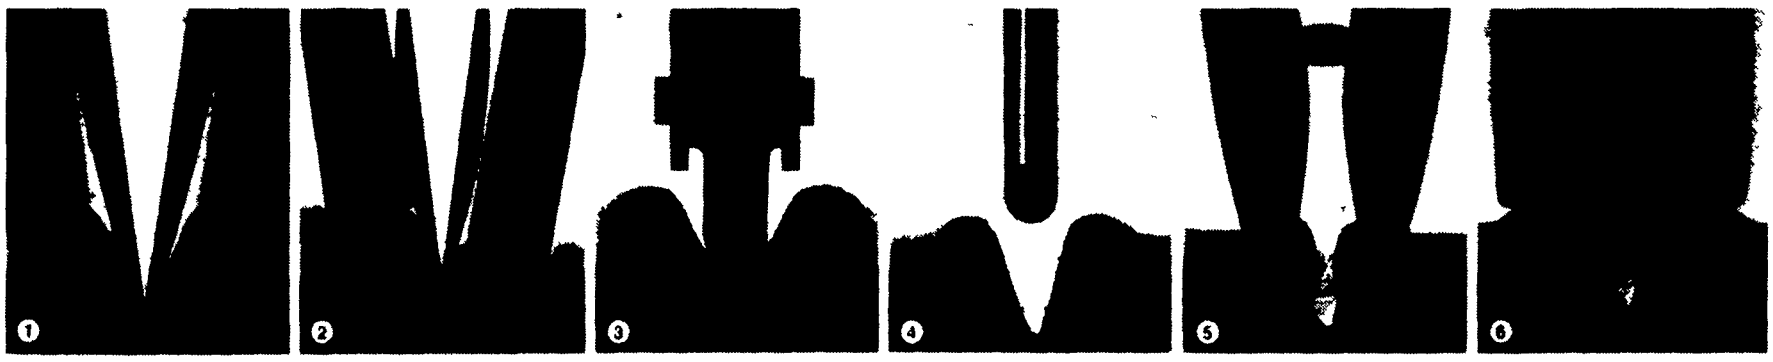
Get a HEAD START with an Early Riser Planter from HOOBERS...

READY FOR SPRING DELIVERY:

- 6 Row, 30", Dry Fert., Insecticide, Markers, Early Riser Monitor
- 6 Row, 30", Liquid Fert., Insecticide, Markers, Early Riser Monitor
- 8 Row, 30", Fold-12' Transport, Insecticide, Markers
- 12 Row, 30", Horizontal-Fold Markers, Insecticide

The 900 Series Early Riser Row Units Are The Secret!



1. Case IH staggered doubled disk openers reduce power demands, effectively cut through trash and penetrate hard soils, eliminating the need for costly colter attachments common to so-called "no till" planters.

2. Exclusive front pull equalizing depth gauge wheels are connected through special linkage that maintains equal pressure on the gauge wheels at all times. Grooved gauge wheel tires work to trap the moist soil brought up by the openers so that soil is placed back into the bottom of the seed trench following seed placement.

3. Improved Furrow firming point forms a well-defined "V" furrow bottom offering optimum depth control, seed spacing and germination.

4. With the clean "V" furrow bottom and smooth, narrow seed trench, seeds are delivered to the same depth and held in place for reliable uniform emergence.

5. Twin inverted staggered covering disks mounted directly behind the openers, return moist soil to the seed trench and provide good seed/soil contact.

6. Chevron-tread press wheels seal the closed seed trench and firm the furrow, eliminating air pockets and promoting optimum germination.

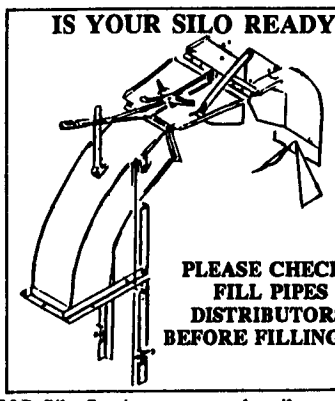
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

STRONGER AND WILL OUT LAST PLASTER

IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Purina's Ultimate EXT at Work in Franklin County

Garnet and Wanda Eshelman Jr. took over the daily operation of the St. Thomas, PA dairy farm in the spring of 1982 from Garnet's parents, Garnet and Alice Eshelman. They currently feed a 50/50 blend of haylage and corn silage run out on the bunk along with a small amount of an ear corn mix made up at their Purina Dealer, Detrich Elevator located in Williamson, PA. The cows also receive 2 lb. of dry hay per day. Garnet is currently feeding Purina's New Ultimate EXT 32% concentrate and flaked shelled corn in a dual ration computer feeder. Garnet started on a Purina program working with his local Purina Dairy Specialist in November 1991.

Here are a few comments he had to share since starting on the program:

"I feel that I've seen a 10 lb./cow/day milk response since starting on Purina's EXT"

"My cows are peaking higher and are more persistent while maintaining a good butterfat"

"The cows body condition is improving and herd health is as well"

"My feed cost/ton is higher, but I have more profit at the end of the month vs. my previous program"

Jack and Roger Beck manage a 75 cow holstein operation located in Mercersburg, PA. This father and son team get good performance from their cows without a lot of costly building changes. Heifers, dry cows and milking cows feed from the same bunk together and get corn silage and alfalfa hay in the winter and alfalfa hay and haylage in the summer. Here are some DHIA records the Becks shared with us since they started with Purina in April 1991:

Roger feeds Purina's Ultimate EXT blended with his HMSC to cows in barn during milking.

Roger shared a few comments about what he has seen on Purina's program:

"This high-energy feed has been very palatable"

"Since going on EXT I've seen an increase of 4 lb/cow in milk"

"My cows body condition has improved, thus helping my breeding"

"My heifers are milking better than they ever have"

Purina Mills thanks these dairyman for sharing their records and we wish them success in the future!
